HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Ed Nielsen wants to develop what he calls a "world-class marketing plan" for the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The newly-named Farm Show director brings with him 20 years of experience helping organizations with innovative planning and marketing strategies.

Hog Farming Summit Draws Diverse Crowd

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — What's the best way to raise pigs to meet consumer pork demands, take care of the environment, and be a good neighbor?

Organizers of the Third Annual Sustainable Hog Farming Summit here last Saturday say that large-scale, confinement facilities are not the answer.

According to them, these operations pollute air and water, offer inhumane living conditions for animals, and have negative economic impacts on rural communities.

That's hogwash, according to several large-scale confinement producers who were also on hand for the day-long event. These operators say they do a good job managing manure and odor, and

"Raise your glasses high and chug," said Cumberland County Dairy Ambassador Bernadette Nace, center, who led the crowd in a milk toast to dairy farmers. Bunk Smith, Dillsburg, planned the celebration in honor of dairy farmers "who work 365 days a year so that the rest of us can eat." International 'Red Power' Show Gears Up

Food And Family Features Editor

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — With less than two weeks until the International "Red Power" Show comes into the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds for a massive three-day event June 26-28, action is in high gear for final preparations.

Ben Trapani, president of the International Harvester Collectors of Central Pennsylvania Chapter 17 Club in charge of the International Harvester (IH) Roundup, said that equipment and memorabilia are coming from the four corners of the U.S., Canada, and beyond.

Trapani expects 30,000 people to attend during the three-day period.

He already knows that proud IH collectors are bringing 1,200-1,500 red tractors and 500-600 Cub Cadets to display. One of the oldest models that Trapani knows for sure that will be displayed is a 1916 restored Titain IH. A very unusual all-wooden forage cutter with a wooden chain will also be display.

Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff will speak at Thursday's June 26 welcoming ceremony.

Plans are under way for a tractor parade through the town of Bloomsburg on Saturday morning.

"Unfortunately the older model tractors won't be in the parade because of the old-style wheels," Trapani said.

But the parade promises to include an unusual sight. Nevin Rice, Blain, plans to bring 13 tractors. He hooks them end to end and drives the first tractor towing the remaining 12.

"Although the show is sponsored by the Red Power Club, participation is not limited to club members. Anyone can bring a tractor," Trapani said.

Tractors can be brought for show without prior registration. Red Power fans eagerly anticipate the opportunity to ooh and ahh over what they consider is the best brand of tractors in history.

It doesn't matter that tractors are no longer manufactured under the IH name. The fierce competitiveness between devotees of different colored tractors is intense.

"Red Power" perspective claims that red tractors were far advanced over other colored brands.

"Between 1939-1953, more than 400,000 Farmall H and 300,000 Farmall M models were sold compared to only

A Plan For Pennsylvania

Commentary From Dennis C. Wolff
Secretary
Pennsylvania Department Of Agriculture

In March, Governor Rendell brought to the Pennsylvania General Assembly his Plan for a New Pennsylvania, a package of initiatives to get Pennsylvania's economy back on track and to reinvest in our schools and communities.

There are several key components in the Governor's plan, but I would like to focus on one of the most exciting aspects — reform of our property tax system to provide fairness both in how schools are funded and in how school funds are distributed among Pennsylvania's 501 school districts.

The Governor's plan puts Pennsylvania's farmers and rural communities at the forefront of its benefits and opportunities. In a state of roughly 12 million people, Pennsylvania's 59,000 farm families represent about one percent of the state's population.

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold steady to firm on Monday on a supply that included some higher quality stock. On Tuesday, the majority of the run was weighing up full, with several consigners bringing cattle to town that weighed up extremely full and were docked from 2.00-5.00. Due to the very poor weigh-ups on Tuesday, a trend was not fully established, with the few cattle that were comparable to Tuesday trending about steady. Slaughter Holstein steers sold steady to weak, with not enough slaughter heifers to test the market. Slaughter cows continue to lose ground, as prices were fully 3.00-4.00 lower on very light buyer attendance. Slaughter bulls sold with a lower undertone on a light test. The two-day run included 455 steers, 69 heifers, 380 cows, 16 bulls, with 34 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers. High Choice and Prime 2-4 1155-1420 lbs 82.50-85.50, few 86.00-88.50 on mostly Monday. Choice 2-3 1095-1465 lbs 79.00-83.00, package 83.75, several full 76.75-79.35. CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, high Choice and Prime slaughter steers sold fully .50- 1.00 lower, instances up to 2.00 lower; with Choice grades and lower trading 2.00-3.00 lower. Kosher demand remains relatively good as higher quality steers are still bringing in the mid-80's. However, the demand for Select and Choice cattle was not near as good as it has been over the past month. In fact, very few average Choice steers were able to top 80.00. Slaughter Holstein steers sold steady to weak. There were not enough slaughter heifers to fully compare the market. Breaking and Boning slaughter cows sold 2.00 higher as the late week demand was very good. Lean slaughter cows sold steady, up to 2.00 higher early. The supply included 686 head of slaughter steers, 414 cows, 56 heifers, 89 bulls, with 97 head of feeder cattle.

SLAUGHTER STEERS High Choice and Prime 2-4, 1125-1450 lbs 80.00-84.00, singles up to 85.00, two packages mid-sale 85.00, early sales 79.00-83.00. New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
June 11, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 199; Last Week: 467 Year Ago: 423.

Compared to last week, a very light run of graded pigs sold very uneven. Demand for 20 pounders was extremely light as prices fell well below a 100.00. However, buyers were paying over 200.00 for 30-35 lb pigs, which is sharply higher. All other weights were not well tested. All pigs continue to go to slaughter as mandated until further notice. All pigs are graded on arrival, and sold on their in-weights; with prices below quoted per hundred weight.

Head Weight Price U.S. 1-2 50 20-26 lbs 72.00-80.00, 21 32-33 lbs 207.00-210.00, 32 42-49 lbs 110.00, one fancy lot 137.00, 5 56 lbs 125.00, 2 62 lbs 130.00, 2 102 lbs 75.00

U.S. 2 34 18-19 lbs 60.00-62.00 2 45 lbs 67.00

No-Grades 32 21 lbs 62.00 boars

ALL PIGS CONSIGNED TO WEDNESDAY FEEDER PIG SALE MUST ORIGINATE FROM A QUALIFIED NEGATIVE OR MONITORED HERD.

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was mostly steady to about steady. Demand into all channels covered the full range and showed signs of typical mid-week activity; however, movement was better for retail ads and fast food. Supplies were usually sufficient for needs with heavier weights at times ample. In the parts structure, trading was light to fair and generally limited to regular commitments. Breast items were at least adequate and attractively priced to help move, wings were adequate to ample with little interest, and dark meat was in the best balance and clearing well. In production areas, live supplies were moderate with weights in a full range.

CUSHIONED EGG

Electronic Drives
The innovative, electronically-controlled drive system enables eggs to be transported at a smooth, continuous speed on an endless conveyor with drive units located intermittently up to 150' apart.

Optimum Rod Spacing
Space between each cushioned rod is the key to egg separation and preventing smaller eggs from slipping through the conveyor while allowing all debris to be sifted out.

Design Flexibility
The unique "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor enables you to custom design a system that gently transports eggs up, down, around corners and in a continuous straight line without transfer, and even declines to match processing equipment.

Custom Corners
The unique radial corner system in the Farmer Automatic rod conveyor can be custom designed to fit 15° through 90° turns.

ROD CONVEYOR TRANSPORT SYSTEM

Uni-Trac Construction
The "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor is setting industry standards for efficiency. flexibility and cost savings with a unified construction design that eliminates the problems of egg transfer.

Rol-Link Chain System
An endless, custom designed, roller chain system and flexible cushioned plastic rods, cradle eggs in a gentle position that helps eliminate collisions and breakage.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied by USDA

Trucklot buying activity ranged fair to no better than moderate as dealers remained cautious and selective. Offerings of boneless skinless breasts were available and bone-in breasts were fully adequate and discounted. Dark meat cuts were adequate, but manageable with drumsticks in the best position. Tenderloins were adequate to available. Retail and distributive draw was only fair at best with scattered features providing the best movement. The market tone was barely steady to weak on bone-in breasts, barely steady on boneless-skinless breasts and about steady on the balance.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was fair to moderate and sufficient in keeping the bulk of offerings in generally good balance. Advance interest was slow in developing, however spot reports of improved weather over the weekend have some sellers projecting increased buyer interest entering the weekend. Live supplies were moderate; weights were desirable to heavy. Processor schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 59 to 67 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. In the parts complex, Boneless skinless breasts were in good balance, supplies of bone-in were heavy. Leg items were adequate to closely cleared.

Wings were ample.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat and soybean bids were lower, while corn and sorghum trended higher for the day. A negative monthly USDA report did not help support wheat and soybean bids. Corn also received negative supply and demand estimate numbers but the global balance sheets were noted to be supportive. Wheat mostly 1-4 cents lower with Portland trending mix, from 2 cents lower to 3 cents higher. Corn 2-5 cents higher. Sorghum was 8-9 cents higher. Soybeans mostly 3-6 cents lower for the exception of Minneapolis 8 cents lower.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
June 11, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.4058-1.5486. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.4058-1.5596 mostly 1.4607-1.5376.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9300; Class III - spot prices - .7400-.8200.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 0, Out 153; Last Week: In 0, Out 211; Last Year: In 0, Out 63. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to recent changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

Milk production is easing additionally in the Southeast, while ranging steady to lower in the Northeast. Heat and humidity are taking their toll on the cows in Florida and other Gulf Coast States and handlers report lighter weights on farm-route trucks. Florida handlers note that exports to manufacturing are down this week, but may rebound next week when retail features conclude.

Rain continues to fall across parts of New York and New England. This is delaying some field work and haying. Contacts report that incoming milk volumes are easing from peak levels and that fat and protein tests are slipping. This is typical for this time of year when quality hay and other feed supplies tighten. Also, there have been reports that the low price for milk has forced some farmers to alter their feeding practices, particularly in regard to supplements. Schools in the Northeast are closing this week or next and bottlers expect order to drop off significantly late this week. This should/ could push more milk into manufacturing. There is ample capacity to handle any extra milk in the region.

The condensed skim market is little changed. Spot demand and prices are unchanged. Offerings range from fully adequate to ample.

The fluid cream market has firmed considerably in the past few weeks. Contacts report that supplies have tightened and demand has improved. Offerings are tight and some reports note that West Coast cream is starting to be shipped across the country. Spot prices have moved significantly higher. With the CME butter price holding as steady as it has been, suppliers are adjusting multiples to reflect the tightness of supply and increased demand. Suppliers and producers are getting more calls looking for cream. This is at a time when they also are looking for loads to supplement their short supply. There was a report from one supplier that skim milk demand was off this week and this did affect the volumes of cream they had to offer. With schools winding down cream availability from standardization will decrease, but these volumes may be offset by more milk moving through separators at butter/powder plants. Bottled cream sales are improving seasonally. Ice cream production is picking up. However, the relatively cool, rainy weather is hurting consumption. Soft serve mix sales are fair. Cream cheese output is about steady and some of the large producers are actively out looking for additional loads of cream. Churning activity is often lighter as some butter makers are selling their own cream at current market prices.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With Almanac

SUMMER SOLSTICE, JUNE 21

FOREHANDED FARMERS

In 1927, The Old Farmer's Almanac observed, "The successful farmer is always forehanded He pushes his work instead of allowing his work to push him. He plans his necessary work well ahead and gets much of it done before the rush season This policy gives opportunity for more thorough, intelligent, and productive work"

To have a productive gardening year, tend to your watering and fertilizing now, and continue to plant seeds of fast-growing plants such as beans, squashes, marigolds, and nasturtiums Prune azaleas after they've finished blooming, and thin fruits such as apples, pears, and peaches if too many flowers have set fruit. Tend to weeding and stake plants early.

Weeds never die.

–German proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

If your washer is overflowing with suds, sprinkle salt into the water.

SHRIMP GRECCO

2 pounds raw shrimp
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 small onion, chopped
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup dry vermouth
2 cups canned crushed tomatoes
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 tablespoon oregano
1 tablespoon basil
salt and pepper, to taste
dash of Tabasco
1/2 pound feta cheese, cut in chunks

Shell and de-vein shrimp Sauté garlic and onion in olive oil until limp Add vermouth, simmer 3 minutes Add tomatoes, tomato paste, oregano, and basil Simmer 10 minutes, add salt, pepper, and Tabasco to taste. Add shrimp and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until pink Add feta cheese and simmer until shrimp is completely cooked and cheese is heated but not melted Serve with rice

Makes 6 servings.

The Old Farmer's Weather Proverbs

A summer fog for fair, a winter fog for rain; a fact most everywhere, in valley or on plain.

A rainy wedding day makes the sky of marriage gray.

Smart Growth And Agriculture

Guest Editorial By
Bryan Butler
Maryland Cooperative Extension
Carroll County

As an extension educator and as a small producer, I have struggled for many years trying to find the magic enterprise called "profitability." I receive several calls a month asking what to do to make money on 25 acres from new landowners.

Often, after a 45-minute conversation, the caller seems offended that I will not share the secret of "profitable agriculture" and that I will not tell them about the miraculous new type of animal that requires little care, creates virtually no waste, can be purchased for little, and can be sold for a lot.

The other variation on this theme is the person already in production worried that commodity grain prices are bad and wanting to know what can be done that is exactly the same as what is currently being done but will somehow make more money.

Often these existing producers have had trouble for years and cannot find a way to develop consistent profitability — due primarily to worldwide market forces that they cannot control and the fact that the U.S. has a cheap food policy that is subsidized on the backs of the producer. This situation gets a little more hopeless every year as equipment gets older and producers seem to be at the mercy of fewer and fewer marketing outlets.

Meanwhile, I hear a great desire to protect farmland and open space. Many euphemistically believe that this will prevent sprawl, which overburdens our schools and roads, and will preserve the rural character of the outlying counties of the state.

One of these stopgap measures has been the purchase of development rights from producers through one program or another. This certainly restricts what may come of that land in the future, but this has little if anything to do with the preservation of farmers, rural character, or agriculture in Maryland.

If that money is spent just to keep the operation afloat, has that really served the farmer in any way or not? Some believe that when issues of smart growth or overall land use are dealt with, existing programs such as Rural Legacy, Ag Land Preservation, and TDRs have done enough and that efforts should be focused on more urban areas.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler
Lancaster County Extension Director

To Review Your Corn Weed Control Program

This growing season is off to a challenging start as we have arrived at mid-June, and too many growers are still planting corn and full-season soybeans. In addition to delaying planting, the wet, cool, cloudy weather is challenging our weed control programs.

Extension weed specialist Dr. William Curran offers these points concerning weed control in corn.

First, rainfall has been plentiful so far this season. If you were on the ball and managed to plant back in late April, your corn is likely off and running. However, if you're in the May or June group, it's been a slow start. At Rockspring, we had 4.71 inches of rain in May with 12 out of 31 days receiving 1/10 inch or more (24 days received 1/100 inch or more). At our Southeast Research and Extension Center in Lancaster County, we received 4.41 inches in May and had nine days received 1⅛0 inch or more. So, total rainfall hasn't been that unusual, but the frequency of rain is certainly keeping us out of the field.

If you did manage to plant back in late April or early May, you should be scouting for weed escapes. The frequent rainfall we have been getting can cause some of the herbicides to dissipate and lose their effectiveness sooner than we see in drier years. In particular, watch for grass breaks from the acetamide herbicides (Dual, Harness, Outlook, Topnotch, etc.). These products are fairly water-soluble and are more likely to dissipate under wet conditions.

Also, watch for breaks with large seeded broadleaf weeds such as velvetleaf and common ragweed. We are seeing both these species escape in our field trials, particularly where atrazine rates are 1.25 pounds per acre or less or when the soil-applied treatments went out in late April or early May.

Secondly, if you are still trying to make your first herbicide application and the corn has emerged, think about several key weeds that will drive the weed control program. If you planted Roundup Ready, Liberty Link, or Clearfield corn, you have additional product options and some insurance toward good weed control. However, if you are not growing a herbicide-resistant corn hybrid, then emerged annual grasses require the use of a foliar-applied grass herbicide such as Accent, Basis Gold, Option, or Steadfast. Emerged yellow nutsedge probably means you're going to have to include Permit or Yukon (Permit plus Dicamba).

If you are still dealing with small corn (V3 or less), you will likely need residual control of annual grasses and broadleaves. Think about including atrazine, Prowl, or a grass/atrazine mixture (Bicep, Guardsman, Harness Xtra, Keystone, etc.). Problem perennial weeds may require you to come back a second time, so you may want to think about lower cost programs up front. Results have been impressive in Penn State trials with some early postemergence programs where the corn and weeds are small and soil residual herbicides are included. Be sure to check a current label for maximum corn size and acceptable tank mix partners. Also, remember that atrazine may not be applied to corn beyond 12 inches tall, because of water quality concerns. Atrazine premixed products may be more restrictive.

To Welcome Dr. David Johnson

David Johnson, field biologist with BASF Corporation, has been named scientist-in-charge at Penn State's Southeast Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Landisville. Johnson has experience in laboratory and field research as well as product development in the agricultural products industry.

(Editor's note: Lancaster Farming published a feature story about Johnson on page 1 of the May 10 issue.)

As manager of the 160-acre research center, Johnson will work with faculty members and the agricultural industry to conduct variety trials, soil fertility studies, and pest management research. He also will oversee work on agronomic and horticultural crops. This season's research focus will be on evaluating corn that has been genetically modified.

Johnson received his bachelor's degree in agronomy from Penn State in 1984. He continued his education at the University of Arkansas, earning a master's degree in 1989 and a doctorate in 1993 both in agronomy/weed science.

The Southeast Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Landisville is located in Lancaster County. The center is an important Pennsylvania site for applied research on agronomic and some horticultural crops. Research involves cultivar testing, pest management, cover crops, inoculants, fertility, and various management studies.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT TIME IS IT?

Background Scripture:
Haggai; Ezra 5:1,2.
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 3:10-17.

When was the last time you said, "I don't have time for that"? Think for a moment: did you not really have the time or did you have it and didn't want to give it?

Thirty years ago I remember reading newspaper and magazine articles about all the time-saving devices that were being invented to give us more free time. "What will we do with our leisure time?" one of them asked.

Today, even for allowing that I am 30-plus years older, I don't seem to have any more time now than I did then. I never worry about what I'm going to do with my leisure because I don't seem to have much, if any. Yet, the last time I said, "I don't have the time," it was to my grandchildren. In retrospect I would admit the reason I didn't have time was because I had my priorities wrong. I mention this only because I suspect that many of my readers find themselves in the same kind of situation, lacking not in time but in motivation.

A Daily Miracle

The interesting thing about "not having the time" is that we are all given the same number of hours per day. Arnold Bennett wrote that "The supply of time is a daily miracle. . . . You wake up in the morning, and lo! your purse is magically filled with twenty-four hours of the unmanufactured tissue of the universe of life. It's yours! the most precious of your possessions." Our supply of money and even the necessities of life may be easily depleted but, so long as we live, God gives us a fresh supply of time daily.

So, the problem is not a shortage of time, but what we do with what we have.

This was the stinging rebuke that the Prophet Haggai brought to the exiles who had returned to Jerusalem in the days of Shealtiel, the governor of Judah, and Joshua (the same as "Jeshua" in Ezra). They had started to rebuild the temple, but the project soon slowed down and stopped altogether. The people must have excused themselves, saying they were too busy replanting themselves in Jerusalem to have any time left over.

Where Time Goes

That is when Haggai singes them with this question: "Is it a time for you to dwell in your paneled houses while this house (the temple) lies in ruins?" (Haggai 1: 4). It is obvious that the returned exiles are only concerned with material pleasures. It is not that they don't value rebuilding the temple, but that it is too far down their list of priorities.

A weary mother exclaimed, "Where does the time go?" and her little daughter answered, "Why, Mother, your times goes into all the things you do." Or don't do. There is no time to waste, but there is time to help those in need.

Natalie Victor writes of the "24 hours in which to do the one thing needful, instead of 10 or 12 in which to do a dozen. . . ." So where does your time go?

Perhaps the returned exiles think that, once they have all the material pleasures they need, then they will get back to work on the temple, the focus of their religion. But apparently these people would never have enough material pleasures for, no matter how much they have, it never seems to be enough. "You have sown much and harvested little; you eat, but you never have enough; you drink, but you never have your fill; you clothe yourselves, but no one is warm; and he who earns wages earns wages to put them into a bag with holes" (1:6).

These people didn't really have a time problem. They had a stewardship problem and their lives were empty in the midst of material plenty.

What time is it?
Time to do well,
Time to live better,
Give up that grudge,
Answer that letter,
Speak the kind word to sweeten a sorrow,
Do that kind deed you would leave till tomorrow.

Special Note

Lancaster Farming reminds readers that market prices are the result of reports sent to the newspaper by various auctions or USDA reporting services. It would be impossible to check the accuracy of the approximately 115 markets that appear weekly. Editors have always been aware that inflated or inaccurate prices are of no service to anyone and have no place in this publication. Such reports are useless to our readers and take up vital editorial space.

Readers, though, who employ the services of an auction house might recognize incorrect reports from personal experience. When that occurs, please notify the auction house and send a copy, also, to our attention.

We thank you for your input and to auction houses for their cooperation.

CHEESE PRICES FIRMING

- Block and barrel prices higher.
- Butter holds steady.
- Cheese, butter production drops.

USDA reported this week that cheese offerings in much of the U.S. are below expectations. That has lead to a slight firming in prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Block cheese prices rose from $1.1325 per pound during the first half of the week to $1.16 per pound by week's end. Barrel cheese prices rose from $1.1025 per pound to $1.13 per pound over the same period.

The market may be reacting to the latest USDA Dairy Products report that suggests cheese production is slowing. Cumulative cheddar cheese production through April of this year was down 3.6 percent relative to the same period a year ago, and total cheese production was down just 0.6 percent from the same period a year ago. Still, cheese continues to enter the Commodity Credit Corporation under the dairy price support program.

Butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange actually weakened a quarter of a penny this week. But statistically speaking, they held steady. Butter is still almost a full nickel a pound above the support price and surplus cream is finding a home in ice cream production. And USDA's Dairy Products report indicates that cumulative butter production through April of this year was actually 0.8 percent behind a year ago.

I don't mean to sound skeptical, but if cumulative milk production through April is more than one percent ahead of a year ago and cumulative butter and cheese production is behind, where is the extra milk going? That has to be resolved first before I believe cheese and butter processing is slowing down.

In international news, the price of nonfat dry milk in Oceania during the first week in June was $0.77 per pound, just below our support price of $0.80 per pound. Butter at 82 percent milk fat was trading at $0.57 per pound, well below our support price of $1.05 per pound.

Production trends in Europe appear to be strong. That is not the case in New Zealand and Australia, where the milk production season has ended. The new lactation cycle will begin in August/September. New Zealand reported a 2 percent gain in milk production over last year, whereas Australia experienced a 10 percent decline because of drought.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the load plus or minus .30-.40 per pound. Some early weaned lots have a slide of 50-1 00 per pound Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old Estimated lean value is projected to use slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed that the hogs are well-cared for while providing families a livelihood on the farm.

Hog Farming Summit

The summit was sponsored by the Waterkeeper Alliance and featured Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., son of the late U.S. Attorney General and nephew of the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy, as keynote speaker. Other groups organizing the summit included the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), PennFuture, White Dog Cafe Foundation, Global Resource Action Center for the Environment (GRACE), Animal Welfare Institute, and Delaware Riverkeeper Network.

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. of the Waterkeeper Alliance explains his goal of eliminating large-scale, corporate hog farms.

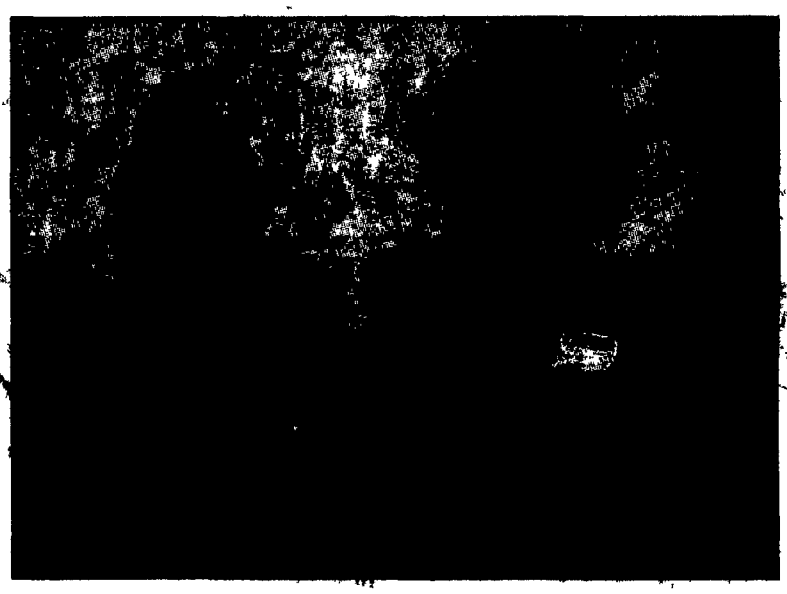
Dozens spoke throughout the day on the various impacts of industrial hog operations and the legal issues surrounding them. A number of sessions also focused on the direct marketing of pasture-raised pork.

Paul Willis of Willis Free Range Pig Farm in Thornton, Iowa, spoke about his farm and marketing operation. Willis is manager of Niman Ranch Pork Company, which sells free-range pork through various outlets across the country.

Willis uses outdoor farrowing pens on pasture and remodeled dairy freestall barns as winter housing. The sows and pigs forage during the growing season and are allowed mobility and access to hay in the wintertime. Straw is used for indoor bedding.

Niman Ranch Pork Company slaughters and processes about 2,000 hogs per week from more than 280 farms that supply it. According to Willis, part of what makes the Niman Ranch enterprise successful is that the taste and eating quality of pastured pork is "dramatically different" from that of hogs raised in confinement. That translates into higher-priced pork chops in stores and restaurants.

"If we're raising the best pigs, we're going to ask the best price," Willis said. He added that some Niman Ranch cuts, such as shoulder, are not priced much above conventional choices.



Barbara Determan, left, former president of the National Pork Producers Council, and Kara Flynn, public relations specialist, say the pork industry has room for both confinement and open-air hog producers.

Paul Willis of Niman Ranch shares pork marketing hints.

Helen Browning of the Wiltshire Downs in the south of England shared her challenges and successes in starting the first organic pig operation in the United Kingdom (U.K.) She founded Eastbrook Farms Organic Meat in the late 1980s on her father's 1,300-acre farm, with the goal of developing a large-scale pastured-pork enterprise.

Browning raises pigs on red and white clover pastures and markets organic pork across the U.K. For sows, she prefers a cross between the Duroc and British Saddleback breeds for good mothering ability as well as meat production.

Pigs are used as part of "a whole farm system," she said. Clover fields reduced to dirt by aggressively foraging pigs are then rotated into crops, including corn, potatoes, and wheat.

It has taken time for Browning to develop a steady wholesale customer base in the U.K. Her marketing plan is constantly updated in order to sell pork from the 600 hogs slaughtered for her markets per week, including some from other farms.

"We've had to work very hard to market our products," Browning said. "Over the years, I suppose we've had a go at most forms of direct marketing. It's been a hair-raising ride."

About five years ago, Browning's business "did a complete turnaround," she said, when she began offered branded products for supermarkets.

Beside selling to supermarkets and restaurants, Browning also offers overnight courier delivery of pork products to homes across the U.K.

Creating a consumer base is prerequisite to selling products raised in alternative farming systems, according to Browning.

"We can only change the way we farm when we change the way the consumer shops," she said.

Contract hog producers attending the summit included, from left, Nate Richard, Caressa Crone, and Craig Richard (father of Nate). The Crone and Richard families say their hog operations have been well-accepted in their communities.

Among those speaking on the adverse effects of industrial hog operations was Dr. John Ikerd, a retired ag economist from the University of Missouri. He spends much of his time writing and speaking about ag sustainability issues.

Ikerd focused on the impact of corporate livestock operations on rural communities, calling them a form of "colonization" similar to the kind that displaced native cultures throughout history.

"These agribusiness corporations are basically colonizing rural America," Ikerd said. "We see communities that are losing control over the local econonomy, culture, and government."

Promises that contract livestock operations will bring economic prosperity to rural communities are hollow, according to Ikerd.

"The money flows out of the community," he said. "We see those areas still economically depressed."

Throughout the day, numerous references were made to the concentration of hogs on the coastal plain of North Carolina and the environmental impacts on waterways and quality of life in the region. A whirlwind of bad publicity for the North Carolina hog industry came to a head in 1999 when Hurricane Floyd flooded the area, causing manure pits to overflow into streams and rivers and dead hogs to float atop of the floodwaters.

A key point made by critics of the North Carolina hog industry is that manure there is not viewed as fertilizer, but as a waste product that is spread simply in order to get rid of it. That, they say, has resulted in illegal spreading practices that wreak havoc on the environment.

Helen Browning of England talks about her challenges and successes marketing organic, pasture-raised pork in the United Kingdom.

According to keynote speaker Kennedy, "In Pennsylvania, that hasn't happened yet, but it's going to."

As president of the New York City-based Waterkeeper's Alliance, Kennedy has been at work bringing lawsuits against corporations that pollute.

Doug Goodlander, director of the State Conservation Commission Nutrient Management Program, said that Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Act is designed to prevent problems like those in North Carolina.

"North Carolina had a poor regulatory system," Goodlander said. "I think we do a good job watching over our water quality here."

Goodlander noted that local conservation districts throughout Pennsylvania are "the eyes and ears" of the nutrient management system.

Jim Brubaker, Lewisburg, responded to some of the ideas put forth by conference speakers. Brubaker, along with his daughter and son-in-law, finishes hogs through contracts with Hostetter Management and Hatfield in three barns with a total capacity for 6,300 head.

"I'm not sure they really have correct information about what is hap-

York Swine Operation Advances

hearing that included testimony from more than 30 local residents and farmers, Craig and Jennifer Metzler found out they will be allowed to move ahead with their plans to build two 2,200-unit hog barns in Peach Bottom Township.

At the end of the four-hour meeting June 6, township supervisors announced that a draft ordinance designed to limit hog finishing operations to 750 head would not apply to the Metzler's project because the Metzlers had applied for a permit before the proposed law to limit CAFOs (concentrated animal feeding operations) was made public.

Supervisors also decided to postpone voting on the ordinance, saying a number of its provisions need to be reviewed based on resident input.

Residents of Susquehanna Trails, a nearby residential community of some 1,000 homes, have raised an outcry since learning about a month ago of the Metzlers' plans to build the hog houses. Gilbert Malone, township solicitor, drafted the ordinance to limit CAFOs and advertised it to the public on May19.

The Metzlers had begun planning for the project after learning in February that they had been approved by the Farm Service Agency (FSA) for a low-interest loan to help them buy the farm through the USDA's Young Farmer Program.

The federal government has owned the abandoned 90-acre farm since 1999. The FSA put it up for sale to qualified young farmer applicants early this year. To be eligible for the program, young farmers must be purchasing a farm for the first time and have farm management experience.

Craig Metzler, 28, manages 100,000 broilers and a 300-400 steer feeding operation for Star Rock Farms on a property less than a mile from the FSA farm. According to Metzler, he was randomly chosen from a handful of qualified applicants to receive a loan of up $200,000 at 5 percent interest to purchase the farm. The Metzler's received the balance of the financing through People's Bank.

"When we were chosen, obviously we were pretty excited about it," Metzler said.

Possible options for adequate cash flow included putting in a 450-cow dairy operation or a 4,400-hog setup. The Metzlers chose hogs because of labor limitations and other drawbacks they saw in the dairy plan.

A number of Susquehanna Trail residents at the June 6 meeting opposed the hog operation, saying they were worried the two 226-by-82 foot hog barns would cause odor problems and reduce property values in their neighborhood, located in a wooded area to the east, on the other side of Rt. 851. The nearest downwind residence stands about 1,000 feet away, according to Randy Hoover, an engineer with TeamAg agricultural consulting.

Hoover worked on manure storage design and erosion measures at the five-acre site. He said the planning process is geared toward reducing odors and any other environmental problems as much as possible.

"I think (Metzler) has pretty much located the barns the best he can to be cost-effective," Hoover said.

Gases from the hog barns will be released via exhaust fans on the east side of the buildings. A woodlot between the hog facilities and Susquehanna Trails would help filter out odors, according to Hoover.

Some residents wondered if the barns could be situated differently so that gases wouldn't be released in the direction of their pening in Pennsylvania," Brubaker said.

Brubaker said that a portion of the hog manure from his operation is used to fertilize crops on his 325-acre farm and the rest is given away to neighboring farmers who are happy to have it.

"It's providing a resource that's used in the area," he said. "Neighbors as a rule are anxious to get manure.

"We really see ourselves as sustainable," said Brubaker, who had his first facility for contract hogs built in the early 1990s. "It's enabled our three children to farm. After 10 years, we're pleased with it."

Brubaker, who ran an independent farrowing operation prior to the early 1990s, said he has a good relationship with his neighbors.

"I think we had more complaints when we had 120 sows than we do now," he said.

Caressa Crone is a hog producer from Danville, Northumberland County. A family partnership on the 2,500-acre Pinehurst Acres farm includes her husband Richard and his parents. The Crones manage two 2,200-head hog finishing facilities.

"I'm disappointed at some of the mistruths I've been hearing," Crone said of the hog summit. "I'm not quite sure why we're getting all the potshots. We're not saying 'let's exclude (free-range producers).'"

The Crones use a commercial sorting barn that allows for more efficient hog sorting and monitoring. From Penn State, they are also building a digester that will use the gas to heat facilities and help prevent odors. Manure is pumped directly to the digester. Storage under the barn hold both the raw and digested manures, eliminating the need for another storage structure.

"We've taken a very responsible role as farmers, because it's our livelihood," Crone said.

As far as accepting producers who want to raise free-range hogs, "I think there's room for both of us. We have to give consumers the choice." Crone said.

Managing the hogs for an outside corporate owner provides income stability, according to Crone.

"I would not want to own the pigs myself," she said. "I need a guaranteed income.

"My perception is that my product is just as good as (free-range) pork," Crone added.

Also on hand at the conference were Craig Richard and his son Nate, age 20. The Richards run two 2,350-head hog finishing barns in Columbia County and farm about 1,900 acres. Nate is an agribusiness major at Penn State and said he hopes to be able to return to a viable farming operation.

One tool the Richards use to control odor problems when spreading manure is a commercial odor-reducing applicator. According to Craig, the implement cuts odors by at least 50 percent and improves nitrogen utilization. The applicator works by poking holes in the soil and then blowing the manure into the holes. It can also be used simply as a soil aerator.

Craig Richard said he doesn't believe so-called sustainable farming methods will be able to provide enough food to U.S. consumers.

"Sure, that might be a nice way to farm," he said. "But there's no way sustainable ag is going to feed this country."

Representatives from the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) at the summit expressed similar views.

"I'm pleased that these producers have found their niche," said Barb Determan, former NPPC president and independent hog farmer from Iowa. "I hate to see them tearing down other parts of the industry."

Determan's family operation markets 3,000 hogs per year and makes use of risk management strategies such as forward contracting.

A new "environmental matrix" program in Iowa has made the permitting process tougher and credits producers who employ the best management practices, Determan said.

York Swine Operation Advances

homes to the east.

Metzler said he would be willing to consider resituating the barns if plans showed it to be feasible. He also said he is committed to carrying out all possible best management practices to help eliminate odors.

The facilities are designed for six to eight months of manure storage in concrete pits underneath the hog floors. Metzler said he would need to spread manure two or three times a year. Seventy percent of the manure will need to be "exported" to other farms, as required by the Pennsylvania Nutrient Management Act.

A natural ridge between the hog site and the homes will be built up higher, and Metzler said he is willing to plant trees on top of it to further buffer odors.

"Basically, I have told the township that I will commit to doing all the best management practices that I can," he said.

According to Gilbert Malone, the 90-acre farm will allow for adequate recharge of the groundwater supply to compensate for the 12,000 gallons a day used by the hogs.

Shelly Dehoff, a York County resident and public liason with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Lancaster County Conservation District, reported after the meeting on conversations she had with local real estate appraisers and lenders regarding the effect of CAFOs on property values.

"Overall, they seemed to indicate that there may be a brief drop in property values, based on the perception that there could be problems stemming from the CAFO," Dehoff said, "although, of the six appraisers I talked to, no one would even comment on a percentage or amount.

"They seemed to indicate that as long as the CAFO is well-maintained and well-operated, there will not be a long-term problem from the operation, and there will not be a long-term negative effect on residential property values in the area surrounding the CAFO."

A number of farmers and other supporters of the Metzler's plans spoke on the importance of large-scale livestock operations to the future of agriculture in the township.

"There seems to be many powers destroying the good image of the family farm," said Bonnie Hushon, a dairy farmer in the township. "What is a farm if it's not going to be a viable operation?"

Dave Gemmill, a farmer and Peach Bottom Township resident, also supported Metzler's plan to build the hog houses.

"What (Metzler) is preparing to do, very few young men have the opportunity to do," Gemmill said, noting that the average age of U.S. farmers is 54 years.

Robert Scarborough, a Peach Bottom Township resident and an assistant to Pennsylvania Senator Mike Waugh (R-28), defended the Metzlers' plans and asked that the CAFO ordinance be dropped.

"I'm concerned that the driving movement behind this is a national movement against progressive agriculture," he said. According to Scarborough, operations such as that proposed by the Metzlers are needed to provide food to the nation.

"I contend that we will remain free as a country only so far as we are able to feed ourselves," he said.

The proposed ordinance would also limit dairy and beef operations, capping mature dairy cow numbers at 200 and cow/calf beef herds at 300.

Scott Cooper, a local dairyman with a herd of 60 cows, said the ordinance would put too much of a squeeze on farming in the township.

"For agriculture to remain viable, these numbers are not acceptable," he said.

None of the residents speaking at the meeting said they had any worries about odors from large cow herds. Many of them expressed support for farming in general while also airing their fears of having a hog CAFO near their homes.

"I have a lot of respect for farming," said Donald Vaughan, a township resident for eight years. "But this (proposed hog operation) is not just a farm — it's a plant."

Dave Stewart, chairman of the board of supervisors and a farmer himself, said he was originally opposed to the hog barns, but is now supportive of the Metzlers' plans.

Stewart, along with other township officials and several residents, recently toured several area hog CAFOs in a trip put on by the York County Farm Bureau. Stewart said he was impressed with the low level of odor he found on the sites.

"Everything has been getting better over the years with odors in pig farming," Stewart said.

"It's seems to me like everybody's disgusted and the only thing that stinks is pigs."

Supervisor John Johnson suggested that CAFO issues be studied further before voting on the ordinance. Supervisors Stewart and Joe Ailes agreed.

Several residents expressed the wish for greater cooperation between farmers and community residents.

"We've wasted a lot of time and emotion tonight," resident Sam McConnell told the board. "Make an ordinance that allows everybody to work together."

Denise Cable, a Susquehanna Trails resident, said that large-scale hog producers should be required to do water testing, pay manure shipping fees, and have setbacks greater than 300 feet (as proposed in the ordinance) with consideration of prevailing winds.

Penn State and other universities are working to develop more improved technologies to handle odors. These technologies are part of the planning process before any facilities are constructed.

"We honor the noble profession of farming," Cable said. "Bottom line, we just want to know if Mr. Metzler is going to be a good neighbor. What kind of middle ground can we come to?"

About 100 people attended the meeting.

Craig and Jennifer Metzler with sons Benjamin, 3, and Jere, 3 months.

A Plan For Pennsylvania

Yet, farmers own 27 percent of the state's land mass. Our current system of funding schools primarily through property taxes means that farmers have been carrying far more than their fair share of the burden.

What makes the current property tax system for school funding even worse is that it isn't fair in how funds are distributed to schools, either. Under our current system, the gap between our wealthiest schools and our poorest schools has widened to more than $193,000 per classroom. Pennsylvania now ranks 46th among all states when it comes to school funding equity. And, rural schools have consistently been on the short end of the stick. This limits opportunities for our young people to learn the skills they need, it limits new business creation, and it encourages rural youth to leave their communities for better opportunities elsewhere.

Gov. Rendell's Plan for a New Pennsylvania begins with an average 30 percent reduction in property taxes. For farmers, that means an immediate reduction in their production costs. It means higher net farm income, and welcome relief in these challenging times for commodity prices. The tax relief applies to homesteads and farmsteads, including those enrolled in the "Clean and Green" program.

The governor's plan sends $1.5 billion in new state funding back to our school districts from a variety of sources to offset local property tax reductions. It brings the state's overall commitment to school funding to a full 50 percent and, for rural school districts, means a 23 percent increase in funding. Rural school districts also will be eligible for salary incentives to help them hire and keep good teachers in math and science.

One of the new revenue sources is a gradual income tax increase, an effort to place the burden of school funding on those best able to pay for it. At the same time, the governor recognizes that many families in Pennsylvania are struggling with unemployment and jobs that don't pay living wages. Many businesses are struggling to keep their doors open. Many farmers have been struggling to be profitable in their farm operations, and have sought off-farm jobs to help make ends meet. Under the governor's plan, the income tax forgiveness program is increased to allow a family of four with an income up to $32,000 to pay no state income taxes, and other low-income families to have income tax relief.

For as long as I can remember, farmers have talked about Pennsylvania's property tax system with frustration. And, for more than 20 years, state policy makers have looked at other ways to fund local needs. Finally, there is a workable package on the table. Now, it's up to all of us to let our legislators know that this is the time to act.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County 4-H Strawberry Roundup was conducted Wednesday at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster. A total of 52 4-H members participated. Youth participated in activities including writing thank-you notes, making strawberry milkshakes, and decorating garden aprons while their project books and berries were judged.

Judges who volunteered their time for this year's event included John Shenk (berry judge), Lou Middleton (book judge), Jessica Schmidt (book judge), and Heidi Gyorke (book judge).

Following the activity and judging, 4-H members and their families joined the Rotary Club for lunch, followed by an auction of the strawberries exhibited. Harold Keller, who has served as auctioneer of this event for more than 30 years, volunteered his services again this year. Rotary members contributed a total of $1,878.75 toward the 4-H members' projects.

Grand champion and reserve champions were named in two divisions. In Division 2 (youth exhibiting berries for the first time), Danielle Youndt of Ephrata was named grand champion, receiving $175 for her quart of berries, and Evan Gainer of Mountville was named reserve champion, receiving a bid of $90. In Division 3 (youth who have exhibited berries before), Kristofer Bucher of Manheim was named grand champion, receiving $300 for his winning berries, and his brother, Kenton Bucher, also of Manheim, was named reserve champion, receiving a bid of $110. First-year members, who exhibited books only, received premium ribbons and a small cash prize.

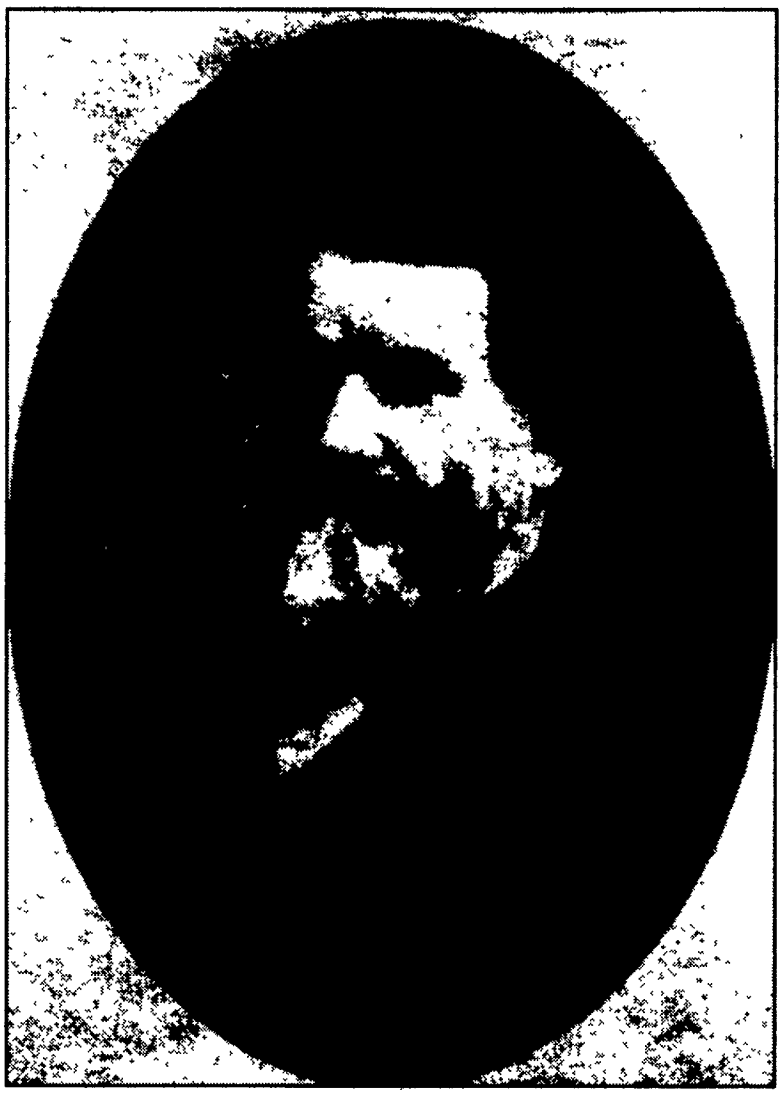
McCormick Founded 1847



Cyrus McCormick invented a mechanical grain reaper in 1831, patented it in 1834, and founded the McCormick Harvesting Company in 1847. The McCormick company was predecessor to International Harvester, and its philosophy, principles, and machinery.

1,000 models sold by their nearest competitor." Trapani said.

Case IH has roots from 1831, when Cyrus McCormick invented the reaper. The company built trucks, bulldozers, construction equipment, refrigeration, milking equipment — "everything a man in a rural area needed to farm," Trapani said.

At one time, IH was named the eighth largest business in the U. S. The company had lumber, steel, and coal mining operations that enabled them to process every tractor and equipment piece from start to finish. For instance, the forges were run with coal to form the steel.

Despite "Red Power's" popularity and size, the company went out of business in 1985.

"Not because they didn't have customers. It was sort of an 'Enron' thing," Trapani said of financial mismanagement.

Some of the company's branches were sold to other companies. Part of the company continued manufacturing trucks, which today are sold under the International name. The tractor division was sold to Case IH, which had been making orange tractors. Case IH changed their color to red.

"The color is half the secret (to success). It's all about that beautiful red paint. There's nothing like a red tractor," Trapani said.

Cub Cadet, which focuses on lawn and garden equipment, eventually assumed Case IH's tractor line.

Trapani, who sells outdoor power equipment, says the little dealers were pushed out because only big operations are desired by tractor companies.

The demise of the International Harvester company certainly does not deter its devotees.

"People like to come (to the shows) and see all the equipment, especially that odd piece they never saw before." Trapani said.

Tractors and equipment varied from area to area. The South had high crop tractors to harvest cotton and the tractors used LP gas. Because of huge acreage to be farmed, the West had larger tractors than Pennsylvania. In addition to the known models, some strange-looking pieces continue to show up at shows — odd pieces that were put together to meet a particular need.

"Just one more piece," say collectors such as Trapani, who look for anything connected to the IH company. In addition to tractors and farm machinery, Trapani collects toys, a whole series of pedal tractors, memorabilia, hats, old clothing, "no matter what — even greased-stained mechanics clothing," he said.

Trapani has collected tractor models, including the 1937 F12, 1931 1020, 1937 F20, IH 1947, 1951 Farmall M and H models, and a 1954 IH400. He figures it takes about a year, working about 10-15 hours a week, to tear a tractor apart, fix it, paint it, and put it back together.

Slaughter Cattle Weekly Review

Oklahoma City, Okla.
June 6, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL SLAUGHTER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending June 6: Slaughter cattle live basis steady, dressed basis steady to 1.00 lower. Extremely large packer margins caused cattle feeders to price cattle well over the 80.00 mark at the outset of this trading week. Packers resisted higher prices early and were able to obtain cattle by Thursday at steady money due to leveling out of the run away beef market and sharp decline in futures market. Cattle feeders have little resolve to require more money despite huge packer profits. The looming border situation and heavy placements leave little room to back up cattle now. Feeders and packers alike know that cattle movement must continue at the fast pace established last February in order to avoid a build up of supply this summer and fall. So long as slaughter cattle are making a decent profit packers should enjoy strong margins with little resistance by sellers. Boxed beef prices Friday a.m. at an average of 140.14 down 93 cents from last Friday. Sales of slaughter cattle on a national basis for negotiated cash trades were a modest 180,500 through 10:00 a.m. Friday with trade not underway until Thursday. Last week's full count was large due to light movement prior to the holiday week and totaled 317,200 head.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Friday, June 6, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending June 6 — Total Receipts: 331,900, last week 277,100; last year 280,400. Direct: 97,800, last week 83,300, last year 57,800. Video/Internet: 1,000, last week 31,300, last year None. Auctions: 233,100, last week 162,500, last year 222,600 This week's reported auction volume included 48 percent over 600 lb and 44 percent heifers. Compared to last week, feeder and stocker cattle sold firm to 3.00 higher on heavier receipts and very good demand Several auction markets quoted price trends as much as 6.00 higher, but many of these salebarns were either closed last week for the holiday or had very light receipts. After sparking last week in Kansas and Oklahoma, direct trading for late-summer and early-fall delivery turned very active in Texas as the Panhandle area finally received some moisture. Several weeks ago, we were all under the assumption that both market-ready slaughter cattle and yearling feeders were in short supply. Its funny how numbers come out of the woodwork when the price gets right.

Good old supply and demand has allowed packers to purchase huge numbers of semi-fat cattle for the last several weeks, and feeder cattle receipts continue to run much larger than year ago figures. Slaughter cattle prices are entering the summer months at a higher level than anytime in history, causing feedlot buyers to become extremely aggressive to fill empty pens and sellers are taking advantage of the hot market.

Who says the packer, feeder, backgrounder, and cow/calf man can't all be happy at the same time? For once, these four cowboys can travel to the rodeo in the same pickup. There has been a legitimate chance for a 100.00 per head profit at every level for the same steer. It makes these guys wonder where all the gravy has been going for the last several years. In any event, beef continues to fly off the shelves and there is still a line to get in the Outback Steakhouse. No one wants to upset the apple cart and the entire industry holds their breath when the word Canada is spoken. For now, this weeks estimated cattle slaughter was the largest in a quarter century and cattle still brought 80.00. Wheat harvest is underway and this years corn looks to be a bumper crop.

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Cattle Weekly

Springfield, Ill.
Report Supplied By USDA

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Cattle Summary — Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio: Feeder cattle were 4.00-7.00 higher compared to last week's light market test. Stronger slaughter cattle prices, the continued ban on Canadian cattle imports due to the confirmed case of BSE and tight supplies of cattle in some areas combined to support the market. Reported sales consisted of about 30% beef steers, 70% heifers and 0% Holstein steers. Approximately 74% of the cattle marketed this week weighed over 600 lbs. Confirmed sales 1550 this week, 750 last week and 450 last year.

FEEDER STEERS: Medium and Large 1-2: 425-550 lbs 103.00-108.00; 725-875 lbs 84.00-85.00.

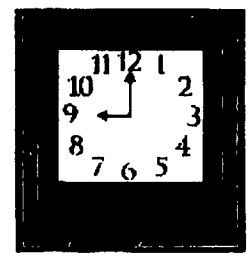
THE TIME IS RIGHT!

To Feed
SCHNUPP'S Flame KISSED



ROASTED GRAIN

Its time to lower those feed prices.
With extremely low grain prices and the modest price for roasting, your grain can be turned into a valuable feed commodity

Its time to trim away those extra cost factors.
Custom roasting on your farm
- Gives you the ability to feed your own grain, not someone else's
- Eliminates trucking expenses
- No mill charges, shrinkage, storage and handling

Its time to value feeding grains that have been purged.
Only flame roasting can effectively remove molds and reduce toxins to tolerant levels Better herd health will
- Reduce veterinary and breeding bills
- Enhance production of milk
- Increase weight gains in beef and swine

All-American Offers Junior Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The All-American Dairy Show offers more activities and competitions to youth than any other national show. One of the most exciting and rewarding is the Junior Dairy Management Contest, which will be Tuesday, Sept. 23.

This top quality contest challenges the youth competitor's knowledge, skills, and financial management that are needed by today's dairy farmers to make important decisions, and to be successful in the modern dairy industry.

The contest will begin with registration requiring all contestants and coaches to report to Superintendent Dr. Michael O'Connor in the lobby between meeting rooms A and B on the second floor of the main Farm Show Building (facing Maclay Street). Sign in will be from 8:30 a.m. to 9:15 a.m. The actual contest will begin at 9:30 am and awards will be announced at 3 p.m.

For more information and/or entry forms for this contest or any event, contact the All-American Dairy Show office at (717) 787-2905 or e-mail aads@state.pa.us.

Farm Show Plans

Nielsen said one of his career accomplishments he's most proud of was his work in helping restore the viability of family doctors in the state. From 1987 to 1998, he served with the Pennsylvania Academy of Family Physicians (PAFP) based in Harrisburg, including acting as its CEO and executive vice president.

"Family doctors were the Rodney Dangerfield of the health care system," Nielsen said, referring to the famous comedian and his trademark line, "I don't get no respect."

Nielsen said he helped position PAFP as a leading public policy health advocate for patients and primary care health professionals in the state and in the U.S. Congress. That "put primary care and family doctors on the map," he said.

Although he has no career experience in agriculture, Nielsen said that he recognizes agriculture as the foundation of the Farm Show Complex.

"I want to build on agriculture," he said. "Farmers are the heart and soul of our country."

Farmers are sometimes cast as Rodney Dangerfields of the agriculture system, according to Nielsen. He aims to change that perception.

Nielsen said he sees the Farm Show as an "icon" for Pennsylvanians and other visitors to promote agriculture's good image. He wants farmers to have a sense of ownership in the Complex.

"I want this to be a place where, when you go by, you can say 'this is the place that I built,'" Nielsen said.

Nielsen hopes to increase the list of exhibitors and associations that use the Farm Show Complex for events year-round.

"The business we're in here is exhibitions," he said.

"The challenge right now is to develop a world-class marketing campaign."

Since 2000, Nielsen has served as president of Global Strategic Services, an international consulting service for associations and nonprofit organizations based in Harrisburg. For the past two years, he has also been CEO of the Pennsylvania Alliance for Association Advancement.

His experience also includes serving from 1998-2000 as CEO and president of the International Association of Convention and Visitor Bureaus in Washington, D.C.

2003 Farm Show exhibitors and potential exhibitors are invited to a dinner and presentation at the Farm Show Complex on Wednesday, June 18 at 6 p.m.

The meeting will provide an update on plans for the 2004 Farm Show. Dennis Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture and the Commercial Ag Exhibit Committee will be on hand at the dinner.

Exhibitors planning to attend should respond to Deborah Trump at (717) 787-5373 by Monday, June 16 at 4 p.m. (See attached invitation.)

Nielsen noted that the door remains open to all agricultural industries and promotion of their events through the Farm Show. He said the Farm Show will promote more agricultural events then it has in the past.

The problem, he noted, is the success the Farm Show Complex renovations and additions have created, and living up to the expectations of the many people who use the show.

Some critics were wary of the lack of dairy equipment suppliers and service providers at this year's Farm Show. That will change for 2004's show.

Nielsen said he is trying to achieve a "balance" in terms of covering all agricultural industries. Dairy is critical, also, and the "door is going to be wide open" to improve the state's number one ag industry — dairy. A milking facility for the new Farm Show is in discussion.

At the Farm Show exhibitor banquet scheduled Wednesday June 18, Nielsen will speak about how the Farm Show Complex will continue to undergo improvements. He noted three areas in which the Complex will continue to grow:

- Continued overall improvement of service.
- Providing more global and international events at the complex, and "even more on the agricultural side."
- More professional customer service, he said.

Nielsen can be reached at (717) 787-5373.

Ohio Hosts 10th Annual Horse Progress Days

MT. HOPE, Ohio – For the first time in five years, Horse Progress Days will return to Mt. Hope, Ohio, on July 4 and 5. This two-day event will showcase the latest in horse-drawn farming and logging equipment.

Field demonstrations will range from one-horse implements for small truck farmers to larger equipment requiring multiple horses, including a 12-horse hitch.

Manufacturers' and vendors' displays will offer a selection of horse-drawn equipment and equine supplies.

Whether you have a small wood lot or acres of timberland, you won't want to miss the logging demonstrations. Discover the benefits of animal-powered logging for both the land and the landowner. Virginia logger Jason Rutledge, a leader in sustainable forestry, will be presenter.

Horse-drawn wagons will run to and from the Mt. Hope Auction, the parking lots and the nearby fields where the demonstrations will take place.

Clinics and seminars will address equine health topics such as West Nile virus and will cover a variety of other subjects, including horse conformation judging and learning to drive a team, plus a comparison of British vs. U.S. horse farming.

Admission is $5 per person per day, and parking is free. For information, phone (330) 852-4603. On the web at www.ruralheritage.com/progress.

OPINION

I believe it is time for a change in tactics before it is too late. Almost every producer in Maryland farms less than three hours from a major metropolitan area. This should give us a huge advantage, but to this point it has not. This is the time for agriculture to look outside its normal comfort zone and shift the political focus to the development of economically sustainable highly diversified agriculture.

Many of the current issues faced by the state, county, and municipal governments regarding sprawl, development pressure, impact fees, tax increases, and needs for more and larger roads can be significantly reduced if agricultural land, communities, and farmers are preserved, because they can continue to make a living from the land. The interests of agriculture and all the residents of the state have never been so close. It is time to develop policies, procedures, and programs that encourage grocery stores, restaurants, and schools to use more locally produced food.

Concepts such as a Maryland cheese factory that would provide producers with the opportunity to develop value-added markets for their milk could be a first step. Maryland and its counties have provided incentives for industry to come into the state and to renovate old abandoned sites and add jobs in their communities. It is time that we focus these dollars and incentives on an industry that is already here and is considered the preferred land use by many counties in central and western Maryland.

Maryland is an egg deficit state, but producers are not even paid enough by processors per dozen to cover the cost of production. If grocery stores could be offered some type of incentives by the state — such as some kind of tax break to carry a certain percentage of Maryland-produced eggs, and if program money could be spent to educate consumers as to the benefits of local production — these eggs could be sold at a premium price, which would be returned to the producer.

I have spoken to producers that would modify their current production systems to suit market demands if there is a price premium. This is only one example of an alternative idea to current policies, which spend money to preserve land instead of preserving viable producers. This type of effort could prevent vastly more sprawl and land development at a lower cost to the taxpayer than any development rights purchase that could ever be done.

The possibilities for other crops such as vegetables, fruit, meat, and even grain products are limited only by how much the citizens of the state care about the condition which they live in.

When agricultural issues can be couched in a way that the consumers of the state can relate to — such as preventing tax increases, relieving congestion, reducing pressure on school systems, reducing fuel consumption, food security, maintenance of Maryland's rural vistas, and improved environmental quality — the foundation for understanding of common interest and cooperation between urban and rural can be achieved. All this could be done while providing a wide variety of high quality food for Maryland consumers and giving producers a much better chance of survival and even of thriving.

In an effort to accomplish this, dialogue has begun, and I believe that an agricultural component of the smart growth package that focuses on increased economic sustainability of farms and incentives for markets to handle local food will be the lowest cost solution to sprawl in Maryland, allowing other funds to be used for urban projects.

Auction To Benefit Therapeutic Riding Program

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Saturday, June 21, Lancaster County Therapeutic Riding, Inc., will conduct its 7th Annual Benefit Auction at the Bareville Fire Hall (Route 23) beginning at 5 p.m.

According to Barry Handwerger, chairman of fundraising for the program, "Last year's auction was our best ever. There were approximately 700 items that went up for bid, all donated by generous area businesses and individuals. Committee members, volunteers, riders, and their families are all working hard to make this year's auction even more successful."

Among the items featured this year will be plants, baked goods, automotive supplies, Suk Shuglie print and poster, four Good Year tires, handmade crafts and items, collectibles, Smucker's Bells, theme baskets, pictures, furniture, gift certificates/services, 50/50 cash raffle, and so much more.

All proceeds from the auction will directly benefit Lancaster County Therapeutic Riding, Inc., a non-profit organization which provides healing for children and adults with a variety of physical, mental, and emotional disabilities. Therapeutic horseback riding offers many benefits to the riders, including improvement in their balance, strength, range of motion, coordination, and self-confidence.

The program operates out of Greystone Manor Stables near Leola and runs from March through December. Sessions are taught by riding instructors and therapists. Riders are assisted by a person leading the horse and two sidewalkers initially. For more information on the program or to donate items for the auction, you may call (717) 615-9222.

Barry Handwerger, fundraising chairman, and Robbin Flegal (left) show just a few of the many items that will go up for bid at the Annual Benefit Auction for Lancaster County Therapeutic Riding, Inc., Saturday, June 21, beginning at 5 p.m. at Bareville Fire Hall.

The Water Resources Planning Act: What's Ahead?

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — With the soggy spring the region has experienced, water was an appropriate topic to discuss for the 20 poultry producers and industry representatives who gathered for a Penn State-sponsored meeting at Kreider's Restaurant Monday.

Leon Ressler, extension director for Lancaster County, discussed the Water Resources Planning Act and the State Water Plan. The act, Act 220, passed last year by Pennsylvania legislature, is an attempt to create a new State Water Plan within five years. That plan would then be updated every five years.

"It's a very comprehensive act," said Ressler. The legislation is meant to "develop an inventory of conservation measures and look at water supply alternatives," said Ressler. "The goal is to assess what we have and make water availability and water supply part of our long-term plan" for future growth in Pennsylvania.

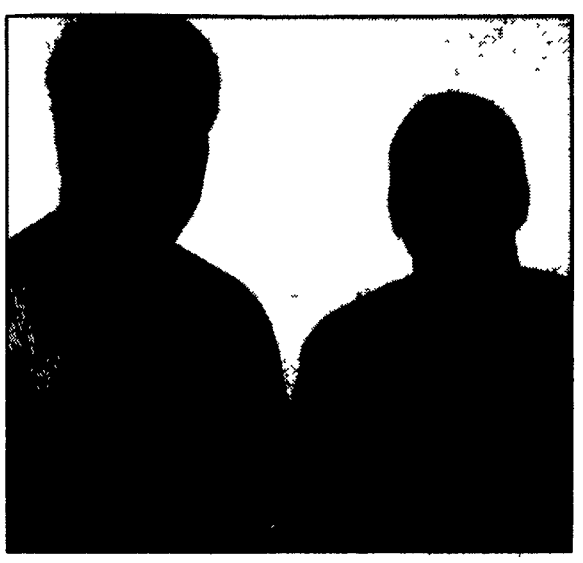
The act was passed to help "identify where potential shortage areas are in advance" to help make management decisions.



At left Gregory Martin, poultry extension agent, is joined by Leon Ressler, extension director for Lancaster County, who spoke at a poultry meeting Monday.

The plan would address how much water the commonwealth has, how much water residents use, and what Pennsylvania will need for the future, according to Ressler.

A Statewide Water Resources Committee and six regional committees will develop the State Water Plan. The statewide committee will submit the final plan to the secretary of DEP for final approval.

The statewide committee will have 24 members representing various government, environmental, industrial, educational, and agricultural organizations. The regional committees have 22 members, also from various groups.

The purpose of the plan, according to Ressler, will be to provide information for state and local officials and Pennsylvania citizens to help alleviate future water problems and allow for educated planning of water use.

The legislation is to provide information for planning purposes only, and does not include regulations for metering.

The document will provide information on water availability and provide guidance to reduce risks of flooding, shortages, and conflicts between water users, besides encouraging multiple uses of water resources.

The plan includes a registration process for anyone using more than 10,000 gallons per day. There are no fees for registering. The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) will handle registrations, which will be updated on a five-year cycle.

One of the parts of the act is to identify the Critical Water Planning Areas, which will be identified by the Regional Water Resources Committee. In these areas, water demand exceeds, or is projected to exceed, supply.

The regional committees will also guide development of Critical Area Resources Plans for watersheds. These plans, said Ressler, will address "water availability and water quality and quantity," said Ressler.

As far as implementation, in 2003 the committees will be established and the initial registration process will begin. The committees will begin to conduct meetings — for their own committee and public meetings to gather public input — in 2004.

"It's going to be an extensive process," said Ressler. "The good news is that there's lots of opportunity for public input. Generally, when we have broad opportunity for public input, that's better than someone doing it behind the scenes."

Luzerne County DHIA Honors Conyngham

WEST PITTSTON (Luzerne Co.) — With more than 50 years of service to Luzerne County DHIA, William (Bill) L. Conyngham, Shavertown, was recently recognized at the 73rd annual meeting.

More than 65 current and past DHIA members and guests attended the dinner.

Representing Pennsylvania DHIA was Dean Amick, Jim Garrity, Scot Krieble, and John Castrogiovanni, with a presentation of a Penn State Nittany Lion to Conyngham. Also in attendance was retired Penn State Cooperative Extension Agents Everell (Cy) Chadwick and Bob Houston.

Attending the special recognition of Bill Conyngham (seated) are his daughter Cornelia Romonowski, and son Frank Conyngham.

Recognition also went to Paul Stoss Jr., Lehighton, for most improved herd by milk; Edsel and Scott Rinehimer, Wapwallopen, for most improved herd by butterfat; and Eric Stevens, Shickshinny, for most improved herd by protein. Edsel and Scott Rinehimer also received recognition for highest cow by milk, butterfat, and protein.

Down Cows: A Three-Part Series For June Dairy Month

What Is The Diagnosis And Prognosis?

Peter Dippel, DVM

This article is the first in a three-part series discussing down cows. The first part addresses common causes of down cows, followed by information about the diagnosis and treatment options of down cows in upcoming issues. Dippel is a veterinarian with Lancaster Veterinary Associates, Salunga.

SALUNGA (Lancaster Co.) — During my eight years as a dairy cow veterinarian, I've come been called out hundreds of times for down cows.

If there is one area in which I see some room for improvement on dairy farms, it would be in the area of down cow management. I've seen great down cow management but I've also seen poor down cow management, which resulted in the needless loss of the cow.

Hopefully these articles will give the producer a better idea of how to successfully diagnose what the problem is and how to successfully treat a down cow.

There are many reasons why cows go down and can't get up, but the top three that I've seen are from milk fever (low levels of calcium in the blood), calving paralysis (obturator or sciatic nerve paralysis), and from musculoskeletal problems due to trauma, i.e. slipping, splitting out, etc.

Sometimes these three can overlap, with one cause predisposing the cow to another.

For example, a cow that is down with milk fever might develop extensive muscle damage in her legs because she was down too long on the cement.

Other causes of down cows might be coliform mastitis, cancer in the spinal cord, heat stress, allergic reaction, nervous ketosis, severe arthritis, acute blood loss, and many others.

Any time a cow is physically weak from any disease process, she has the potential to not be able to lift herself up. Once a cow is down, a dairy producer needs to assess the situation and look at the cow and her circumstances.

Milk Fever?

One of the first things a producer should note is if she is recently fresh. If she has calved within the last 24 hours, or is even up to several days fresh, there is a chance that she has milk fever.

Even close up, dry cows can be affected with milk fever. If she is a first calf heifer it is almost certainly not milk fever, although it is possible.

Cows with milk fever usually do not eat or drink, have a high heart rate, and have widely dilated pupils. Some cows will stick out their tongues when approached. Their temperature can be high or low depending on the environmental temperature, because they generally lose the ability to regulate it.

For example, in the wintertime, their ears are cold and their temperatures are usually low (below 100 degrees) and in the summer they are usually high (above 103).

Their head often times is back to the side or their neck is in a "S" shape.

If they have been down a long time (more than a few hours) they sometimes start to bloat and have trouble breathing, and if they are down longer than that they can sometimes lapse into a coma where they are totally nonresponsive to outside stimuli.

If the dairy producer suspects milk fever, calcium should be immediately administered intravenously — usually one bottle (10-12 grams calcium) given slowly. It is best to listen to the heart while administering the treatment.

For really big cows two bottles may be necessary if the first one doesn't get her up. Cows that are down due solely to milk fever usually have a dramatic response and will get up in a matter of minutes.

This response to treatment also can be used as a great diagnostic tool as well. For example, if a cow that is down but not showing the classic signs of milk fever, administering a bottle of calcium anyway, to see what happens, may reveal that she most likely had milk fever if she gets up in a few minutes or within an hour.

If not, then there is some other reason as to why she is down. This can be a little risky, because too much calcium can stop the heart, so always make sure to give it slowly, especially if you're not sure if milk fever is the problem.

It is advisable to give a bottle over at least five minutes while listening to the heart rate. If the heart rate drops too low (less than 50 beats per minute), or if the heart rate suddenly increases or starts to become erratic, slow down the treatment.

More Calcium

If she gets up, she may need more bottles of calcium at a later time, or calcium administered orally. It may also be helpful to give a cow that had milk fever a tube of calcium gel (or calcium drench) a few hours after I.V. treatment to prevent any relapses.

She might need 1-2 tubes per day for a few days until her own body can start mobilizing the calcium from her bones that she needs — especially older cows.

Because a down cow may not have the proper muscle function needed to swallow normally, administering calcium orally has proven inefficient. Because of impaired muscle function, some gel or drench might end up going down the trachea.

Do not give oral calcium to treat milk fevers, but only once she is standing to prevent relapses. Many dairymen ask veterinarians if they should continue to milk the cow after she has had milk fever.

There is some credibility to this argument, because the cow will be producing less milk, producing less of a drain of calcium on her body, therefore there will be a less chance of milk fever over the next several days.

There are disadvantages, however, such as possibly causing mastitis, and possibly reducing the amount of milk that she can produce in this lactation.

As a rule, producers should milk the cow normally and treat the milk fever again if she relapses.

Well Bedded Area

Due to the possibility of milk fever in fresh cows, it is important to keep all fresh cows in a well bedded area for a few days after they freshen. (In a tie-stall barn, stalls with mattresses are OK).

Thus, if they go down they are not on cement, but softer ground, which is less likely to cause damage to their legs. It does not take long to cause severe muscle or nerve damage to a cow's legs while she is unable to get up.

This is a picture of a down cow. What is your diagnosis and your prognosis? Hint: she just freshened with a big calf.

Cows weigh a lot, and all that weight pressing down on one leg for an extended period of time on cement or on a hard surface can cause damage to muscles and nerves in the leg, resulting in a down cow.

Even if dairymen keep their fresh cows off of cement, they might still have to move her over cement to be able to get her in a place to milk her.

If she has had milk fever, a dairy producer should make sure she is walking normally before moving her over the cement, even if it takes a couple of days in the pen. Even after a cow has been treated successfully for milk fever, if they are moved onto cement too quickly she may slip and fall again.

Also, when the cow is moved, let her move as slow as she wants and put plenty of non-skid material down on the cement (barn dry, etc). Ideally, milking her in the box stall or pen without moving her on cement would be the way to go, but most dairymen are not set up for this.

Now, what if a cow is down, but she is not recently fresh. Should the dairy producer still give a bottle of calcium? Milk fever is generally thought of as a fresh cow metabolic disease, but it is possible to have it later in lactation, usually induced by something else.

Coliform Mastitis

One of the big causes of milk fever later in lactation is coliform mastitis. Even fresh cows can have an induced milk fever due to coliform mastitis.

One of the reasons for this is that toxins from the bacteria bind calcium rendering it unusable by the cow. Also, toxins can slow calcium absorption in the gut.

Every down cow, whether fresh or not, should be examined for the presence of coliform mastitis. This may be difficult to do on a down cow, but usually with two or more people it can be done by rolling her slightly on her side, checking her, and then rolling her back.

Try to feel the quarter for swelling or hardness without stripping her out, if at all possible. Stripping her out to check for coliform mastitis, especially in a dirty environment, can cause mastitis if she doesn't have it yet.

If you do strip her out to check her, definitely dip her teats. If coliform mastitis is found or even suspected, give her a bottle of calcium along with any other treatment you are giving her for the mastitis.

Cool, Wet Spring Delays Strawberries

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The good news about Pennsylvania's strawberry crop this year, according to a small fruit expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, is that it is likely to be large. The bad news is that it will be a week or two late.

This year's cool, cloudy spring has slowed the growth and ripening of strawberries across the state, observes senior extension associate Kathy Demchak, who specializes in berry production.

"We just need some warm, sunny days to get the berries to ripen," she said. "After last year's drought, the growers had a lot of hope that higher moisture levels in the soil would result in a great crop, but the cold, wet weather has delayed the season.

"If the weather stays cool, we definitely will have a longer harvest season this year."

The height of the Pennsylvania strawberry harvest usually occurs during the first week or two of June, depending on location in the state, Demchak points out. But this year, it will be at least a week late.

Pennsylvania has more strawberry producers than any state besides California, according to the USDA's Census of Agriculture. But because most of these strawberry growers have small diversified operations, in 2002 Pennsylvania ranked seventh in strawberry acreage, with 1,300 acres of berries produced, according to the USDA National Agricultural Statistics Service. Pennsylvania ranked fourth nationally in the value of fresh-market strawberry production, with a crop worth just slightly more than $10 million.

What Are Strategies Of Successful Dairies?

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — More than 30 industry representatives involved in helping producers make financial decisions came to a meeting about farm economics at the Holiday Inn, Grantville, Tuesday.

Normand St-Pierre, department of animal sciences, the Ohio State University, profiled successful dairies in his discussion.

He opened by discussing U.S. production of milk.

"Pennsylvania is the only state east of the Mississippi River that has outpaced the growth of the national average," said St-Pierre. "Every other state east of the Mississippi, if you held your own, you did pretty well. The growth has been out West. We're fast approaching the time when the West and the Southwest will be 50 percent of the milk production in the U.S.

"This is not just a little blip, a little trend, it's a massive change," he said.

St-Pierre also discussed several facts about the dairy industry. The per-cow net return on a large farm is substantially higher than small farms, he said. Larger farms have the advantage of automation in their operations. Also, large farms are more labor efficient, according to St-Pierre.

"On small farms, the same person wears about 20 different hats on any given day. One thing that we have learned in labor is that people end up doing better if you give them one small slice of something to do. You lose efficiency as you keep changing jobs."

He defined small farms as 40-55 cows, medium farms as 100-150 cows, and large farms as 300-plus cows.

The statistics and ideas that he presented do not sound the death knell for small farms, however, he pointed out.

"Farm size, by itself, does not guarantee success, but it does increase the odds," he said. "The top 20-30 percent of small farms actually do quite well. They are doing things differently than the average small farm," he said.

Four models of successful dairies include the "Uncle Scrooge," "Olympian Producer," Tight-rope Walker," and the "Family Affair."

The "Uncle Scrooge" dairy manager focuses on control of expenses, and although the farm is not fancy it is functional, the cows are in good shape, and it has good, though not outstanding production.

The "Olympian Producer" focuses on extraordinary production (more than 28,000 pounds per cow). The competitive costs of production are achieved by maintaining the fixed costs but shipping more milk. The Olympian Producer's cows first freshen at 22-24 months and produce good milk components.

The "Tight-rope Walker" focuses on keeping all systems in balance and is in the top third of all production and financial benchmarks. Their nutrition and breeding programs are simple and they are an active marketer of milk, he said.

With the "Family Affair," "these are the people who decide, 'it's not just my job, it's my life, it's my hobby, it's how the family is defined,'" he said. "The kids are not dragged into this (helping at the dairy)," but share their parents' passion.

Since the family members value things other than money — namely, the farming lifestyle — they pour profits from the dairy into purchasing other farms.

"Essentially that's how Pennsylvania has managed to outpace the nation" in growth, said St-Pierre.

He encouraged the audience that the small farms that are profitable are "not an exclusive club — everyone can do this and be successful."

However "the world has changed, some will have to change a little, some change a lot. Some of the old ways of guaranteeing your sustainability probably will not work for the future," he said.

"Long term, there's only four things that can be done," he said. The operator can get out of the dairy business, liquidating all assets. St-Pierre believes that he would recommend this strategy for 10 percent of operators in the eastern dairy industry.

If the operator is advanced in age and the facilities are in disrepair and losing equity, this is the best option, he believes.

The next option is to "milk it out," a plan which St-Pierre would recommend to 60 percent of operators. This calls for planning an exit 10-15 years down the road. "Stop pouring concrete" and building any more facilities with this option, he said.

The third choice is to "throw money at it," which he would advise for five percent of operators. This calls for a major expansion, and the owner must have the characteristics to have a successful expansion, he said.

"Getting off the trail" is the next option and includes specializing. "This may mean that you don't grow your own corn," he said.

On another note, to illustrate the analysis of alternative farm investments, St-Pierre offered a case study of a farm in New York.

The farm, which received $120,000 from timber on the farm, had four choices for the money: pay down debt, buy 100 cows, install milk yield recording, or build new heifer facilities.

To assess the situation, four tools were used the balance sheet and profit and loss statement, which proved to be the most useful, said St-Pierre, and the cash flow statement, along with the statement of owner's equity.

Analyzing the farm's cropping program and dairy program showed the operation to be "pretty efficient" and "overall, good dairy producers," he said.

Further analysis took into consideration liquidity, solvency, and profitability, and repayment capacity.

Looking at all the options, "put the cows in," said St-Pierre. "It generates the cash, generates the profitability."

However, with the help of a revenue-generating quarry owned by the farm family, in October 1996 the farm put in a new heifer facility and later, with the help of a loan, purchased a 100-head herd.

"It is easier to get a lender to agree to more cows," said St-Pierre, so the farm put the $120,000 toward the heifers, then got a loan to buy the cows. Later they also worked a deal with an equipment manufacturer to put in a milk yield recording system.

The case study was meant "to illustrate the impact of farm finances, and how to evaluate" a farm's financial options, he said. Although historically farmers tend to shy away from managing numbers, "the successful people will have to get control of this" because of finance's impact on profitability, said St-Pierre.

Also during the meeting Jeffrey Brose, DVM, technical service specialist for Monsanto Dairy Business, discussed heat stress on cows.

A high-producing cow may produce more than 6,000 BTUs of energy per hour, according to Brose. In addition, heat production increases as milk production increases.

Look for more of Brose's information about heat stress in the next issue of Dairy Plus in the June 28 issue of Lancaster Farming.

The seminar was sponsored by Monsanto Dairy Business.

What Makes A Good Consultant? Ask This Guy

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — What are the hallmarks of a good consultant?

First and foremost, according to one expert: a good consultant "is really good at asking questions," said Jack Murray, who with Suzanne manages the Knockroe Group, Inc., Hughesville.

Murray spoke last week during the first of the two-day 2003 Galaxy Conference, a professional development school for agriculture extension agents conducted at the Lantern Lodge in Myerstown.

Murray, who spoke to about 130 agents registered for the Penn State-sponsored event, noted that consultants also have to be "thinking people" and ask themselves, he said, "who am I talking to? Where are they coming from? What is going on in their world? And what is competing for their attention?"

Consultants cannot simply have the answer in their heads before they even have a chance to know all the implications of the work being done for whom they are consulting with. "You have to understand who it is you're dealing with," Murray said.

What defines a good consultant?

According to Murray, it's the customer's opinion that counts. And only that. "It's not what you think, but what the customer defines as good," said Murray.

Companies that have failed to listen well have spelled their own doom. He gave three examples of failure by companies that jumped too soon on product promotion without knowing exactly what they were doing:

• During a major product promotion for curling irons in Germany, advertising was targeted for a special hair "mister." After the third day, the promotion was a bust. Why? Because in German slang, "mist" means "manure."

• Gerber Company promoted its baby food using its trademarked cute baby on the bottle label. They promoted this in Africa. The only problem: in rural Africa, many natives can't read. They determine what's in the bottle by its label. So to them, a "squished baby," noted Murray, just didn't sell.

• At one time, a company promoted T-shirts with a portrait of the Pope in Spanish. The slogan, "I saw the Pope," was prominent on the yellow T-shirts. In Spanish, the correct wording would have been "L'Papa." However, the T-shirt read "La Papa," or "the potato." "They did not sell," said Murray.

"It pays to take the time out front to determine what to do," Murray noted.

Murray outlined several behaviors on the part of customers across many industries:

• They resist change more out of a fear of the future than a love of the past. There are too many unknowns.

• By focusing on the "uniqueness of their needs," consultants can ring in success. The consultant can't simply give the same old talk to different groups.

• Deliver the truth, even if it doesn't seem appropriate at the time. "You have to stay focused," noted Murray.

• You don't have to solve every problem. Some are best left ignored. "Some fires are meant to burn," Murray said.

• Strive for behavior change. Just presenting information does not guarantee behavior change. Using correct "tact" can create a big impact.

• Use true diplomacy. That involves the ability to tell others things "they don't want to hear in such a way that they want to listen," said Murray.

• The good, successful consultant will be rewarded not by what they know, but that the customer "knows how much you care," he said.

• Be prepared and on time. Get people's names right. Call ahead if you're going to be late. And call them back to follow up.

• Don't label. Early labels are "particularly risky," Murray said. Some people are "hammer people" who see every problem as a "nail."

Murray used the following "gardening metaphors."

• Well-prepared soil. The corollary: prepare before planting the ideas in the customer's mind.

• Don't be hasty. Timing is critical. The best seed can be killed off in a late frost. Don't broadcast your ideals until the moment is right for germination.

• Excess feed doesn't help a plant. Corollary: don't push ideas too hard too early, and don't oversell.

• Despite best efforts, some of our plants are going to die. Corollary: in spite of the best efforts, learn to live with failure. Don't take it personally. "You will get ulcers, or much worse," Murray noted.

Murray delivered a famous baseball quote that it is more important to have "one thought delivered home than have three left on base."

Murray provided the ultimate definition of a successful consultant: "they invite you back," he said.

The company name, Knockroe, denotes the area in Ireland the Murray family emigrated from in the 1800s, noted Murray. The location is in the southeast County Carlow, and is a word in Anglicized Gaelic, also called Cnoc Rua, or "the red hill." With oak trees, the area in Hughesville looks like a "red hill" in the fall, noted Murray.

Also at the conference, Daney Jackson, associate dean, Penn State College of Ag Sciences, noted that Penn State stands out in its efforts to actually measure the results of extension work.

As for an administrative update, a lot depends on what happens at the state level, where the college receives funding. "It's the strangest year I've ever been through, and others say the same," Jackson noted. "It's a strange political year in Pennsylvania."

Jackson pointed out the increasing diversity of the U.S. population, with Hispanic Americans replacing African Americans as the largest minority. And there is increasing concentration on what is happening on a global, rather than state or country, economy.

Extension and the College of Ag Sciences are going through a period of knowledge integration to develop skills for all in the "scholarship of discovery." If everybody truly appreciated the benefits of extension, quoting an Ohio State educator, "we would not have budget problems," Jackson noted.

Jackson said that the college has experienced a 22 percent increase in gifting over 2002, one of a number of critical areas helping budget the university.

In 2005, Penn State will help host the National Association of Ag Agents meeting. They are looking to generate $60,000 in donations to cover costs.

Sept. 21-25 this year, at Galaxy II at the Salt Palace Convention Center in Salt Lake City, Utah, will be the 75th anniversary celebration of the ag agent professional organization, Epsilon Sigma Phi (ESP), according to Fay Strickler, Berks County. A donation of $74 or more per member will help to reach the goal of $500,000 toward the ESP Development Fund. About $1,000 was donated by the Berks County Extension Family Living Advisory Committee, Strickler noted. Those who donate at least $75 receive a pin in recognition.

T. David Filson, emergency coordinator for Penn State extension and regional director of the south central district of extension, spoke about extension's role in homeland security.

Filson spoke about "The Disaster Handbook: 1998 National Edition" published by the University of Florida Extension System, of which every county extension office is familiar with.

Filson spoke about the online survey conducted from mid-March to mid-April this year involving 102 agents regarding the importance of homeland security in agriculture.

Of the respondents, 67 percent believed there was some likelihood of an attack by terrorists in the U.S. Eighty-one percent of the respondents believed cooperative extension should be involved in emergency planning. And 91 percent believed food and ag interests should be protected.

Of the respondents, 72 percent believed that food protection was the topic of greatest concern.

Filson noted that Penn State would soon have its Website revised on disaster response plans with results of the survey at www.cas.psu.edu.

HEAT STRESS ON DAIRY COWS

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent — Dairy
Franklin County

After several days of warm weather, the subject of heat stress on lactating dairy cows comes to the forefront once again.

Heat stress affects two of the most economically important segments of the dairy farm business — milk production and reproduction. Milk yield can be reduced by 3 percent to 20 percent or more. Conception can go as low as 0 percent in extreme cases. Feed intake can be reduced by 8 percent to 12 percent or more. This all translates into many lost dollars to the dairy business.

In simple terms, heat stress occurs when the cow's heat load is greater than her capacity to lose heat. Heat load is made up of her own body heat production plus environmental heat which includes air temperature, relative humidity, air movement, and solar radiation.

Cows react to heat stress in various ways. They will generally seek out shade, reduce feed intake, increase water intake, and stand rather than lie down. Respiration rate increases, rectal temperatures increase, and sweating increases. These methods allow the cow to reduce her own heat production and to transfer heat more easily to the environment.

Along with reduced feed intake, heat-stressed cows have a lower rate of feed passage and gut motility. Rumen fermentation characteristics change. Total volatile fatty acid (VFA) production is decreased. VFAs are the end product of carbohydrate microbial fermentation. Under normal circumstances, VFAs can provide up to 80 percent of the cow's energy needs. When VFA production is reduced, milk yield will suffer.

Heat stress increases maintenance requirements, which leads to decreased feed efficiency. Panting can increase a cow's maintenance requirements by 20 percent. Heat stress has little effect on milk protein percentage. However, butterfat percentage is usually reduced because of a decrease in fiber intake.

As mentioned earlier, heat stress has a negative effect on reproduction. Heat stress may damage the ovum, sperm, or embryo. There may also be an indirect effect on the uterine environment caused by changing levels of hormones. Heat detection is more difficult in heat stressed cattle because they become much less active.

The estrus period in heat stressed cows is 5-6 hours shorter than in cows under cool conditions. Early embryonic mortality is a major problem associated with heat stress. It appears that the majority of this embryonic mortality occurs within the first 7-10 days after conception.

The optimum temperature for milk production is in the range of 25-65 degrees Fahrenheit (F). However, it is temperature and humidity that determine the stress level on the cow. Researchers at the University of Arizona developed the Temperature Humidity Index (THI), which is a combination of temperature and humidity. THI above 72 is usually considered the point at which heat stress occurs. As an example, the THI at 90 degrees F and 60 percent relative humidity is 83. This falls in the category between mild and severe stress.

Evaporative cooling systems should be the last step in a program to provide heat stress relief for cows. First and foremost are to cover the basics. The acronym SAW can help you remember the three basic but important points about hot weather cow care:

• Shade is important to protect animals from intense summer sunshine. Cows are great solar collectors. Natural shade, an artificial shade structure, or a well ventilated barn are all suitable.

• Air flow and air exchange are both necessary to increase the rate at which cows can remove heat from their bodies and to assure the cow has fresh air to breathe for internal cooling. High wide and open barns exposed to breezes, circulating fans inside barns, and tunnel ventilation are all methods of increasing air exchange (fresh air) and air velocity over cows.

• Water and plenty of it for drinking will provide the cow with additional water to evaporate and thus increase heat removal from her body. The cow will utilize water first to help cool herself through respiration moisture and sweating. Any water left over will go for milk production. Extra water locations, high capacity water lines and valves, and an adequate water supply are necessary to supply the additional water needed during hot weather.

As dairy cows are bred, fed, and managed for increasing levels of milk production, heat stress reduction management practices become a very profit-enhancing investment.

We are asking cows to produce 80-100 pounds of milk per day. Let's be sure to do our part to help relieve the stress because of heat. Take care of the basics first: shade, air flow/air exchange, and water. Then move on to evaporative cooling systems.

Offal Composting Meeting

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — Small-scale slaughtering operations and farmers interested in learning more about composting butchering waste will want to attend a meeting Tuesday, June 24, at Gensemer's Processing near Bloomsburg. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Gensemer's Processing has been using composting as a means to reduce the amount of offal that needs to be sent for rendering. The composting process not only reduces the volume of waste but also creates a usable product.

Participants will meet at Gensemer's for discussion on composting and to view the compost system. Afterward, participants will go to the nearby office of Penn State Extension to view a video from Cornell University regarding composting of animal mortality and butchering waste.

To get to Gensemer's from I-80, take Exit 236 Bloomsburg/ Lightstreet. Follow Rt. 487 north for about a mile and turn right onto Ridge Road. Go about a quarter mile and Gensemer's Processing is on the right.

For more information on the meeting contact Dave Hartman, extension agent, at (570) 784-6660 or HYPERLINK "mailto:dwh2@psu.edu" dwh2@psu.edu.

Muck Crops Field Day June 16

CELERYVILLE, Ohio — This year's Muck Crops Field Day will be June 26 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's (OARDC) Muck Crops Branch in Celeryville.

The 15-acre Muck Crops Branch, two miles south of Willard on Rt. 103, lies in the heart of Ohio's salad vegetable industry. There, rich muck soil (with 20 times more organic matter than typical Ohio soil) yields excellent produce.

The free field day is an excellent opportunity for commercial vegetable farmers, crop advisers, home gardeners and other participants to get a taste of what Ohio State University researchers are doing to improve vegetable production in the area, said branch manager Rick Callendar.

Some of these efforts have to do with management practices, such as improving pesticide application technology for peppers and collards, studying planting-date effects on red lettuce coloration, and determining the right spacing for optimum yield and quality of cilantro.

For more information, contact Rick Callendar at (419) 935-1201 or callendar.1@osu.edu.

Farm Pasture Walk June 19

KIRKWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — On June 19, 10 a.m. - 1:30 p.m., there will be a pasture walk at the farm of Arden and Carolyn Landis, located at 667 Puseyville Rd, Kirkwood (two miles south of the Solanco Fairgrounds at the junction of Rt. 472 and Puseyville Road).

The Landis family manages a seasonal organic dairy with 90 cows on 120 acres. They have been grazing for 10 years.

New this year, they are using shades and have some Italian ryegrass test plots on the farm.

Everyone interested in learning more about grazing is invited. Please pack a lunch. The Landis family will provide drinks.

For more information, contact either the Lancaster County extension office at (717) 394-6851 or the Landis family at (717) 529-6644.

Well Drillers Pull Out Of Dairy Farm

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Drillers searching for a new municipal water source on the Paul B. Zimmerman dairy farm near Ephrata apparently haven't found as much water as they'd hoped for.

"It wasn't enough to warrant the cost of developing the well," said East Cocalico Water and Sewer Authority Chairman S. Eugene Heft. "The geologists call the shots," he added, but "it appears there will be no further development of that well."

Heft said the Zimmermans would be reimbursed for damage to their property.

The proposed well had sparked controversy since February, when the township staked an alfalfa field on Zimmerman's 80-acre farm along the Cocalico Creek. The field was one of three test drilling sites identified by Lancaster-based Enviroscan Inc.

Zimmerman, fearing that a new well would ruin the dairy he operates with his son, Paul Jr., hired a Harrisburg attorney to fight the project.

Friends and neighbors joined in the outcry.

The township was hesitant to seize the land by eminent domain but argued that it needs to boost water capacity to meet future needs and ensure dependable supplies for current residents.

Zimmerman later decided not to seek an injunction to stop the testing just off Garden Spot Road. "We left them come in," he said.

Drillers arrived May 27 and left June 4, according to Zimmerman. He said testing revealed a groundwater flow of 12 gallons per minute, much less than the 100-gallon range preferred for municipal use.

Heft said the flow was somewhat greater, but not enough to justify the expense of continuing. Depending on treatment for nitrates and water softening, he noted, it costs $300,000 to $400,000 to develop a municipal well.

Dry holes are not unusual, according to Heft.

"We found more water in the other two wells," he noted. The township is waiting for a laboratory to test the quality of the water before pursuing landowner negotiations.

"This has been the most controversial issue we've had," he said of the Zimmerman well, but it seems to have worked out for both parties.

"Maybe it was meant to be."

From a June 8 Lancaster Sunday News report.

Pennsylvania: 9,300 Dairy Families Strong

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Proclaiming June as Dairy Month in the commonwealth, Gov. Ed Rendell early this month encouraged Pennsylvanians to celebrate agriculture and the dairy industry.

"Pennsylvania is proud of its dairy industry and the important contribution it makes to our economy and the welfare of our citizens," Rendell said. "We salute dairy farmers and their families for the strength and vitality they bring to rural communities throughout the commonwealth."

Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff added, "Today's dairy farmers must juggle many challenges in order to succeed in farming and make it a profitable business. The lines between farming, the environment, technology, and science have grown increasingly blurred in recent years, and farmers must understand all of these things in order succeed at their trade.

"As a dairy farmer, I understand the challenges facing the industry, and I am happy to say that Pennsylvania's dairy farmers are meeting these challenges with success. Our state's dairy farmers stand at the forefront of the dairy industry and of agriculture," Wolff said.

More than 9,300 families operate dairy farms in the commonwealth. These families are stewards of 599,000 cows and oversee the production of 10.8 billion pounds of milk annually — approximately 6.6 percent of the nation's milk supply.

A leading agricultural enterprise, the dairy industry generates nearly $1.79 billion in revenues for the state economy. Pennsylvania continues to lead the country in dairy products, ranking fourth nationally in milk, butter, and ice cream and sixth in cheese production. According to the USDA, each person consumes an average of 29.8 pounds of cheese, 23.2 gallons of milk, and 32 quarts of ice cream a year in the U.S.

Rich in calcium, potassium, and nine essential nutrients, dairy products help to better manage your weight and reduce the risk of high blood pressure, osteoporosis, and certain cancers. Nutritionists recommend eating three nutrient-rich dairy foods per day as part of a healthy diet. As part of the "3-a-Day" allowance, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture encourages Pennsylvanians to enjoy our state beverage milk — and other dairy choices such as cheese, yogurt, and ice cream.

For more information on Pennsylvania's dairy industry, please contact the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture at (717) 783-8462.

High Pressure Produce Sprayers

Trailer or 3 Pt. Hitch Models

Zimmerman's manufactures several different model sprayers designed for produce spraying. They are built for the small farmer that cannot justify a large expensive sprayer. Trailer models are available with a 200 or 300 gallon tank and 3pt hitch models with a 110, 150, 200 or 300 gallon tank. The 25' single sided boom has 7' plus clearance and requires a minimal amount of drive rows because of the wide span. It also has a hydraulic cylinder that allows the operator to level the boom from the tractor seat. A Hypro high pressure diaphragm provides up to 290 p.s.i. and non-drip nozzle bodies keep chemical loss minimal. Stop or call Zimmerman's today to see how we can help you with your spraying needs and improve your profit margin.

Plan To Relieve Heat Stress On Cows

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy farmers shouldn't let the cool spring fool them — summer heat will be here soon.

They should plan now, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, to provide their cows with relief from heat stress.

The highest-producing cows are the ones most vulnerable to the damaging effects of heat stress, warns Dennis Buffington, professor of agricultural and biological engineering.

Milk production decreases as heat stress increases. He points out that even greater economic loss results from the reduction in cows' conception rates as heat stress rises.

"First and foremost, the cows need to be protected from direct solar radiation," he says. "The shading system must be designed so that the animals have full access to quality feed and water while in the shade.

Sufficient floor space needs to be provided under the shade structure so that the animals do not crowd together to stay in the shade.

"The underside of the roof needs to include insulation material to reduce the thermal radiation load on the cows. Finally the shade structure needs to be high enough and include a ridge opening so that natural ventilation will be enhanced."

Evaporative cooling systems to reduce heat stress levels on cows are common in the southern United States, but few are used by Pennsylvania dairy farmers, according to Buffington.

He anticipates that evaporative cooling systems will become more popular in Pennsylvania as production levels of cows increase and as producers search for effective ways to reduce heat stress.

The evaporation of just one gallon of water per hour at 85 degrees provides nearly the same cooling effect as a ¾ ton air conditioner unit.

"This amount of cooling can handle the heat produced by, on average, two lactating cows," he says. "The actual amount of water that can be evaporated depends on the humidity level of the air."

Different approaches to providing evaporative cooling for dairy cows have been used over the past several decades. Buffington believes the use of a sprinkler or misting system in conjunction with forced ventilation is most effective.

"It is not sufficient simply to cool the air with evaporative cooling and hope to significantly reduce the damaging heat stress effects on the cows," he says.

"It is essential to wet the cows and to provide forced ventilation to speed up the rate of evaporation," he adds.

"The direct wetting of the cows cools them only a limited amount — it is the rapid evaporation of the water that really does the cooling. The need for rapid evaporation is why it is essential to use fans in conjunction with sprinklers or misters.

"Natural ventilation is not sufficient, at least in the climates of the Northeast, to provide the quick evaporation."

During heat stressing conditions, cows must be wetted intermittently so that the water can evaporate from the surface of the cows. Effective evaporative cooling systems generally provide a spray of water for about a minute every three or four minutes with the fans running continuously.

An evaporative cooling system should be developed with enough flexibility so that the wetting durations and intervals can be easily modified in the field.

The water spray should be directed onto the back and sides of each cow, Buffington explains. "Ideally, all the water should evaporate on the back and sides of a cow so that none of the sprinkler water comes down to the udder because of the danger of contaminating the teat openings with bacteria from the hide," he says.

"It also is important to keep the floor surfaces and bedding materials dry."

Buffington contends that investments in effective systems to relieve heat stress for dairy cows will pay dividends in increased cow comfort, milk production and conception efficiency.

"As the production levels of dairy cows increase, they become more vulnerable to heat stress," he says. "Therefore, it behooves dairy farmers to utilize evaporative cooling systems to reduce the effects of heat stress on their animals."

USDA Appoints Milk Promoters

Appointees Are From Calif., Neb., Ohio, Tenn., and Texas

WASHINGTON, D.C. - USDA Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced the appointment of six incumbents and one new member to the National Fluid Milk Processor Promotion Board.

Reappointed to serve a second term are James W. Turner, Memphis, Tenn. (Region 9); Richard Walrack, City of Industry, Calif. (Region 15); and Robert E. Baker, Omaha, Neb. (at-large public).

Appointed to serve their first full term after filling a vacancy lasting less than 18 months are: Michael F. Nosewicz, Cincinnati, Ohio (Region 3); William R. McCabe, Orrville, Ohio (Region 6); and Lawrence V. Jackson, Pleasanton, Calif. (Region 12).

Newly appointed to serve her first term is Susan D. Meadows, Dallas, Texas (At-Large Processor).

The appointments expire June 30, 2006.

The National Fluid Milk Processor Promotion Board is composed of 15 fluid milk processors from 15 geographic regions, and five at-large members. At least three at-large members must be fluid milk processors and at least one must be from the general public. The board was established by the Fluid Milk Promotion Act of 1990 to develop and administer a coordinated program of advertising and promotion to increase the demand for fluid milk products.

The national fluid milk program is financed by a mandatory 20-cent per hundredweight assessment on all fluid milk processed and marketed commercially in consumer-type packages in the contiguous 48 states and the District of Columbia. Processors who commercially process and market 3,000,000 pounds or less per month, excluding those fluid milk products delivered to the consumer residences, are exempt from the assessment.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service monitors the operations of the board. More information is at http://www.ams.usda.gov/dairy/dairyrp.htm.

Penn State Study Links Land Use, Property Values

UNIVERSITY PARK (State College) — Agriculture and other land uses that provide open space increase the value of houses located within a quarter-mile radius, while landfills and large-scale animal operations lower the value of nearby houses, according to a new study by researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The study, summarized in the report "The Impact of Open Space and Potential Local Disamenities on Residential Property Values in Berks County, Pennsylvania," was authored by Richard Ready, assistant professor of agricultural and environmental economics, and Charles Abdalla, associate professor of agricultural and environmental economics.

The researchers collected sales prices and other information on more than 8,000 Berks County homes sold between 1998 and 2002, along with information on nearby land uses. A geographic information system and statistical tools were used to analyze the data.

"This kind of information can be used by local officials to evaluate the consequences of planning and zoning decisions and efforts to preserve open space in their communities," says Ready.

"Undoubtedly, there will be interest in applying the Berks County results elsewhere," Abdalla says. "But until more research is conducted in areas with conditions that differ from Berks County, care should be used in trying to generalize these results."

The study found that open space — including forested acreage and grass, pasture and crop land — located within a quarter-mile of a house had the largest positive effect on the value of that house.

Large-lot, single-family residential land had a positive effect almost as large. Commercial, small-lot single-family residential, multi-unit residential, and industrial land uses were less favorable for nearby property values.

Ready says these results can be used to predict the effect of land-use change on nearby residential property values.

"For instance, if a 10-acre farm is replaced by a shopping center, we would expect property values of homes located within one-quarter mile to decrease by 1.3 percent," he explains.

"Construction of a high-density or multi-unit residential development on that farmland would have an even greater negative impact — about two percent. But construction of large-lot, single family houses would have essentially no impact on nearby home values."

For land uses farther than a quarter-mile but less than a mile away, commercial land had the greatest positive impact on a home's value, followed closely by large-lot, single-family residential.

The researchers found that landfills and large-scale animal operations have negative influences on nearby house prices.

The study did not find a property value impact for sewage treatment plants.

Making No-Till Work With Dairy Manure Systems

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — A field meeting to show the compatibility of dairy manure and no-till systems is set for June 18 at 10:30 a.m. to noon.

The meeting will take place at Hiddenview Holsteins, Robesonia.

Dr. Sjoerd Duiker, Department of Crop and Soils, Penn State University, and Mr. Joel Myers, NRCS, will be on hand for the field walk.

Directions to Hiddenview Holsteins:

From Rt. 422, go north on the Bernville-Robesonia Road. Turn right onto Brownsville Road. Go tow miles. Sign for Hiddenview Holsteins in on the right side. Mailbox is 1700 Brownsville Road.

For more information, contact Berks County Cooperative Extension at (610) 378-1327.

PFB Applauds Over-Order Premium Decision

CAMP HILL — (Cumberland Co.) — Guy Donaldson, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) president,praised the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board's (PMMB's) recent decision to raise the over-order premium for Class I (fluid) milk for the remainder of the year to $1.65 per hundred pounds of milk.

"The long-term economic viability of the Pennsylvania dairy industry continues to be challenged by this prolonged period of low milk prices," said Donaldson"Pennsylvania Farm Bureau appreciates the board taking this positive action to help increase prices paid to dairy farmers in an effort to stabilize the dwindling milk supply within the state that threatens the industry,"

PFB's dairy specialist Joel Rotz said the PMMB decision was "the right decision considering the needs of producers, who have been experiencing extremely low prices for too long."

Web-Based Marketing Program Upcoming

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A twilight program on developing farm marketing using the World Wide Web will take place June 18 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Rodale Institute, Kutztown.

The Rodale Institute has been working with a number of organic farmers to develop Web based marketing and the program will be shared as part of the "Organic Agriculture in Southeast Pa." series, organized through Penn State Cooperative Extension. Also, field trials will be viewed. The trials include work with cover crops, compost tea treatments for disease suppression and developing a no-till organic cropping system.

Participants are asked to meet in the parking lot. The program will take place rain or shine. There is no charge and no registration required. Directions to the Rodale Institute can be found at http://www.rodaleinstitute.org.

Future meetings in the series will be conducted on an organic vegetable farm and a circle discussion about new markets and new crops. For more information, call (610) 378-1327.

International 'Red Power'

thusiasm for red tractors and related memorabilia. The club's origin has roots to the early 1990s, when two Indiana men, a former IH dealer and a farmer, started the first IH Club. Today there are 32 chapters in the U.S., Canada, and Sweden. The clubs conduct semi-annual shows at different sites throughout the U.S.

Pennsylvania has three Red Power clubs with more than 500 members.

In addition to admiring the tractors and equipment, one of the focuses of the club is to offer expertise in restoring old tractors and equipment to its original showroom condition.

"But some guys like the stuff just the way they found it — rusty," Trapani said.

Club membership costs only $10 annually. Members meet monthly and also publish a newsletter.

Trapani and Bartlow are members of Chapter 17 in charge of hosting the convention.

They selected the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds as the site because it is the largest in the state, according to Trapani.

"You don't need to be a club member to attend the convention or to display things," Trapani said.

Neither do you need to preregister, although it will save time if you do.

For general information about the show, call Trapani at (570) 275-5847. For tractor pull information, call Brian Shively at (570) 922-4841. For vendor space, call Marvin Walter, (570) 837-3386. For memorabilia displays, call Helen Barto at (570) 547-0851.

Network Preserves History

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — International Harvester Collectors provides a worldwide collector's network for the preservation of history, products, literature, and memorbilia of the International Harvester Company.

The IH Collectors Club was organized in July 1990. There are more than 4600 members from 49 states and several other countries. There are 27 active chapters sanctioned to promote local involvement, with interest in chapters continually expanding.

The purpose of the club is to establish the International Harvester Collectors as an identity to which collectors of IH products can relate: promote IH collecting, restoration, and show displays through communication amoung members; help preserve, research, and complete the history of the IH company; aid shows who feature IH with a file of member's show pieces; and hold a large annual show (Red Power Roundup) in conjuntion with an IH feature at a different host show each year.

Club member benefits: Members receive a quarterly publication, Harvester Highlights, which provides information on club business; reports from various committees; upcoming show listings; news from chapters; feature stories, restoration information; and limited free publication of wanted and for-sale ads. Insurance is provided for members at club-sanctioned shows.

Besides the annual summer show, there is a winter convention with banquet for members. All IH auction supported by chapters in a different state each year. The club also supports displays at local farm shows.

Purpose and benefit of chapters: The chapters organize local interest, hold annual state shows, work together to provide locations for the roundup, winter conventions and auction, provide local newsletters, hold meetings with family envolvement, promote IH collecting, restoration and show displays, and support the national organization.

Dues for the yearly national membership are $10. Chapter dues vary by state. The club membership address is on the application.

Farm Group Leaders Back Rendell Plan To Cut Property Taxes

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, State Grange, and PennAg Industries stand behind the key provisions of Gov. Ed Rendell's plan to cut property taxes, increase education funding, and stimulate economic growth for agriculture.

Joining Rendell and Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff at a press conference Tuesday in the Governor's Reception Room at the Capitol were Guy Donaldson, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) president; Bob Gueldner, president of PennAg Industries; and Betsy Huber, Pennsylvania Grange master.

Calling the state's property tax system an "inequitable burden for our members," Donaldson said Rendell's plan to reduce property taxes is the beginning of a fairer tax system for the state's farmers.

"Although Governor Rendell's plan affects only a portion of farm property, it's an important first step," Donaldson said.

Donaldson's approval was offset by his concern that funds for rural school will continue to be shortchanged under the new plan.

"Many rural school districts do not have the tax base to support adequate operations," he said. "Farm Bureau has advocated increasing the state's portion of public school funding to 50 percent.

"We also welcome an economic stimulus plan that targets investment in rural Pennsylvania," Donaldson said. "The new proposal to make more low-interest loans available will help farmers update or expand their operations to remain competitive."

Gueldner and Huber also endorsed the plan to cut taxes for farm and homeowners.

According to Huber, the proposed property tax cuts will mean an average saving of $387 per property owner across the state, including homesteads and farmsteads.

Property taxes have increased 55 percent in the past ten years, she noted.

Gueldner spoke of the challenges faced by farmers across the state, including low commodity prices and recent drought.

"Agriculture will follow (the decline) of the steel and coal industries if not given an economic boost," Gueldner said.

He suggested that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture work together with the Department of Community and Economic Development to create economic incentives.

"As the number one industry (agriculture) goes, so goes the state," he said.

Marketing Workshop Set At Simple Gifts Farm

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Producers and beginning farmers who would like to improve their marketing and production skills, are invited to attend a Pennsylvania Farm Link sponsored meeting at Simple Gifts Farm June 25 from 6 to 9 p.m.

Jonathan Weaver-Kreider, the operator of a 70-member Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) will provide information on how to start a CSA, marketing strategies and production practices he uses, and a tour of the farm.

CSA or Subscription farming is essentially grower contracting and can be applied to any type of farm. The producer "contracts" with the consumer to provide a specific type of product during a specific time period, and with a specific delivery date.

Weaver-Kreider completed a master degree in agroecology, worked as an integrated pest management scout, and did internships on other organic vegetable operations before starting his own farm on rented ground. He continued to grow the operation to its current three acres size and hopes to purchase his own farm in the near future. Information on marketing trends and tips for developing subscription/CSA markets will be included.

To get to Simple Gifts Farm, take the Columbia Exit (Rt. 441) off of Rt. 30. Travel south on Rt. 441 through Columbia. Watch for signs for 441 in Columbia because it makes two turns. Travel South about 3 miles to Washington Boro where Rt. 441 intersects Rt. 999. Pass straight through this intersection and continue about 500 feet and go straight into the farm lane. A small Simple Gifts sign is at the entrance. There is a stone barn and white house.

Contact Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 or email at pafarmlink@redrose.net by June 23 to let them know of your planned attendance and for additional information on other marketing events. The meeting is offered free of charge.

Farm Link will sponsor another marketing meeting on value-added marketing on September 13, 2003 in Kutztown to assist beginners and others who want to improve their marketing ability.

Dairy Technology Society Honors O'Hara

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Dairy Technology Society of Maryland and the District of Columbia recently recognized longtime member Allen O'Hara with its Distinguished Service Award.

The award is the society's highest honor and was established in 1972 to recognize a person who has made significant contributions to the dairy industry. O'Hara is the 19th honoree and was recognized for his more than 25 years of service and dedication to Maryland's dairy industry.

O'Hara is the assistant general manager for Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers, where he has worked for more than 25 years. O'Hara is responsible for all member service functions, including field and administrative services and communications. His area of responsibility also includes Maryland & Virginia's manufacturing plant in Laurel, Md., and the equipment supply warehouse in Frederick, Md.

Allen O'Hara

Throughout his career, O'Hara has been involved in a number of dairy and agricultural organizations. He was active in the Maryland Council of Farmer Cooperatives for about 20 years and served as president of both the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation and the Dairy Technology Society of Maryland and the District of Columbia.

O'Hara is a graduate of the University of Maryland and was raised on a dairy farm in Frederick, Md. O'Hara and his wife, Janice, have four children and are active in their church.

Founded in 1938 by Dr. Walter England, the Dairy Technology Society of Maryland and the District of Columbia promotes good fellowship and mutual understanding among dairy industry professionals, and provides an open forum for dairy science related information and topics of interest to members and students pursuing careers within the industry.

Over-Order Premium Increased To $1.65

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board Chairman Boyd E. Wolff recently announced that board members voted to increase the current over-order premium of $1.55 to $1.65 per one hundred pounds of milk. The over-order premium is paid on Class I (bottled) milk produced, processed, and sold within the commonwealth. The $1.65 will be in effect from July 1 through Dec. 31. The current over-order premium of $1.55 is due to expire June 30, 2003.

This action is the result of a hearing conducted May 22. The hearing took place in response to a petition submitted to the board by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and a petition submitted by Dairylea Cooperative, Dairy Marketing Services, and the Northeast Council of Dairy Farmers of America.

Testimony presented at the hearing recommended varying levels of the over-order premium and varying lengths of times the premium should be effective. The board determined that the disparity in the recommended over-order premium levels and the disparity in the recommended time the premium should be effective were indicative of a certain amount of flux or uncertainty in the market.

Congressman To Speak At Farm Bureau Picnic

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — FARMER, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's political action committee will host a picnic Sunday, June 22, at Indian Echo Caverns, Hummelstown.

Congressman Tim Holden will be speaking at 2:00 p.m. Holden will address the US farm economy and what is being done in Washington to boost farm profitability.

The event is open to the public. There is a pig roast and barbeque lunch at 1:00 p.m. The cost to attend is $25.00 per person or $40.00 per couple. Children ages 2-17 are $10.00. A group rate will be offered to any Farm Bureau member who wishes to tour the caves. Deadline to purchase tickets is June 15. To reserve a place at the picnic, call Keith Oellig at (717) 469-0180 or Allen Shissler at (717) 944-3690.

Quality hay production is the focus of the July 12 edition of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council's Foraging Around newsletter in Lancaster Farming. Also scheduled: Project Grass youth contest coverage, conservation updates, reports on forage preservation, and a calendar of events.

PIT POWER
Farmers and composters - Here is a breakdown for compost and manure pits and manure piles! Pit Power is bacteria and bacteria feeders that break down solids in manure pits and septic tanks and breakdown compost faster.
Clean out your pit with ease, use Pit Power! One gallon of Pit Power per 10,000 to 20,000 gal. of pit volume Should be repeated approx. 2 times a year! If aeration of the pit is possible, it will help the bacteria to grow and work faster to break down solids Pit Power's purpose is to add life (bacteria) in the manure, which then is returned to the soil where a bacteria is working. The smell of pit manure is not so strong. Pit Power is a non-toxic product - Life to Feed Life!
Price is $58.00 per gallon
(6 gal or more - $55 per gallon) Full UPS fee will be charged if payment is not with order Send orders to

CATTLE: Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold weak to 3.00 lower. Early week sales sold near steady as some high quality steers brought up to 88.50 on Monday, with the bulk of the Tuesday run weighing up extremely full, and was docked from 2.00-5.00. The Thursday run included almost 700 head of steers as local producers continue to send them to town to get in on the current market, as prices are 11.00-14.00 higher than this time a year ago. Most of the cattle have some nice finish on them; however, live weights are well below the norm for the county as the majority are weighing from 1100-1300 lbs; as compared to the usual 1250-1450 lbs. Slaughter Holstein steers sold steady to weak, with the mixed heifer runs not tested. Nationally, the western direct feed yards moved live steers from 77 00-78.00 this week, with prices 2.00-3.00 lower than the prior week. Dressed sales ranged from mostly 123.00-124.00, which is 4.00 lower. Boxed beef cutout values have been on a downhill slope most of the week; with prices for Choice cuts from 2.80-3.50 lower by Thursday. Traders at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange had no choice but to move contracts lower in the face of a lower fed cattle trade and falling boxed beef values. The June live cattle contract is sitting at 73.40 as of Thursday, with major losses on Wednesday as a few nearby months closed down the limit. Local slaughter cows sold 4.00-6.00 lower through the first half of the week, with good late week demand allowing prices to trade steady to 2.00 higher, even in the face of a sharply lower cutter cow cutout on Thursday. Slaughter bulls sold with a lower undertone for the week. No matter what type of livestock a producer prefers, whether it be feeding veal calves or slaughter steers, it's hard to overlook the concern most of them have about the Canadian border opening. For now, there is no confirmed date for the re-opening of the border to ruminant animals. Many local producers have enjoyed friendly profits over the past few months, especially on their fed cattle, cows, and calves; with many sitting on pins and needles wandering what effect the re-opening will have on local prices as they try to figure out a marketing strategy to overcome the flow of livestock that is bound to come into the states. And for now, only time will tell if the strategies will work. The reported supply this week in Lancaster County included 1161 slaughter steers, 135 heifers, 934 cows, 150 bulls, with 184 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1125-1450 lbs 80.00-85.50, few up to 88.50 on Monday. Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1 1080-1855 lbs 49.50-59.00, high dressing up to 65.50. Yield Grade 2 1020-2335 lbs 43.50-51.25, low dressing 45.75, several light weights 630-980 lbs 50.50-59.00. Bullocks: Select and low Choice 1-2 1065-1305 lbs 65.00-70.50, few 58.50-60.00.

Calf Summary: Compared to last week, veal calves sold steady to firm. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply lower on Monday and Thursday, with Tueaday's prices trending 7.00-20.00 higher. Bull calf demand is sporadic, with most veal producers keeping a very close eye on the Canadian situation. Hide-off veal carcass values have been sharply higher over the past few weeks as most Northeast veal plants offer more money to localized producers as they are unable to receive any calves from Canada. Hide- off prices were reported from 200.00-220.00 by the USDA. This week the PA Department of Ag graded 999 head of calves at the two graded sales, compared to 893 last week.

Veal Calves: Good and Choice couple 185 lbs 93.00-100.00; 350-400 lbs 60.00- 75.00, individual 94.00; 400-450 lbs 72.00-80.00. Standard and Utility 110-150 lbs 50.00-75.00; 60-110 lbs 20.00-45.00.

START WITH THE BEST! POURED CONCRETE WALLS

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic ...there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

New Farmers, New Generation

Marion Bowlan

Pennsylvania Farm Link

CREATING OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE NEXT GENERATION

Noted farm adviser Don Jonovic, Ph.D., talked about balancing the conflicting needs of on- and off-farm heirs in a recent column. In his discussion, a 57-year old farmer was considering how to be fair to his two children when one or both may want to take over the operation.

What hit home for me was his answer, that this farmer's "true legacy was not a farm but an opportunity, a platform from which succeeding generation can build their future." Pennsylvania Farm Link was founded on just that idea or mission, "creating farming opportunities for the next generation."

To me, and I hope other farmers, creating opportunities means many things. It can mean the opportunity for beginners to:

- Gain on-farm experience in a way that will be productive and profitable.
- Gradually take over the business one step at a time, without biting off more than you can chew.
- Grow in their career by advancing from working on the farm to leasing equipment, buildings, and land.
- Stretch out equipment and land purchases so that the next generation is not overburdened with debt.

For farmers considering retirement it can mean the opportunity to:

- Slow down and gradually phase out of one's life work.
- Retire and enjoy life's pleasures.
- Pass on a legacy and to create wealth and success for the next generation.

For both generations it can mean the opportunity to work together to build harmony on the farm and in the family.

I believe opportunities are missed when:

- The chance to gain hands-on experience is undervalued or overlooked.
- The older generation abruptly turns over the farm with little guidance or direction.
- The new owners are in a position where it's all or nothing — that is, they have to buy everything at once.
- Only some members of the family are included in the decision-making process.
- The beginner is strapped with very high debt and insufficient family time.
- The beginner doesn't recognize the value of the older generation's contributions.
- The beginner doesn't appreciate the issues involved in planning for a secure retirement.

Perhaps the most common and damaging missed opportunity is when no one talks about what will happen to the farm.

If we think of our farms as business opportunities and not just real estate, we may be ready to sit down with our families and start the planning process. Every business person needs the chance to grow and learn about their line of work and their particular niche.

Career advancement occurs gradually from worker to supervisor to chief executive officer. It should happen that way in farming, too. Building futures together will expand real opportunities and maintain family harmony. We need our brightest and best in farming, armed with good opportunities, to become the next generation of farmers.

To learn more about farm entry or farm transfer, contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 or e-mail us at pafarmlink.net. Or, consider our upcoming workshops: Selling Produce through a CSA, June 25, 2003; Value-Added Marketing on Sept 13, 2003; or Passing on the Farm Workshops this year on November 18, November 20, or December 16, or January 20, 2004.

Lancaster No-Till Field Days Set

PEACH BOTTOM (Lancaster Co.) — No-Till Farmer Field Days are scheduled June 27 at the John B. and A.K. Stoltzfus Farm, 216 Peach Bottom Road, Peach Bottom, and on July 8 at the David F. and Gideon Stoltzfus Farm, 461 Whitehorse Road, Gap.

Activities will start at 9 a.m. and continue through lunch. A simple lunch will be provided.

These field days, sponsored by local agricultural industries and organized by Penn State Cooperative Extension, are for farmers using 3-row and 6-row corn planters.

This is the third year for the 3-row to 6-row no-till corn and crop field days on the Gap and Peach Bottom farms. Greg Roth, associate professor of agronomy and extension grain crops specialist, and Sjoerd Duiker, assistant professor of soil management and applied soil physics, will bring their experience and expertise from Penn State. Grant Troop, certified professional agronomist and staff agronomist of Little Britain Agri-Supply, Inc. in Quarryville, will provide local perspectives from his work as an active crop adviser in the county.

"Successful no-till depends on understanding your soil conditions, then not doing the things that will set you up for failure," said Troop. "In Gap we have a deep limestone soil. In Peach Bottom it's a well-drained cherty type soil. We need to match our practices to soil conditions."

Troop will discuss how coulter selection and planter setup affects successful crop establishment. During the field day, farmers will have a chance to see the results of various planter set-ups on the corn in the field.

"Setting up good conditions for no-till requires planning," said Roth. "Create the best window for starting into no-till, such as following soybean or small grain with no-till corn. Avoid difficult practices, such as trying to kill an orchardgrass stand in the spring. It can be done but it's a lot easier to no-till into an old sod that was killed in the fall. You've got to understand your soil conditions and be ready to go when conditions are right."

"Mulch on the surface of the soil is a key to successful no-till," said Duiker. "Cover crops may be needed to obtain a good mulch cover. Not only does no-till dramatically reduce soil erosion but it increases the buildup of organic matter as well as earthworm and nightcrawler activity. That increases infiltration and water holding capacity during drought."

Farmers attending the field day will earn pesticide education credits toward the applicator licenses with the state. Bob Anderson, Lancaster County extension agent, will be on hand to answer questions about personal protective equipment and other core-related topics.

Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact Mark Goodson, (717) 840-7408, in advance of your participation or visit.

Dandie says... Worried about too many acres of late planted corn??

Century & Summer King BMR

First Cut Ready in About 40 Days!

SORGUM SUDAN HYBRIDS

Century BMR
- Locally proven hybrid
- 80-85 days to boot

Summer King BMR
- New lower cost product
- 60-65 days to boot

Brown Mid Rib (BMR) Sorghum Sudangrass may be the summer crop for you! The weather has challenged dairy farmers this year, and made high quality forage supplies very tight. No one knows what summer will bring. Will we have enough heat units to finish a corn crop? Do you have enough forage on hand to wait for a corn crop? Sorghum sudans require heat as well, but cost much less to grow.The energy levels in BMR are similar to corn silage with approximately twice the protein when harvested at 30-36 inches.

Management Tips:
- Apply 75 units of Nitrogen at planting.
- Plant at 35-60 lbs per acre.
- Seed depth approximately 1"

For Super Feed Quality:
Harvest for balage at 30"
For silage at 36"
For grazing at 18"
- Apply 50 units of Nitrogen after first cutting, or after second grazing.
- Approx. 30 days between cuts.

Celebration Salutes Dairy Farmers Who Feed The World

LOU ANN GOOD

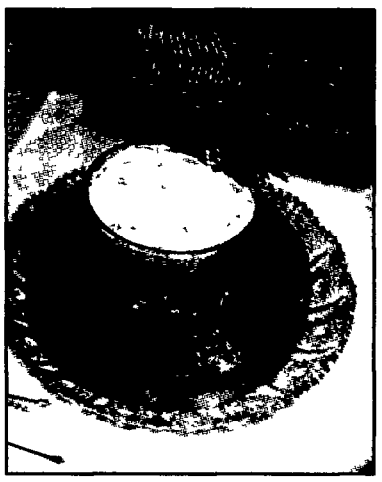
Features Editor

DILLSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — What will happen if legislative restrictions continue to curb agriculture?

"That table will be empty," Bunk Smith said as he pointed to a spectacular display of food.

"Dairy farmers work 365 days a year so that the rest of us can eat. But people don't appreciate it," Smith said. "I want to remind people where their food comes from before it's too late and no more food is on the table."



The ice ring that surrounds this dairy dip is easy to make, according to Rosina Martz. Place a bit of water in the bottom of a mold. Arrange flowers and herbs. Top with ice cubes and fill the mold with water. Freeze until ready to display.

"U.S. farmers feed the world. I want to support farmers as much as possible," Bunk said. His mother Rosina Martz prepared much of the food highlighting real dairy products.

Smith did his part to show exactly how good and plentiful food made with real dairy products can be. On June 5, Smith threw an elaborate celebration at his business, J&J Agri-Products and Services, Inc., in honor of dairy farmers.

Dillsburg Mayor George Javis recalled that Dillsburg had been predominately a farm community until the late 1960s.

"Radical changes are everywhere since the 1960s," the mayor said. He pointed out that even the FFA chapter of Big Spring High School has also changed radically. Formerly, the Gifford Pinchot FFA offered only agriculture classes. Now FFA encompasses mechanics, horticulture, and flower arranging.

While embracing changes, "A community in transition needs to remember that an ag base is needed for the future," the mayor said.

Community growth is impinging on farmland, but farmers are needed to continue to feed the population.

Dave Stetler, treasurer of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, encouraged the audience to be involved in community decision-making in order to maintain a place for farmers.

"Be a person with a face and name. A numerical statistic is easier to dismiss that an enthusiastic, committed activist for ag affairs," he said.

Cumberland County Dairy Ambassador Bernadette Nace led the crowd in a milk toast to dairy farmers.

"Raise your glasses high and chug," said Nace, who lauded farmers for their amazing dedication and work so that the rest of us can eat.

Eat is what the crowd did. Although the main focus was dairy foods in celebration of June Dairy Month, other foods produced by farmers, such as strawberries and beef, were also served.

Helping with the event were numerous ag-related promotion groups, American Dairy Association, and the Beef Council. Messick's from Abbotstown brought a new tractor for the celebration.

Harrison and Holly Miller from Great View Farm, Harrisburg, brought their Pennsylvania Farm Show grand champion calf and an Excellent 92 dam to the celebration.

Smith's mother Rosina Martz, known locally as the "Herb Lady," prepared many of the dishes using dairy products. Her signature dishes were accented with roses, Lady Slippers, herbs, and other flowers.

Rosina believes that food served attractively adds to the appeal. Her ice rings surrounding dairy dips captured the crowd's attention.

Rosina said the ice rings are easy to make. Put a small amount of water in the bottom of a mold. Arrange fresh flowers, herbs, and greenery in the mold. Top with ice cubes then fill mold with water. Freeze until ready to serve.

Here are some of Rosina's recipes.

Lemon Thyme
Lemon Verbena Butter

2 tablespoons fresh, finely chopped lemon thyme leaves
2 tablespoons finely chopped lemon verbena leaves
1 cup butter, softened, creamed
Zest of 1 fresh lemon
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1-3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar

Mix well and refrigerate for flavors to blend. Before serving, remove from refrigerator to soften. Spread on pound cake or shortcake cookies.

Mixed Herb Dip

1 pint sour cream
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon chopped dill
2 tablespoons chopped onion
Dash salt
1 teaspoon garlic chives (optional)

Combine ingredients and mix well. Let set one hour in refrigerator so flavors marry. Can adjust amount of herbs used to suit your taste.

This looks like a cake but is actually a layered sandwich when cut.

Creamy Peanut Butter Pie

8 ounces cream cheese
½ cup sugar
⅓ cup peanut butter
⅓ cup whipped cream topping
10 peanut butter cups
9-inch chocolate crumb crust

Beat cream cheese, sugar, and peanut butter until smooth. Fold in whipped cream. Coarsely chop five peanut butter cups; stir into cream cheese mixture. Spoon into crust. Quarter remaining peanut butter cups and arrange over top of pie. Refrigerate four hours before cutting.

Pageant Showcases Dairy Promoters

LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Newly crowned Lebanon County Dairy Princess Jessica Bross isn't a newcomer to dairy promotion. For the past three years, she has assisted in dairy promotion as a dairy maid.

The experience has enabled her to become well-versed in dairy nutrition facts, an important component when interacting with consumers. Jessica portrays enthusiasm not only for dairy nutrition but also cows — Brown Swiss in particular.

She owns 13 cows on her parents' dairy farm. The 16-year-old daughter of Dennis and Patricia Bross, Myerstown, also enjoys showing cattle.

At Tulpehocken High School, where she will be a senior in the fall, Jessica is a member of the National Honor Society and treasurer of the FFA chapter. She participates in the NorLebCo 4-H Dairy Club and has raised three seeing eye puppies as a member of the Extra Special Puppy Club.

After high school graduation, Jessica plans to study dairy science at Virginia Tech.

Jessica was one of four contestants at the Lebanon County Pageant June 7. Selected as first alternate is Erin Williams, the 16-year-old daughter of David and Christine Williams. The Williams family, which includes two siblings, Lauren and Matthew, operate a dairy on Chris-Da-Will Farm. Erin's mother is a Tulpehocken FFA adviser.

Erin will be a junior at Northern Lebanon High School, where she participates in FFA, field hockey, cross country, track, ecology club, and varsity club.

Laura Blauch crowns her successor to the Lebanon County dairy princess title, Jessica Bross.

Erin is also active in her church youth group, NorLebCo 4-H Dairy Club, Lebanon County Livestock Club, Junior Holstein Dairy Bowl Team, and the Pennsylvania Junior Simmental Association.

The two other contestants will also assist in dairy promotion. These include Merritt Hernley, 16-year-old daughter of Shawn and Karen Hernley, Lebanon. Merritt's family operates Crown Quest Ayrshire. Merritt also works on the dairy farm of Gary Lentz.

Audrey Hitz, the 16-year-old daughter of Steven and Cindy Hitz, works on the family dairy farm, Lebanon, where her favorite job is driving tractor.

On stage, the four contestants needed to answer the following impromptu question: In your opinion, what is the greatest challenge facing farmers today?

Jessica answered that it is the loss of farmland. Erin said it is the price of milk, which is at a 20-year low. Audrey said the farmer has to do everything required especially with and without milk is the most challenging. Merritt sees the surplus of milk as the most challenging.

Each of the four contestants also presented a skit for the audience. Jessica examined a painting of Mona Lisa and surmised she wasn't smiling because she had too many cavities, her hair was dull from lack of protein, and her skin pale from lack of vitamin A. Jessica explained why drinking milk could had made a dramatic difference in Mona Lisa's appearance.

Merritt presented dairy facts about cows such as 290 dairy breeds exist in the world, cows don't give milk, they make it, and inquisitive cows relax when they hear music.

Audrey portrayed Detective Hitz examining school lunches for evidence that students are not consuming enough dairy products for good nutrition.

Erin jogged in for a track race to tell how important milk is for daily calcium. According to surveys, 9 out of 10 teen-age girls are not getting enough calcium, which threatens future health. "You need milk to support your body for the rest of your life," Erin said.

Assisting will dairy promotion in Lebanon County during the next year are Dairy Maids Melissa Bashore, 15-year-old daughter of Ricki and Roberta Bashore, Lebanon, and Amber Hernley, 15-year-old daughter of Shawn and Karen Hernley, Lebanon. Ambassador is Alex Werner, 17-year-old son of Jeff and Sue Werner, and Dairy Misses are Royell Bashore, 10-year-old daughter of Robert and Sherry Bashore; Danielle Bausher, 11-year-old daughter of Will and Norma Swanger, Lebanon; and Brooke Mendoff, 11-year-old daughter of Steve and Melissa Mendoff, Lebanon.

Lebanon County Dairy Princess Jessica Bross is surrounded by her court: Alternates Erin Williams, Merritt Hernley, and Audrey Hitz; Dairy Maids Melissa Bashore and Amber Hernley; Ambassador Alex Werner; and Dairy Misses Royell Bashore, Danielle Bausher, and Brooke Mendoff.

Eleven people entered a dessert in the Digging Into Dairy Contest. After judges Art Sweinhart, Lebanon Fair Board, and Annabel Melito, home economist, selected the winning entries, the desserts were served with ice cream and fresh strawberries to pageant attendees.

Taking first prize in the contest was Billi Hill. Royelle Bashore placed second, and Lorraine Zook, third. See this week's featured recipe on page B6 for the first-prize entry.

Before crowning her successor, Laura Blauch reported on a "memorable year." She plans to study education at Ursinus College and spend two years in the Peace Corp.

Nina Redding, Adams County extension agent, served as the emcee for the event and interviewed each of the candidates for dairy princess, dairy maid, ambassador, and little miss.

Lebanon County Dairy Princess Jessica Bross has been promoting the dairy industry for three years.

Berks County Dairy Princess Begins Reign

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Pamela Werley is the Berks County Dairy Princess.

Werley and her dairy promotion partners Alternate Princesses Amber Hallowell and Tiffany Kissell and Li'l Miss Jessica Duncan were selected at the annual Dairy Princess Pageant, Berks County Agricultural Center, May 17.

With Kirk Sattazahn serving as emcee, the evening featured dairy promotion presentations from each of the princess candidates, interviews with prospective Li'l Misses, highlights of the past year, and farewells from the outgoing royalty.

Werley, daughter of Phillip and Donna Werley, Hamburg, is completing her freshman year as an elementary education major at Kutztown University. She is president of the Northern Berks 4-H Dairy Club and owns more than 20 Holsteins on her parents' 160-acre dairy farm.

Werley is a member of both the 4-H and Jr. Holstein Club's 2000 Pennsylvania champion and third-place national Dairy Bowl teams. Werly has been a dairy ambassador for six years and began promoting milk as Berks County's Li'l Miss in 1989. She is employed at Laurel Nursing Center as well as the family farm.

Pam's skit featured the caped crusader Captain Calcium in her fight to save the 70 percent of the population threatened by osteoporosis and calcium deficiency.

Hallowell is the daughter of Wayne and Suzanne Hallowell, Bechtelsville. She will be a senior at Boyertown Area high School and is a member of the Eastern Berks 4-H Dairy Club, the Berks County Holstein Club, and previously was very active in the Montgomery County 4-H program.

She is president of the Berks County 4-H Toastmasters Club, and involved with Dairy Bowl and Dairy Judging classes as well as a Teen Leader.

Amber owns 22 dairy animals of four different breeds at her parents' farm where she is employed. She is responsible for calf and heifer nutrition and hopes to further her education at Cornell University studying biology.

Her penchant for driving trucks figured prominently in her dairy promotion skit as Amber utilized a dairy milk truck as a platform for extolling the benefits of milk.

Tiffany Kissell chose a different tack in her presentation as Mother Goose's sister. Various fairy tale characters found themselves promoting dairy products from cheese to whey.

Kissell, daughter of Steven and Kimberlee Harrop, Bernville, will be a senior at Tulpehocken High School where she is involved in the FFA program. A dairy ambassador for five years, Tiffany is a member of the Northern Berks 4-H Dairy Club and enjoys showing her Holstein and Milking Shorthorn animals.

She is responsible for calf and heifer care on her parents' 148 acre farm and also does relief milking. She is employed at WayHar Farms Dairy Store.

Six-year-old Jessica Duncan won the judges' hearts as the Li'l Miss for 2003. The daughter of Donald and Loretta Duncan, Robesonia, did a Show and Tell storybook about farms for the pageant audience, ending with a milk moustache. Other entrants included Samantha Haag, daughter of David and Mary Haag, Centerport; Taylor Hafer, daughter of Tom and Kathy Hafer, Douglassville; and Morgan Stump, daughter of Duane and Victoria Stump, Bernville.

Outgoing Princess Kellie Phillips and Alternate Princesses Vicki Kieffer and Becky Dietrich expressed their thanks to the community and shared special moments of their year's promotions. Li'l Miss Lindsay Fessler, who had accompanied the princesses on almost every one of their promotions, choked back tears as she sang her " I like milk" theme song for the audience.

The Dairy Princess Committee thanked the dairy Ambassadors for their assistance during the year at promotions. Recognized were Elizabeth Angstadt, Kara Brendlinger, Kate Hartman, Lynae Johns, Pepper Kissell, Tiffany Kissell, Megan Phillips, Sarah Tuttle, and Pamela Werley.

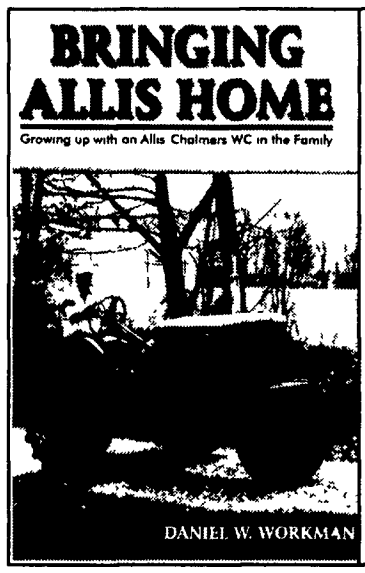
Werley and her court are available for speaking engagements and demonstrations free of charge for community groups. Contact booking chairperson Debbie Kieffer at (717) 933.5462 or e-mail mkief@nbn.net.

Judges for the pageant were Jane Pepple, retired Chester County dairy farmer; Galen Kopp, Lebanon Extension Agent; and Jeff Schneck, Timac (a fertilizer company).



Banquet or After-dinner Speaker

Dr. Daniel Workman, retired educator, farmer, and newspaper writer, and author of the tractor book, Bringing Allis Home® is available for speaking engagements for various occasions. He resides in Amish country in Holmes County, Ohio, and presents an inspirational, light-hearted and humorous talk that is more suited for older farm or rural Christian folks. It can be tailored to the audience and time available.

On Being a Farm Wife
(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Green ground.

And purple corn.

No one 'round these parts can remember a year in which so little farm crop work has been completed as the last full week of spring rolls over into official summer. And the prolonged monsoon of damp, gray, drippy and deluges has rendered some unusual phenomena.

We have soils tinted green with mossy/slimy/wet overtones, pushing up reluctant shoots of corn protesting conditions with purple-tinted stress signs. Corn is a heat-loving tropical and like people who are chilly, "turns blue" when it lacks adequate warmth.

Even though it looks purple and peaked, our corn acreage is at least planted. Early this week, our soybeans sat high and dry, in their seed bags. I've tried not to grumble and worry, remembering last year's parched summer.

Our rolling, well-drained soils dry fairly quickly, enabling our equipment to head for the fields after a good day of sunny airy weather. Much acreage in the region on low-lying ground, or of heavy soils, had not yet been planted this week. Couple this late, wet, delayed-everything year with the shortened (or failed) crops of last year's drought and you can imagine how bare most barn cupboards have gotten. The seasonal weather pendulum seems locked into bizarre, extreme swings, unable to find any sort of sensible "normal" rhythm.

Hole-y, yellow-leaved peppers. Tomato stems nipped to nubbins. A totally-vanished row of string beans.

That's what greets us in the garden, as Derra Dog and I swing by after a frustrated check of the green-tinted fields of purple-hued corn seedlings. Lingering wetness has spawned an incredible population of slugs, cousins of ordinary snails but naked of the shell. These little gray oozing clumps of insect goo gnaw their way through an extensive array of plants. And they don't just take samples here and there, but will chomp whole leaves into Swiss cheese-like conditions, leaving more hole than foliage. Despite my liberal dustings with deterrents, the slugs appear to have banqueted on most of the pepper plant leaves, then finished dinner off with a dessert of infant string beans.

Keeping slugs company is a fat robin I spy regularly, hip-hopping around the yard, usually headed for the garden. Slugs shun tomato plants, but every one of ours not protected by some sort of sheltering device was promptly and nearly nibbled off. This team of sluggish slugs and raider rabbits should eliminate any problems with excess garden produce this season.

A less-destructive damp-weather-denizen is the king (maybe queen?) of the ponds, one of the fattest, biggest bullfrogs we have ever seen. Its conversation with fellow frogs dominates the evening meadow harmony, as the deep-throated croaks echo back and forth across the waterlily pads and pond grass clumps.

Hard, greenish strawberries. Reluctant raspberries. Melancholy melon plants. A friend has dubbed this season "suspended animation" in gardening.

But, hey, what's this?

Thick growth springing up, turning bare soil to lush patches of green. Strong, sturdy stems defy the weather and push rampant foliage skyward, rejoicing in the frequent rain.

Weeds. Healthy and apparently very happy, regardless of conditions.

Why don't slugs and rabbits eat weeds?

Chester County Awards Ag Scholarship

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Commissioners and Agricultural Development Council awarded Thomas Marsh of Honey Brook their $1,000 Agricultural Grant for 2003.

Marsh, a Coatesville Area Senior High School student, has been involved with 4-H Clubs and leadership activities as well as many school activities. He recently attended the 4-H "Capital Days" program in Harrisburg. He plans to study Horticulture and Animal Science at Penn State University.

The Council has been presenting the scholarship each year since 1995 to a high school senior planning to pursue a career in agriculture or an agriculture-related field. The applicants must plan to attend a four-year college on a full-time basis.

Contest Entry Recipes Showcase Dairy Goodness

Lancaster Farming's June Dairy Month Recipe Drawing showcases dairy goodness.

This is the second week contest entry recipes are featured on the "Home On The Range" pages. Entries will also appear in the next two issues of Lancaster Farming.

The recipes are printed in no particular order. Even if your recipe appeared, you may be a winner. The state dairy princess and alternates will draw the winning entries. A list of readers' names who will receive one of the $500 worth of prizes will be printed in the June 28th issue.

Until then, happy reading and cooking.

1 cup milk
1 cup flour
¼ cup melted butter
3 teaspoons baking powder

Mix everything together and pour into greased pie plate or muffin tin. Bake at 425 degrees for 20-25 minutes until golden brown.

APRICOT STREUSEL SWIRL COFFEE CAKE

Cake:
2 cups flour
⅓ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ cup milk
2 eggs
¼ cup oil
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons lemon juice
⅓ cup apricot preserves

Streusel Topping:
⅓ cup flour
⅓ cup packed brown sugar
¼ cup butter
½ cup chopped pecans, walnuts, or sliced almonds

Icing:
1 cup confectioners' sugar
2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice or milk

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Prepare streusel topping.

In a medium mixing bowl, stir together flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, and soda. In a small mixing bowl, beat together milk, eggs, oil, lemon peel, and juice. Pour liquid mixture into dry ingredients and stir just until moistened. Batter will be lumpy.

Turn into sprayed or oiled 8x8x2-inch pan. Drop preserves by teaspoons in a checkerboard pattern over the top of batter. Sprinkle with streusel topping. Swirl preserves and topping into batter with spoon.

Bake until center top springs back when lightly touched and wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean, about 25 to 30 minutes. Let cool on rack for at least 10 minutes before serving (preserves will be hot).

Streusel Topping: In small bowl, stir together flour and brown sugar. Cut in butter with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in nuts.

CHOCOLATE CHEESE LAYERED BARS

½ cup butter, softened (no substitutes)
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup chopped pecans

Cheese layer:
6 ounce cream cheese, softened
¼ cup butter, softened
½ cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup chopped pecans
1 cup (6 ounce) semi-sweet chocolate chips
3 cups miniature marshmallows

Topping:
¼ cup butter
2 ounce cream cheese, softened
1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate
2 tablespoons milk
3 cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a mixing bowl, cream together butter and sugar. Add eggs, chocolate, and vanilla. Mix well. Combine flour and baking powder; stir into chocolate mixture. Fold in pecans. Pour into a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan.

In a mixing bowl, combine cream cheese and butter. Beat in the sugar, egg, flour, and vanilla. Mix well. Fold in pecans; spread over the chocolate layer. Sprinkle with chips. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until edges pull away from sides of pan. Sprinkle with marshmallows. Bake 2 minutes longer or until puffed. Cool on a wire rack.

In a saucepan, combine first 4 topping ingredients. Cook and stir over low heat until smooth. Transfer to a mixing bowl, add confectioners' sugar and vanilla. Beat until smooth. Spread over cooled bars. Store in refrigerator. Makes 2 dozen.

ONE DISH SCALLOPED POTATO CROCKPOT MEAL

Layer the following in 3 layers in a 3½-quart crockpot (buttered with 2 tablespoons butter).

9 medium potatoes, peeled and sliced
1 medium onion chopped
⅔ cup sliced carrots
1 cup peas
6 heaping tablespoons flour mixed with 2 teaspoons salt
1 pound open pork sausage, fried and crumbled
1 cup shredded American cheese
3 cups milk

Pour 3 cups of milk over all.

Bake on high for 3 hours, or can simmer on low after it's cooking and half soft, for all morning.

I like to make this when we go to church, or anywhere, or even on a busy day.

My husband is Wilmer, a devoted dairy farmer. We rent a 40 cow tiestall barn and farm 150 acres. We have five children, who love it on the farm. I grew up on a dairy farm. We used bucket milkers and I helped carry the milk in buckets to the bulk tank. We also churned our butter by hand in an old-fashioned wooden butter churn.

Featured Recipe

The Digging Into Dairy Dessert Contest sponsored at the Lebanon County Dairy Princess Pageant was a night for indulging in the sweetest concoctions made with real dairy products.

Terry Shuey, chairperson for county dairy promotion, said the 11 entries show the versatality and good taste dairy products provide.

Judges Annabelle Melito and Art Sweinhart selected the winning entries on the basis of appearance, taste, texture, and amount of dairy products used.

First place goes to dairy farmer Billie Hill. Here is the winning recipe.

Chocolate Chip Coffee Cake

1 cup butter, softened
2 cups sugar
3 large eggs
½ teaspoon almond extract
2 cups buttermilk
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda

Cream together butter, sugar, eggs, and extract. Add the remaining ingredients. Blend well with electric mixer.

Spray 9x13-inch pan with vegetable spray or grease and flour. Pour two-thirds of batter into pan; sprinkle with ¾ cup milk chocolate chips on top. Put on remaining batter. Top with two thirds cup milk chocolate chips. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45-50 minutes.

When completely cool, combine the following ingredients and drizzle over cake:

⅓ cup milk chocolate chips
1½ teaspoons shortening

Attend Lancaster Dairy Princess Pageant

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — If you are ready for a change of pace, involving entertainment and suspense, be sure to attend the Lancaster County Dairy Princess pageant on Saturday, June 21, at the Farm and Home Center Auditorium in Lancaster.

Kari Martin, Ephrata, the reigning princess, will give up her title at the pageant. One of three contestants will earn the title that evening.

Festivities commence with a milk punch and cheese reception at 7 p.m., with the pageant itself beginning at 7:30 p.m. After the pageant, attendees will enjoy an ice cream social and have the chance to meet both past and present members of the promotion team.

This year 28 young women make up the Lancaster County Dairy Royalty Court. Also presented during the pageant are the Dairy of Distinction awards presented to three farms that have earned the title this year.

Three young women are competing for the title of Lancaster County Dairy Princess this year. Stephanie Donough, 18, daughter of Tim and Brenda Donough, Elizabethtown.

Tim and Brenda are both employed as herdsmen at Strickland Dairy, a 450-acre farm with 330 head of Jerseys and Holsteins in the herd. Stephanie recently completed her high school education and is a home-school graduate. She is a member and president of the Northwest 4-H Dairy Club, is on the Lancaster County dairy judging team, and has been a dairy ambassador for the past three years. Dairy cattle fitting and showmanship are two activities Stephanie enjoys; she also likes helping at the farm whenever possible. Web-design and activities involving the computer are other interests Stephanie pursues. She plans to attend college in the fall of 2004.

Another prospective candidate is Carla Martin, the 18-year-old daughter of David and Robbin Martin of Manheim. Carla resides on Danda Farm, a 300-acre farm with 130 head of dairy cattle. Principal crops produced are grass, alfalfa and corn.

A home-school graduate, Carla plans to attend Lebanon County Career and Technology Center as a nursing major in the fall. Carla is the reigning Manheim Fair Queen and was one of the top five finalists at the State Fair Queen Competition.

Active in her church, Carla is part of the religious education team, and sings in a trio at church. Musically inclined, she sings and plays several instruments. She also enjoys sports, horseback riding and photography in her spare time. Carla is employed part-time as a waitress at Kreider Dairy Farms Restaurant; a CNA at Mt. Hope Home; and as a secretary at G & G Feed and Supply.

A 16-year-old junior at Conestoga Valley High School, Karen Shaub is the daughter of Kirk and Shirley Shaub. Kirk is employed by Blossomelle Holsteins in Lancaster. Karen has been a dairy ambassador for two years, and was previously a dairy darling. Active in Lancaster County 4-H, Karen also volunteers at Landis Homes. She is employed part-time by Stauffer's of Kissel Hill. School activities Karen is involved with include vice-president of FBLA, Interact Club, Marching Band, JV volleyball, and the summer and winter swim teams. Her future plans include attending Penn State as an elementary education major.

Volunteering to assist the princesses as dairy ambassadors are 14 young ladies. Returning for a fourth year is: Cheryl Hershey, daughter of Dale and Martha Hershey, Ronks. Apryl Becker, daughter of Merle and Janet Becker, Kinzers; and Alysha Royer, daughter of Lynn and Sara Royer, Lancaster, will be serving for a third year.

Reservations are not needed to attend the pageant to show support for dairy promoters.

Celebrating Men In Our Families

Sunday, June 15, is Father's Day in the United States. The idea for having a day to celebrate fathers is credited to a woman named Louisa Smart Dodd from Spokane, Washington.

After listening to a Mother's Day sermon at her church in 1909, Mrs. Dodd was inspired to begin a petition for a day to honor fathers. She appreciated and valued the strength of her own father who had selflessly raised her and five siblings after her mother died in childbirth.

The first Father's Day observance was held in Washington in 1910, then spread to other cities across the country. It is now a national holiday that is celebrated the third Sunday in June.

This is not only the time when we honor our fathers, but many of the other men in our family — grandfathers and grandsons, brothers and uncles, sons and stepsons, fathers-in-law and stepfathers. Throughout their lives and ours, men make unique contributions to strengthen the linkages in our families.

There are men who treat all family members the same regardless of their ages. In our family it's my son. He respects the views of his 13-year-old nephew the same as those of his 86-years old grandmother. He also contributes by demonstrating his love and caring for other family members with special words, hugs or a kiss at the right time.

Other men contribute by being there when needed, acting as teachers or mentors. A grandfather spending time with his grandchildren and listening to their problems, an older brother teaching a younger family member how to ride a bike, a stepfather helping his stepchild with his homework, or an uncle spending time at the playground with his nieces and nephews are good examples of ways men model fathering and contribute to family life.

There are also things women in the family need to consider and do to help men make valuable contributions to family relationships. Think about the stresses that could affect men's relationships with family members at different stages of their lives. Examples include the job pressures of a middle-aged man and older men dealing with life changes. To avoid disappointment, be realistic about what to expect.

Learn about the special talents of the men in your family and find ways to use these talents. You may find handymen, computer experts, and musicians. I recently discovered my nephew is a talented guitarist. His willingness to play at a recent memorial service for a family member made the event even more special for everyone. Older men have a need to leave a legacy and may be happy to tell family stories at family reunions or other special celebrations, or work on a family genealogy project with a younger family member.

Whether it is helping a sick family member, fixing that leaky gutter, teaching a child to play ball or a to drive a car, remember to show appreciation to the men in your family.

So, while you are wrapping that Father's Day gift or planning the barbecue, spend a few quiet minutes reflecting on what the men in your family do that you appreciate and note your thoughts on paper. Decide how you will express that appreciation to them. When men take an active role in family life and we let them know how much we appreciate it, it's a winning combination!

If you would like more information on how to build a stronger family, contact your county extension office. Ask for publications, Celebrate Your Family Across Generations 1-6 and other Strengthen Your Family series.

Garden Tour To Benefit Historic Fasig House

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Manheim Historical Society's Annual Garden Tour features nine gardens, Sunday, June 22, 1 to 5 p.m. Tickets ordered in advance are $6, on tour day $8. Children under 12 years of age are free with an adult.

Tickets can be purchased ahead of time at Longenecker's Hardware, Salon Synergy and Shaub's Dry Cleaning, or at any of the garden sites the day of the tour, as well as the gazebo on Manheim Square.

Proceeds benefit the renovations on the Fasig House, a log house owned and operated by the Historical Society since 1976. The Fasig House is open for tour every Sunday during the summer months. On display are many historic artifacts from colonial times.

For more information, call (717) 665-3423.

QUESTION — Richard Kleckner, Quakertown, wants a recipe for Drop Welsh Cookies.

QUESTION R.H. from Seneca Falls, N.Y., wants a recipe for a good Philly Cheesesteak. Also, for the recipe, do cooks use cubed or ground beef?

QUESTION — Yvonne Scantling, Wrightsville, writes that as a girl in the 1950s, her family purchased goat's milk taffy at the F.W. Woolworth Stores in Columbia and Lancaster. The taffy came in vanilla, chocolate, and strawberry flavors. It was made in large sheets 15x15-inches and weighed about five pounds each, she estimates. A hammer was used to break the taffy whenever it was purchased. Yvonne would love to have the recipe to make the delicious taffy. Woolworths only sold it during the summer months.

QUESTION — Pam Bange, Hanover, wants a recipe for cherry vanilla pie (like those sold at Nell's Surefine Market in Hanover and East Berlin). The cherry pie has almond slivers on top and vanilla flavoring.

QUESTION — Jean Mitchell, Lewisburg, is looking for a recipe to make blueberry whoopie pies.

ANSWER — Lizzie Stoltzfus, Gap, noted that years ago they used to make a drink called soda water in the summertime. She couldn't find tartaric acid, however. Holly Lutz, Jonestown, writes that in the Webster's Dictionary's definition, lemon juice may be substituted. According to the dictionary, writes Lutz, tartaric acid is found in many fruits and used in soft drinks and confectionery and baking powder. It is used as a substitute for lemon juice.

ANSWER — Isaac Kirk, Silver Spring, Md., wanted a recipe for rhubarb jelly and for red beet jelly. Holly Lutz, Jonestown, sent in the following.

Easy Rhubarb Jam

5 cups diced rhubarb
2 cups sugar
1 small can crushed pineapple, drained

Mix and let stand two hours, then boil 12 minutes. Remove from heat and add one small package strawberry Jell-O and jar or put in plastic containers. Refrigerate. Also freezes well.

Rhubarb/Strawberry Jelly

1 quart rhubarb, cut very fine
2 quarts ripe strawberries
6 cups sugar
6 ounces pectin

Crush strawberries, add to rhubarb and bring to a boil. Strain juice through a jelly bag. Use 3½ cups juice. Combine with sugar and bring to a boil for one minute. Remove from heat and skim. Pour into jelly glasses and seal. Yields six to seven half pints.

Red Beet Jelly

3 cups beet juice
4 teaspoons lemon juice
1 box powdered pectin
4 cups sugar
1 small package raspberry-flavored, unsweetened drink mix

To make beet juice, peel and dice raw beets, simmer them until the water is very dark red. Strain.

Combine beet juice, lemon juice, and pectin in a large pan. Bring to a rolling boil. Quickly add sugar and boil for six minutes. Add the drink mix powder and mix thoroughly. Pour into sterilized 8-ounce jelly jars. Fill to within ½ inch of top. Put on cap, strew band firmly.

Process in boiling water bath five minutes.

Yield: four 8-ounce jars.

An Ephrata reader sent in the following recipe.

Rhubarb Jelly

10 cups diced rhubarb
8 cups sugar
3 oranges
1 lemon
1 cup chopped nuts
1½ cups seedless raisins (optional)

Wash and clean rhubarb, then cut into small pieces. Add sugar, orange, and lemon juices.

Grind rind of lemon and one orange and add. Cook slowly and stir occasionally.

When thick, add chopped nuts and remove from heat. Pour into glasses and seal. Makes six pints.

ANSWER — Brenda Weidenhammer, Schuylkill Haven, was looking for a recipe to make fig bars that taste similar to Fig Newtons. M. Hursh, Ephrata, sent in the following recipe that "resembles store-bought fig bars but tastes better."

Fig Bars

4 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon lemon juice

FigFilling

1½ cups ground dried figs
1 cup water
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons orange juice

For bars, sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt.

Cream together butter and brown sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Beat in vanilla and lemon juice.

Stir dry ingredients into creamed mixture, mixing well. Cover and chill in refrigerate two hours.

To make filling, combine ground dried figs and water in a saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Boil five minutes.

Stir together sugar and flour, then stir that mixtures into the figs. Cook until thick. Remove from heat and add orange juice. Cool to room temperature.

With the bar mixture, divide the dough in half. Roll out each half on floured surface to 18X12-inch rectangle. Cut into four three-inch wide strips.

Place filling down center of strips.

Using a metal spatula, fold the side of the dough lengthwise over filling. Cut in half, making 9-inch strips. Transfer strips, seam down, to ungreased baking sheet, about two inches apart.

Bake in 375-degree oven for 15 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from sheets, cool, and cut into two-inch bars. Makes about five dozen.

Thanks to Krista Schaible, Schuykill Haven, for sending a similar recipe to this one from Holly Lutz:

Fig Newton Bars

1 pound dried figs or two pounds fresh figs
1 cup sugar
½ cup or 1 cup water (1 cup for dried figs; ½ cup for fresh)
½ cup butter, room temperature
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 tablespoons cream or milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1¾ cups flour

Dice figs, soak in water one hour. Add sugar and cook on medium heat until of thin jam consistency. Beat sugar, butter, eggs, milk, and vanilla until well blended. Add dry ingredients. Mix well, refrigerate one hour. Place ½ on well-floured dough cloth; knead about six times. Roll out to ¼-inch thick. Line 13X9-inch glass dish; cover with figs. Roll remaining dough, cover figs. Cook at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

ANSWER — Dorothy Bauman, Philadelphia, requested wheat and gluten-free products. Richard Mecionis, Fair Lawn, New Jersey, writes that she could write to Kinnikinnick Foods, Edmonton A.B. Canada, T5K1N1, phone number 1-877-503-4466. "They will send you a free booklet to order donuts, breads, flower mixes, and bagels," writes Mecionis.

ANSWER — Donna Rhine, Quarryville, wants to know if anyone has a "Lep Cookie" recipe. An Ephrata reader sent in the following recipe.

Lepp Cookies

2 cups butter
4 pounds brown sugar
12 eggs
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons vanilla
1 scant tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons baking soda
5 cups buttermilk
4¾ pounds bread flour

Mix butter, brown sugar, eggs, butter, vanilla, and salt with a potato masher. Add soda in buttermilk, and bread flour. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-15 minutes. Put butter icing on after cookies are cool.

Holly Lutz, Jonestown, sent in the following variation:

Lepp Cookies

2 cups packed brown sugar
1 cup butter
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
4 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup sour cream

Cream together sugar and butter. Add in eggs.

In another bowl, mix baking soda and flour. Add to sugar mixture. Add sour cream. Mix well.

Drop by teaspoon fulls onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated oven at 350 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Makes 3-4 dozen (48 servings).

ANSWER — Thanks to Krista Schaible, Schuylkill Haven, for sending recipes to make crackers from a variety of flours and from seed or nut meal in answer to A. Weaver's request.

Crackers Made With Flour

2 cups flour (wheat, buckwheat, oak, rye, barley, corn, rice, millet, arrowroot, squash, yam, potato or bean flour)
1 teaspoon baking powder or baking soda
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
⅓ cup oil (olive, peanut, sunflower, corn, safflower, sesame, soy, walnut) or butter
⅓ cup cold water (approximate measure)

Crackers: Made From Nuts Or Seeds

2 cups nut or seed meal (cashew, walnut, pecan, macadamia, almond, brazil, filbert, pistachio meal or pumpkin seed, sunflower seed, or sesame seed meal)
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
⅓ cup thickner (tapioca, xanthan gum, flaxseed meal, arrowroot or bean flour

Note: Oil is not usually needed with nuts and seeds. If the finished product is tough, add ⅛ cup oil the next time.

Combine flour, baking powder or soda and salt. Mix well, add oil and mix with a fork until crumbly. Add water slowly, as needed, form into two balls. Chill thoroughly. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place ball on lightly greased baking sheet, roll out to make ¼-inch thick. Dust dough with flour if necessary to keep from sticking to rolling pin. Cut into 2-inch squares or use cookie cutters for fun shapes. Prick with fork all over. Bake in middle of preheated 350 degree oven for 10 minutes or until brown. (Time varies depending on type of all flour used). Watch carefully to prevent burning.

Note: If dough is too sticky, don't panic. Gently stretch and pat into place with floured fingers. Next time use less liquid.

Variations: Sprinkle with chopped nuts, seeds, coconut, or finely chopped dried fruit or dried bell peppers; roll again before cutting into squares. Or, try adding ½ teaspoon seasoning from basil, oregano, peppermint, rosemary, sage, thyme, ginger, marjoram, parsley, cardamom, garlic powder, angelica, anise, savory, caraway, chervil, dill seed, dill weed, ginger, licorice, chives, (fresh or dried) or chili powder.

Red Barons Celebrate June Dairy Month

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess Raechel Kilgore was joined by county dairy princess representing northeastern Pennsylvania at the Lackawanna County Stadium to celebrate June is Dairy Month.

Sponsored by the Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Princess Committee, dairy royalty participated in several pre-game activities meeting with fans and having fun promoting Pennsylvania's leading agricultural industry, dairy.

"The Wyoming-Lackawanna Counties Dairy Princess Committee is excited to return to Lackawanna County Stadium to start our month-long dairy celebration," said committee chairperson Laura Anderson. "The dairy industry holds a special meaning to the members of our committee and the dairy royalty. This promotion provides us a fun way to share the importance of the dairy industry with the public."

The highlight of the pre-game activities was the building of Lackawanna County's largest ice cream sundae with ice cream donated by Manning's Dairy of Dalton. Other promotional activities included a milk mustache poster giveaway, and a free dairy giveaway item.

After the pre game diary festivities, the dairy royalty took time to cheer on the Red Barons as they took on the Norfolk Tides.

For almost 20 years, the Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Princess Committee has remained committed to the promotion of dairy products.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Raechel Kilgore and Wyoming Lackawanna Dairy Princess proudly hold the baseballs they threw out for the first pitch of the baseball game.

In celebration of June Dairy Month, Virginia Dairy Maids Crystal Harris, Maggie Long, and Kristen Windle hand out samples of Cabot cheddar at Martin's Food Store, Winchester, Va. Similar celebrations will be conducted throughout June at Martin's in Front Royal, Merriwether Post Pavilion, and the Brooks and Dunn concert.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Flag Day is today and so I shall hang our big flag in the holder on the front porch. I feel very thankful that my ancestors had the courage to cross the ocean so many years ago. They were some of the very first people in Lancaster County. After acquiring land and building a house, my ancestor, Hans Adam Shreiner went back to Germany for his family in 1733. Jacob Landis came from Switzerland in 1722 and settled in Lancaster County too. By this time there are 11 generations here in America.

One of my recent gifts was a box of notepaper. It is something that I appreciate and can use as I write quite a few letters. I've also been given several hanging pots for our porch and I am hoping that I can keep them watered this summer. I also got a mandevilla plant as I had a beautiful one last summer that did not live through the winter.

One of our grandchildren was given an assignment in school in which he explained our connection with the Landis Valley Museum near our home. The brothers who started the large collection of farm items were distant cousins of my mother. And, recently the museum has acquired a Conestoga wagon that was in my family for more than two centuries. It has been restored although it was in good condition as it had been "hung" in a wagon shed all of that time.

This year my three iris beds were full of flowers and I made five bouquets for my neighbors and relatives. There were only five different colors as it seems as though most of them reverted to simply blue and white.

Snooky And The Homemade Chocolate Milk In Grandma's Summer Kitchen

Every weekday after school, a fourth-grade girl called "Snooky," would go straight to her grandmother's old-fashioned "summer" kitchen and fix herself a tall glass of homemade chocolate milk.

"Yummee!" Snooky would say, downing a tumbler full of the creamy drink and smacking her lips afterward. "That really hits the spot."

A few moments later she would take the glass into the regular kitchen where her grandma cooked meals for her grandfather and two men who needed a home.

"Thank you, Grandma," Snooky would say, rinsing the cloudy, milk-stained glass under the water tap. Then the glass would be set aside until the next time her grandma washed the dishes in hot, soapy water.

Meanwhile, with her tongue, Snooky would continue licking the brown streak of chocolate residue that was still above her lip.

"You're welcome, Snooky," Grandma would say an shoo off her youngest granddaughter across the dirt driveway to her own house.

Snooky thought Grandma always knew how hungry a kid was after walking a mile and a half home from school. That's why Grandma could be counted on to have something tasty stashed away in the summer kitchen.

Maybe kids today never heard of a summer kitchen. It was a pantry, a work area, kitchen, and diningroom all rolled into one. Snooky's grandparents would always eat their meals there in the summer because it was so cool and comfortable. The regular diningroom was used only when company came calling.

This summer kitchen had a modern big electric refrigerator where Snooky's grandma would store the raw cow's milk from the farm. The milk was not pasteurized or homogenized.

Her grandma would skim off most of the thick cream that rose to the top of the milk. She would save it for later to churn into butter. And another thing her grandma did with the cream was to whip it up all light and fluffy with sugar for a luscious topping to slather on desserts like gingerbread.

Anyway, since her grandma didn't always want to stop her work to prepare Snooky's chocolate milk, she showed Snooky how to do it herself.

Snooky would begin by measuring out a heaping teaspoon of powdery cocoa from the Hershey's can to drop into the glass tumbler. A little brown cloud would rise out of the glass and she would swoosh at it with her hand.

She would heap in sugar that was at least double the amount of cocoa.

"Let's see," she would murmur, "I need a dash of salt, too." So she would get the salt shaker on the table and shake some in before blending everything with a spoon.

Next, Snooky would pour a wee bit of hot water from an old teakettle over the cocoa and sugar and stir it to form a soft brown paste.

Snooky would stir the paste until the sugar in it stopped squeaking. If it didn't sqeak, she knew it was all dissolved.

That's when it was ready for the bluish-looking milk. The milk didn't appear quite as blue once she shook the bottle to blend in the remaining cream.

She would add only a little milk to the cocoa paste at first, then little more until the glass was full.

Oh, boy, she would swallow long and hard to quench her thirst for the best drink in the world.

MILK!

"Yummee!" Snooky would say. "Does that ever hit the spot."

Afterward, she sometimes looked around and tried to understand all the stuff her grandma saved in the summer kitchen.

There was a square table of dark wood where grandma's family sat on unmatched handmade chairs to eat.

After she washed the dishes, Grandma would often take the clean, everyday dishes back to the table and arrange the plates and silverware for the next meal.

Snooky could see how grandma had filled a big heavy corner cupboard in the summer kitchen with all kinds of things. And the dark sideboard buffet that matched the table had compartments for her best silverware, tablecloths, doilies, aprons, and ruffled dust caps.

Snooky, however, didn't give a hoot about Grandma's dry sinks, old magazines, newspapers, wilting plants, or an old church pew stacked with odds and ends against the wall.

Nope.

The chocolate milk that she could make freely in Grandma's summer kitchen was all that mattered to a fourth-grade girl.

And ever after, when Snooky grew up, she never stopped loving chocolate milk.

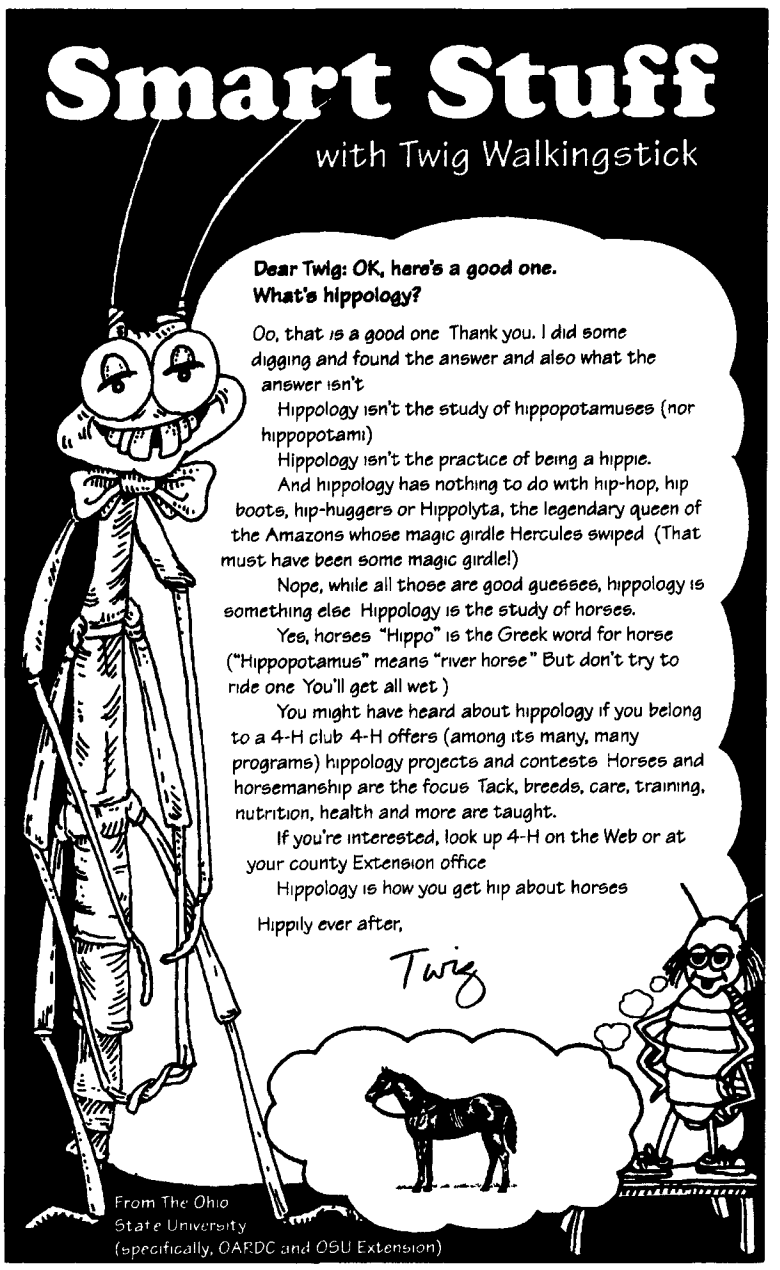
with Twig Walkingstick



Dear Twig: OK, here's a good one. What's hippology?
Oo, that is a good one Thank you. I did some digging and found the answer and also what the answer isn't Hippology isn't the study of hippopotamuses (nor hippopotami)
Hippology isn't the practice of being a hippie.
And hippology has nothing to do with hip-hop, hip boots, hip-huggers or Hippolyta, the legendary queen of the Amazons whose magic girdle Hercules swiped (That must have been some magic girdle!)
Nope, while all those are good guesses, hippology is something else Hippology is the study of horses.
Yes, horses "Hippo" is the Greek word for horse ("Hippopotamus" means "river horse" But don't try to ride one You'll get all wet.)
You might have heard about hippology if you belong to a 4-H club 4-H offers (among its many, many programs) hippology projects and contests Horses and horsemanship are the focus Tack, breeds, care, training, nutrition, health and more are taught.
If you're interested, look up 4-H on the Web or at your county Extension office
Hippology is how you get hip about horses
Hippily ever after,

LMHS Junior To Attend Governor's School For Ag Sciences

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Mennonite High School (LMHS) junior Loren Hershey, son of Les and Lois Hershey, Kirkwood, has been selected to attend the 2003 Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences this summer. He was also chosen as an alternate for the Pa. Governor's School for Global Entrepreneurship.

In addition, junior Jennifer Wenrich, daughter of Martin and Esther Wenrich, Leola, was chosen as an alternate for the Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences, and junior Angela Dietzel, daughter of Dan and Joanne Dietzel, Strasburg, was selected as an alternate for the Governor's School for Teaching.

The Governor's Schools of Excellence are a comprehensive set of residential summer programs conducted on college campuses. This year over 3,700 applications were received and only 824 students could be chosen.

Could This Be A 'Harebrained' Study?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Those tired cliches and puns just won't stop coming. When it is suggested that he is trying to pull a rabbit out of a region, Duane Diefenbach just smiles ruefully, shaking his head. "They are not rabbits, they are hares — snowshoe hares," he said. "In Pennsylvania, they exist only in parts of the Northern Tier, and this study will try to determine just where their populations persist."

The adjunct assistant professor of wildlife ecology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences doesn't think it's a "hare-brained" scheme to have researchers survey a 15,000-square-mile region of the sparsely populated, mostly forested northern counties, including the Poconos. They will be armed with hand-held computers and global positioning (GPS) units, looking for what researchers euphemistically refer to as "pellets" — fecal matter.

Because the pellets "deposited" by snowshoe hares (Lepus americanus) are indistinguishable from those left by Appalachian cottontail rabbits (Sylvilagus obscurus) and eastern cottontail rabbits (Sylvilagus americanus) that also thrive in the region, DNA testing will be used to determine where the hares are. The GPS units and computers will allow researchers to electronically mark locations of hare droppings and eventually to draw maps showing the range of the hares.

"It's kind of a crap shoot" Diefenbach pauses, catching himself in yet another pun. "This method has not been tried before in Pennsylvania, but we are optimistic that this approach will allow us to determine the range of the snowshoe hare here. Our state is at the southern periphery of the snowshoe hare's range, and habitat use by this species is not well understood."

The research project — intriguing because of its high-tech approach to a rather mundane activity — is titled the "Distribution and Large-Scale Habitat Associations of Snowshoe Hares in Northern Pennsylvania." It is one of 15 approved for funding by the Pennsylvania Game Commission and the Pennsylvania Fish & Boat Commission to benefit the state's most troubled wildlife and fish species. Using monies allocated to the state from the federal State Wildlife Grant Program, the Game Commission is providing $80,000 of the $115,000 project cost, with the university supplying the remainder.

"The snowshoe hare is a species of interest to hunters and nonhunting wildlife enthusiasts," said Diefenbach. "Although hunter harvest data by county provides a gross measure of hare range in Pennsylvania, hares likely are patchily distributed and associated with specific habitat types.

"Presently, hares are hunted in Pennsylvania, but a very conservative one-week season has been established because the effect of hunting on the population, as well as habitat requirements and trends in abundance, are unknown," he said. "Greater hunting opportunities or habitat improvements might be implemented if more was known about the distribution and habitat requirements of hares in Pennsylvania."

Cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hares are a lot alike, but there are some important differences. First and perhaps most obvious, snowshoe hares are adapted to living in northern climates where there is near-constant snow cover in winter. Subsequently, they have larger back feet to help them maneuver on shifting, slippery surfaces — hence the name "snowshoe."

And hares' fur turns white in the winter to help them blend into their surroundings and avoid predators, which accounts for their other common name — "varying hare."

"Another important difference between hares and rabbits is not so noticeable," said Diefenbach. "The young of snowshoe hares emerge from their mother able to run, while cottontail rabbit babies are more or less helpless at first."

One final clich about rabbits that is true for hares: They reproduce like, well rabbits. "Hares are very productive, similar to rabbits in that respect," said Diefenbach. "A female hare might have three litters a year."

York County Crowns Dairy Princess, Selects Court

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Heather Baumgardner will have plenty of opportunity during the next year to showcase her public speaking and puppetry skills.

The 19-year-old daughter of Lori and Daniel Baumgardner, Dillsburg, Heather was crowned the 2003 York County dairy princess during a coronation event conducted May 24 at the county 4-H Center. She has a busy schedule of promotion appearances already booked through June Dairy Month.

Heather gained promotion experience previously as a dairy ambassador in York County's program. She is a home-schooled graduate and a distance-student freshman, majoring in elementary education at Liberty University. Heather is employed on the family's Barrens View Farm, helping with their 60-head of dairy cows and other responsibilities related to herd care.

In her speech presentation, Heather recounted a question asked of her by a young man during a promotion event, challenging her that eating dairy products would clog his arteries. She reminded dairy producers that they need to be armed with data and information to respond to such questions, always focusing on milk's safe quality and nutrition denseness. Heather emphasized in her talk the high absorption rates of the body of dairy product calcium, as opposed to other calcium sources with less efficient absorption abilities.

Special emcees for the program were the state alternate dairy princesses, Rachel Ebert and Ashley Chapman. In addition to interviewing the candidates, they teamed up to ask random "fishbowl" questions of the senior candidates.

Asked who she would be for a day, if she could be anyone, Heather replied that she would be Elizabeth Elliott, a Christian speaker and missionary. Her skit presentation featured puppetry and emphasized how milk is good for the bones.

Names to the promotion team as dairy ambassadors were Amanda Hoover and Trisha Knight.

Amanda Hoover, 14, is the daughter of Paul and Rose Hoover, Windsor. She is a freshman student at Eastern York High School, active in FFA and helps with the family's herd of dairy goats. Amanda's speech focused on milk as a "fighter," battling health problems like osteoporosis, hypertension, colon cancer, and an ally in dieting and weight loss.

Asked by the princess emcees team the random question of what color she would be if she could be any color, Amanda chose the color blue, citing it as indicative of being cool and calm. Her poster presentation featured dairy nutrition information.

Trisha Knight, 14, is the daughter of Paul and Jean Knight, Airville, and a freshman at Southeastern School District. She is active in 4-H dairy showing and judging, and dairy bowl. Trisha spoke on the development of the 4-H program as a technique used at the turn of the century to bring new ideas to the rural agriculture community.

In response to an emcee question regarding which age group of consumers she is most interested in targeting, Trisha responded that teens would be her focus, because they are the future.

Four dairy maids were named to the promotion team, Jelee Anstine, Amy Baumgardner, Carlyn Crowl, and Stevie Greek.

Jelee Anstine, 11, is the daughter of Charles Anstine and Lynn Hibbard, York. She is a sixth grader, active in school chorus and Girl Scouting. Her poster focused on everyone being boss of their own body and the need to supply it with bone-strengthening nutrients from dairy products.

Amy Baumgardner, 12, is the daughter of Daniel and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg. A home-schooled sixth grader, she shows dairy cattle as a member of the Central 4-H club. Her poster presentation compared butter, a natural dairy product, with margarine, a product "engineered by a chemist in a lab."

Carlyn Crowl, 12, is the daughter of Gary and Melanie Crowl, Delta. She is a sixth grade student and exhibits Milking Shorthorn cattle with the Milk-N-Money 4-H club. Carlyn presented a poster-talk on the food pyramid.

Stevie Greek, 12, is the daughter of Leonard and Bonnie Greek, Delta. She is a gifted-student in the sixth grade and a member of the Milk-N-Money 4-H club. Stevie's presentation revolved around a basket brimming full of nutritious dairy product selections.

Named dairy misses on the York County promotion team are Katie Baumgardner, Frankie Greek, and Amber Thoman.

Katie Baumgardner, 8, is the daughter of Lori and Daniel Baumgardner, Dillsburg. She is a home-schooled third grader and member of the Central 4-H dairy club. Katie's presentation was an original poem about helping around the farm.

Frankie Greek, 10, is the daughter of Leonard and Bonnie Greek, Delta. She is a fifth-grader, takes dance classes and is a member of the Milk-N-Money dairy club. A song about milk was Frankie's dairy promotion presentation.

Amber Thoman, 9, is the daughter of Gail and Gary Thoman, Dallastown. Amber is in the third-grade and a Southwest 4-H dairy club member. Her original poem presentation was on the topic of having a farm.

A trio of li'l misses named to the promotion team are Rebekah Baumgardner, Alexa Gochenaur, and Kelsey Knight. Each presented an original poem to the audience.

Rebekah, 5, is the daughter of Daniel and Lori Baumgardner, Dillsburg. She is a home-schooled kindergartner whose favorite cows in the family's herd are the Jerseys.

Alexa Gochenaur, 6, is the daughter of Robert and Karen Gochenaur, Delta. The family raises heifer calves and her poem was about feeding calves.

Kelsey Knight, 6, is the daughter of James and Lisa Knight, Airville. She is a kindergarten student and especially loves chocolate milk.

In addition to thanking all those who supported her during her reign, outgoing princess Raechel Kilgore offered a tongue-in-cheek list of "top ten things I've learned as dairy princess." Included were learning that she had to call out senior "Bingo" numbers clearly, wear dark clothes whenever serving milkshakes, and schedule appearances over gym classes because those are the hardest to make up.

Raechel received special accolades from her two state alternate princesses, who were on hand to both serve as emcees and offer their farewells as she stepped out of her county promotion role.

While Raechel relinquished her county title, she will continue as the Pennsylvania state dairy princess until the crowning of her successor at the annual pageant in late September.

Heather Baumgardner, as the newly-crowned princess, offered her best effort to the industry as she strives to fulfill her responsibilities. For information on the dairy princess program or to schedule the appearance of the dairy princess at an event, contact booking chairman Lori Baumgardner, phone (717) 432-3169.

I can still remember the fun and taste of hand cranked ice cream we sometimes ate by candle light. We liked to make shadow pictures with our fingers. In the winter we sometimes used snow for ice. Mmmm. I just remembered that delicious treat of hot chocolate after sledding or skating.

Have a happy summer and enjoy your milk everyone.

JIMMY CARTER DESSERT

Crust:
- 2 cups flour
- ½ cup butter
- ¾ cup chopped nuts

Second layer:
- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- ¾ cup peanut butter
- 1 package (8-ounce) cream cheese, softened
- 1 container (8-ounce) cool whip

Third layer:
- 1 large package instant chocolate pudding
- 1 large package instant vanilla pudding
- 3 cups milk

CRUST: Mix crust ingredients together and put into 9×13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Cool.

SECOND LAYER: Cream together ingredients and put on crust.

THIRD LAYER: Beat ingredients together and place on top of second layer. Chill.

Garnish with additional whipped topping, if desired.

My husband's name is Isaac and we have a 10-month-old son named Moses. This is a delicious dessert for anybody to enjoy. We had lived on a farm for 2 years. Now we moved to a smaller house. My husband does carpenter and concrete work. We enjoy this kind of lifestyle. It's so nice to live in the country.

LEMON SPONGE PIE

- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- 3 eggs
- grated rind and juice of one lemon
- 1 cup milk

Separate eggs and beat egg whites until thick. Set aside.

In mixing bowl, mix sugar, flour, butter, egg yolks until well blended. Add grated rind and juice of lemon, mix well. Add milk, mix. Fold in beaten egg whites.

Pour into unbaked 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until set and nice and brown.

This is one of our favorite pies. Hope you enjoy it as much as we do. I grew up on a farm and still like living in the country.

CHOCOLATE PEANUT ICE CREAM DESSERT

- 1 cup vanilla wafer crumbs
- ½ cup finely chopped peanuts
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- 6 cups any flavor ice cream

Filling:
- 1 package (3-ounce) cream cheese
- ⅓ cup crunchy peanut butter
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¼ cup milk
- ½ cup whipped cream

Line the bottom and sides of a 9×5×3-inch loaf pan with aluminum foil.

Combine first four ingredients. Press half of it into the bottom of the pan. Freeze 15 minutes. Spread half of ice cream over the crust. Freeze one hour or until firm.

Meanwhile beat cream cheese and peanut butter in a mixing bowl. Add sugar and milk. Fold in whipped cream. Spread over ice cream. Freeze one hour or until firm. Spread with remaining ice cream. Pan will be full.

Press remaining crumb mixture on top and freeze overnight. Remove from freezer 10 minutes before serving. Using foil remove loaf from pan and use serrated knife to cut into slices and serve.

MANICOTTI

- 1 package large shells
- 1 pound ricotta cheese
- ½ cup cottage cheese
- ¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder (optional)
- 2 eggs
- chopped onion or some onion flakes (optional)
- 1 package (10-ounce) chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed to drain
- jar of spaghetti sauce
- 8-ounce bag mozzarella cheese

Heat oven to 350 degrees.

Cook pasta shells as directed and drain (try undercooking shells by a few minutes. It will help prevent splitting when you fill them). Mix ingredients except spaghetti sauce and fill shells. Place in pan and pour spaghetti sauce over top and sprinkle with mozzarella cheese. Cover and bake about 25 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Makes about 7 servings.

We have a dairy farm in Bradford County and grateful for the opportunity to farm and live in such a beautiful area. Our two children are now grown and married and have given us five wonderful grandchildren who enjoy their farm visits.

BLUEBERRY SWIRL DELIGHT

Layer One:
- 1½ cup flour
- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup chopped pecans

Layer Two:
- 1 cup whipped cream
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese

Layer Three:
- 2 cups milk
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1½ cup blueberries

Mix ingredients for layer one and press into a 9×13×2-inch pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 15 minutes.

Beat together layer two and spread over cooled crust.

For layer three bring 2 cups milk and sugar to a boil; then add the flour and cornstarch that you have moistened with another ½ cup milk and the 2 egg yolks. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add butter and vanilla. Cool. Stir in blueberries and spread on cream cheese layer. Set in refrigerator for 30 minutes. Top with whipped cream and garnish with blueberries. Makes 10-12 servings.

I come from a family of five girls and three boys, two nieces, and two nephews, plus my parents and two brother-in-laws. I enjoy baking and this is a favorite for our family especially for my brothers!

We live on a farm and my oldest brother also bought a farm about half a mile from our place. Although he still lives here with the rest of us we've lived on a farm ever since Dad and Mom married in 1972. So all us children did our share of chores and different activities of field work. I'm glad I had the privilege to live on a farm. I'm looking forward to the recipes you'll publish in June!

CAPPUCCINO

- 8 cups milk
- 6 tablespoons chocolate syrup
- 1½ tablespoons instant coffee granules
- 5 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla

Cook all the ingredients together except vanilla until hot; then add vanilla. Pour into mugs. Garnish with whipped cream.

We live on a dairy farm. We have four children, Jolene (9 years), Leonard (7 years), Janelle (3 years), and Randall (8 months). I always look forward to looking at the B-section as my favorite hobby is cooking and baking.

MOTHER'S CHOCOLATE CAKE

- 2 cups sugar
- ½ cup butter
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup milk
- 2 cups flour
- ½ cup cocoa
- 2 teaspoons soda
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugar and softened butter. Add eggs. Mix in milk. Combine flour and cocoa. Add a little at a time. Add soda to boiling water. My Mom and I like to use coffee instead of boiling water. Mix into batter. Add the vanilla.

Bake at 350 degrees for about 35-40 minutes in two round cake pans. Grease and coat with flour before adding cake mix.

I usually use a white icing. I prefer baking over cooking.

FROZEN BERRY FLUFF

- 2 cups (1 package) crisp graham crackers
- 5 tablespoons butter
- 2 egg whites
- 1 tablespoon vanilla
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups fresh berries (raspberries, blueberries, or strawberries)

Mix cracker crumbs and butter. Press into bottom of buttered 9×13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 minutes.

Beat egg whites and vanilla slightly in a large bowl. Gradually beat in sugar and berries. Beat at high speed 12-15 minutes. Mixture is fluffy and has large volume. Fold in whipped cream, spread over crumb crust. Freeze overnight.

We enjoy all the recipes featured in Lancaster Farming. We farm 50 acres of mixed crops, raise heifers, and milk a family cow plus have some chickens for our own eggs. We have eight children, Roy who does house framing, Anita who teaches fourth to eighth grade, Paul III who helps his oldest brother, Lucirose who helps around home, Dana, Doris, and Andrew who are in school and Emily age 2½ years who keeps everything exciting around here.

We look forward to a wonderful busy summer.

DIRT PUDDING

- 3 cups milk
- 2 (3-ounce) package vanilla instant pudding
- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese
- 1 8-ounce whipped topping
- 1 12-ounce package oreo cookies, crushed

In a large bowl, mix milk and pudding; chill until set. Remove from refrigerator and add cream cheese and whipped topping. Beat well.

In a 13×9-inch pan place ½ of the crushed cookies; place pudding mixture over cookie layer and top with remaining crushed cookies. Chill.

CRUSTLESS SPINACH QUICHE

- 2 10-ounce packages frozen chipped spinach
- 6 eggs
- 1 pound sharp cheddar cheese
- 1 pound small curd cottage cheese
- 6 tablespoons flour
- ½ stick butter
- salt and pepper to taste

Thaw the spinach completely and drain very well. I use "clean" hands to press it against the sides of a very small holed colander. After it is drained well, place it in a large mixing bowl and set aside.

In a small bowl whisk the eggs till lightly whipped and add to the spinach. Cut the cheddar cheese into ½-¾-inch cubes and add to the spinach mixture and stir well. Add the remaining ingredients and mix well.

Spray a 9×13-inch baking pan lightly with a baking spray. Spread mixture evenly in the pan and bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. The center will be soft and firm. Cut into squares and serve hot. It is one of our favorites. The girls look forward to it when they come home and especially on holidays.

We are Cliff, Pat, Bobbie, and Becky Black. Cliff grew up on a farm in western Pennsylvania. We married and moved to New Jersey. He has managed two farms consecutively for a total of 26 years. He raises Polled Hereford cattle and Dorset sheep and grows 250 acres in crops.

I'm a kindergarten teacher in a daycare center. I enjoy crafting, flea markets, and antiquing.

Our oldest daughter Bobbie graduated from the University of Delaware last year with a degree in fashion merchandizing. She lives in Delaware and is an assistant manager at a retail store.

Our second daughter, Becky, just finished her third year at Kutztown University and plans to be an art teacher.

I was a 4-H leader for 14 years and both girls were very involved in 4-H. Their project areas were cooking, crafts, sewing, and sheep.

My husband would not be happy doing anything else. The girls and I enjoy the quiet peaceful place we live. Our home is very country. People come to visit and say that when they come down our lane it's like entering another world. We love "our" world and wouldn't want it any other way.

Pork Checkoff Continues Recipe Label Program

DES MOINES, Iowa — The Pork Checkoff is continuing its recipe label program, which coordinates Checkoff-funded information with retailers. The Pork Checkoff designs the labels, which the retailers print and apply to packages of fresh pork. During 2002, retailers across America purchased more than 140 million labels.

"This type of program is a great way to stretch our Checkoff investment," said Dave Reinecker, a pork producer from York Springs, and a member of the Pork Checkoff's Demand Enhancement Committee.

"Pork producers with all sizes and types of operations invest in the Checkoff and can see a return on their investment with this type of program, which helps to increase consumer demand for U.S. pork." The Pork Checkoff developed the recipe label program to help educate consumers on how to select and prepare pork.

For example, a label on a package of pork chops may show how to marinate the chops in Italian dressing before cooking.

Checkoff-funded research shows that on-pack pork recipe labels result in a 6 percent increase in fresh pork sales, according to in-store tests.

FRENCH RHUBARB

2 eggs
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
4 tablespoons flour
4 cups rhubarb

Topping:

1½ cups flour
⅔ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar

Clean and dice rhubarb. Mix by hand all the other ingredients. Pour over rhubarb and mix well. Grease 9x13-inch cake pan. Put into bottom of pan and pat evenly.

Mix topping ingredients until crumbly and toss over rhubarb mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm with milk.

This is one of our favorite rhubarb recipes. We live on a dairy farm so we have plenty of milk and often have cobblers for a quick and refreshing desert. We enjoy all the recipes and look forward to trying the new ones.

CHEDDAR CHOWDER

2 cups water
2 cups diced potatoes
1 cup diced carrots
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

White Sauce:

¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
2 cups grated cheese or cheddar powder
1 cup cubed ham

Cook vegetables in salt water for 10 to 12 minutes. Make white sauce; add cheese and meat. Add to vegetables that have not been drained. Heat through.

This soup is easy to make and we love it. Good luck and hope you have a good summer.

HOMEMADE ICE CREAM

4 cups milk, scalded
2 tablespoons gelatin dissolved in 1 cup cold water
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix together and freeze in shallow pan. When ready to serve add 1 to 2 cups milk and beat till fluffy.

This is an easy and fast recipe. Have a safe and happy summer!

CHICKEN CORDON BLUE

½ cup milk
1 can (10¾-ounce) cream of chicken soup
3 stalks celery
onion to taste
½ cup butter
2 eggs
2 cups milk
1 (12-ounce) bag bread cubes
2-3 cups cooked cubed chicken
½ to 1 pound chipped ham slices of American or Swiss cheese

Mix together ½ cup milk and soup and set aside. Saute celery, onion, and butter until soft. Beat together eggs, milk, and bread cubes. Add celery mixture to this mixture.

Layer in 9x13-inch pan: cover bottom of pan with ½ the soup mixture, cooked chicken, ham, and cheese, then the filling mixture. Spread rest of soup mixture on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 to 1½ hours.

This is a recipe we all enjoy and it doesn't take long to throw together. We live on a dairy farm in Lititz and have four youngsters aged 10 months to six years. We all enjoy life on the farm!

HOT MILK CAKE

4 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cup milk
10 tablespoons butter
2¼ teaspoons baking powder

In a mixing bowl, beat eggs at high speed until thick, about 5 minutes. Gradually add sugar, beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Combine flour and baking powder; add to batter with vanilla and beat at low speed until smooth.

In a saucepan, heat milk and butter just until butter melts, stirring occasionally. Add to batter, beating until combined. Pour into greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool on a wire rack. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

DARVIN'S CHEESY CHICKEN CHOWDER

3 cups chicken broth
2 cups diced, peeled potatoes
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced celery
½ cup diced onions
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup butter
⅓ cup flour
2 cups milk
2 cups shredded cheese
2 cups diced cooked chicken

In a 4-quart saucepan bring chicken broth to a boil. Reduce heat and add potatoes, carrots, celery, onions, salt, and pepper. Cover and cook 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Meanwhile melt butter, add flour and mix well. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over low heat until slightly thickened. Stir often. Stir in cheese. Cook until melted. Add to broth along with chicken. Cook and stir over low heat until heated through.

My son-in-law, Darvin Martin from Lancaster shared this recipe with us. It is one of his favorites and now I would like to share it with you. Hope you enjoy it also.

HAMBURG FILLING CASSEROLE

¼ pound butter
3 pieces celery
1 small onion
1½ quart bread cubes
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 pound hamburg or ground veal
1 can cream of mushroom soup

Melt butter and add diced celery and onion. Mix together bread cubes, beaten eggs, and milk. Brown meat, add salt and pepper to taste. Put 3 layers filling and 2 layers of meat in a caserole dish. Pour mushroom soup on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

We are a farming family from Snyder County. We moved here from Lancaster County three years ago and we love the ruralness of the area. The Lord has blessed us with five sons and one daughter, Jordan (17 years), Russell (15 years), Alissa (13 years), Evan (11 years), Joseph (9 years), and Thomas (7 years. My husband, Eugene, and sons feed veal calves. Our family uses lots of dairy products year round.

FROSTED CRANBERRY RELISH

1 package unflavored gelatin
2 3-ounce packages raspberry jello gelatin
2 cups boiling water
12-ounces fresh or frozen cranberries
2 cups sugar
⅔ cup orange juice
1 20-ounce can crushed pineapple in juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel (optional)

Topping:

1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
2 cups cool whip
1 cup mini-marshmallows

In large pan, dissolve jello in boiling water, set aside. Ground or chop (food processor) cranberries. Stir cranberries and remaining gelatin ingredients into dissolved jello mixture. Pour into dish and refrigerate until firm (6 hours or overnight). Beat cream cheese until light and fluffy. Add cool whip and beat to combine. Fold in marshmallows. Spread over jello mixture. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

Bob and Naomi Gochenaur live in Willow Street.

This recipe came from my mother. Our families enjoy this at Thanksgiving and Christmas, but it can be made anytime of the year.

I am employed as a secretary by the Lebanon County/Penn State Cooperative Office in Lebanon. My husband, Lonnie "Will", is a milk tester for Dairy One and tests in Lebanon, Berks, and Schuylkill County. My children, Drew (12 years), Danielle (11 years), Emily (2 years), and Doris (14 months) keep me very busy as a working mother. I'm always looking for quick and easy recipes for my family. I like to try new recipes and enjoy the Lancaster Farming B-section.

CREAMY CAPPUCCINO

1 cup dry milk
1½ cups sugar
2 cups flavored powdered coffee cream
1 cup instant flavored coffee

Use the amount that suits you best in your favorite mug of hot water. Make sure you share some with a friend to make it taste even better.

I enjoyed this at a friends New Years Eve party and have been using it ever since. My husband, Bob, and I are no longer farming which we do miss. Bob works at Hoober Inc. and I work parttime as a bookkeeper. Lawn and garden work have kept us busy this spring. We are enjoying the rain that keeps things green and growing. Our family includes four children and their spouses and 11 grandchildren.

GRANOLA BARS

3½ cups toasted oatmeal
6 cups rice krispies
1 cup crushed graham crackers
½ cup milk chocolate chips
½ cup raisins
1½ pound marshmallows
¼ cup butter
¼ cup oil
⅓ cup light corn syrup or honey
¼ cup peanut butter
M&M's if desired

Melt marshmallows and butter in heavy kettle, add oil, corn syrup, and peanut butter. Mix over low heat until smooth. Pour mixture over dry ingredients and stir well. Press into greased 9x13-inch pan. Cut into bite sized bars when cool. Delicious served with a glass of milk!

We enjoy life on a dairy farm! Over the winter months I'm especially glad to take the children out in the barn for some fresh air and to get rid of their excess energy. My husband and I also enjoy the time spent working together during choretime.

I always look forward to the June issues of Lancaster Farming as I enjoy cooking and baking.

DANDELION SALAD

4 cups dandelion
2 tablespoons oil
1½ tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
¼ cup vinegar
2 cups milk
3 hard boiled eggs
5 slices fried bacon

Wash dandelion thoroughly several times. Chop into small pieces.

Heat the oil in saucepan. Mix flour, salt, sugar, 1 egg, vinegar, and milk. Stir until blended. Then cook in oil till it thickens. Cool slightly before mixing lightly with the dandelions. Garnish with chopped hardboiled eggs and bacon.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

4 hard boiled eggs, chopped
½ pound grated white American cheese
½ green onion, chopped
2 cups macaroni, uncooked
2 cups milk
2 cups cooked turkey, chicken, or tuna, chopped
2 cans cream of mushroom soup

Combine ingredients in large casserole. Refrigerate overnight. Bake at 325 degrees for 1½ hours.

Hello to all Lancaster Farming readers. We live on a dairy farm just outside Kutztown. We have four children Elva Jane (6½ years), Curvin (5 years), Jonathan (3½ years), and Ruth Ann (1 year). I appreciate the privilege of being able to cook for our family with our own dairy products. This casserole is our favorite for Sunday noons. During the winter I like to put it in the oven of our kitchen range. Usually it's just right til we come home from church. May you all have a healthy and happy summer.

BROCCOLI AND CAULIFLOWER SUPREME

1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
½ cup butter
1 (10-ounce) package of broccoli
1 (10-ounce) package of cauliflower
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Melt cream cheese, butter, and soup in small saucepan. Cook together brocolli and cauliflower until just tender, follow package directions. Put drained broccoli and cauliflower in a 2-quart dish. Pour the soup, cream cheese, and butter over the vegetables. Top all with cheddar cheese and stir gently. Cook at 350 degrees for 30-45 minutes. I have also cooked this recipe over the stove when in a hurry.

This is a favorite recipe of my family. We love to find new recipes and try them out. My son Colby (12 years) is an avid fisherman and hunter along with my husband, Steve. My daughters Lindsay (10 years) and Kelsey (8 years) also like to fish and spend time outdoors. We are very busy with sports, school, work, and church. Since I grew up on a farm I like to cook homemade dishes and use foods that I canned for recipes. We have an excavation business but I think our children keep us the busiest. Thanks for all the good recipes that have been sent in over the years.

CREAM PUFF CAKE

1 cup water
1 stick butter
1 cup flour
4 eggs
1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
2 packages (large) instant vanilla pudding
3 cups cold milk
whipped topping
chocolate syrup

In saucepan combine water and butter; bring to boil. Add flour all at once, stirring it until a ball forms. Remove from heat, let cool 5 minutes. Beat in eggs, 1 at a time. Spread dough in lightly greased and floured 9x13-inch pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Let cool.

Combine cream cheese, pudding mix and 1 cup milk. Beat until smooth. Add remaining 3 cups of milk. Spread over crust. Chill 15 minutes. Spread whipped topping over pudding layer, drizzle chocolate syrup over the top. Enjoy! Good on a hot day!

This is a very easy dessert to make for a refreshing treat. I enjoy reading all the recipes in your newspaper each week. I live on a farm close to Newburg. I love the country life. Although I work away from home, I'm a grill cook at the Shippensburg University. It's great to come home to the "quiet" of the country. My four granddaughters are the "light" of my life. They are so full of wonder at this age.

ECLAIR CAKE

4 cups milk
1 cup sugar
½ cup cornstarch
4 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vanilla
½ to 1 cup cream whipped
graham crackers

Scald 3½ cups milk. In blender, blend sugar, cornstarch, salt, egg yolks, and ½ cup milk. Stir into scalded milk. Cook and stir until thickened. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Put plastic wrap on top and cool. When cool add beaten egg whites and ½ to 1 cup cream whipped.

Line 9x13-inch pan with graham crackers, spread half of pudding; another layer crackers; the rest of pudding; another layer crackers then frost.

Frosting:
3 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup cocoa
3 tablespoons corn syrup
1 tablespoon vanilla
1½ cup sugar

Melt over low heat, add sugar and little water until spreadable. Frost immediately while warm.

FAVORITE PUMPKIN PIE

8 eggs, separated
4 cups fine pumpkin
2½ cup granulated sugar
4 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon
¾ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
4 tablespoons light baking molasses
8 cups milk

Beat egg yolks and add fine pumpkin. Sift together sugar, flour, cinnamon, and pumpkin pie spice. Add to egg yolk and pumpkin mixture. Then add baking molasses and milk. Then add egg whites, beaten stiff, folding in gently.

Pour into unbaked pie shells. Bake at 350 degrees until almost set. Will take about 35 to 45 minutes. Depending on the oven it may take longer.

Hello ... We like these pies. It gives a lot. At times we just make custard instead of pies. There are 11 people at our table. We all like to see what recipes turn up. Thank you everyone for your efforts. We live on a 9-acre plot. So I can have a large garden to play with.

SOUR CREAM COFFEE CAKE

4 cups flour
6 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 pint sour cream
½ teaspoon salt
½ pound butter
1½ teaspoon baking soda

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and beat thoroughly. Add flour and dry ingredients alternating with sour cream.

Pour ½ of batter into greased tuber pan. Place a layer of topping then pour remaining batter. Finish with a layer of topping. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 minutes.

Topping:
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup nuts
2 tablespoons cinnamon

CHEESE PIE APPETIZER

8-ounce shredded sharp cheddar
8-ounce shredded mozzarella
2 cups mayonnaise
1 medium onion, minced
1 can (4-ounce) chopped green chiles

Mix and place in a 9-inch pie pan. Cover with sliced pepperoni and ½ cup sliced black olives. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Chill and use crackers for dipping.

Travels Well! We are great cheese lovers and enjoy this dish as a treat. You can use the fat free mayo and "hot" chili peppers for variation.

OUR FAVORITE EGG CUSTARD

6 eggs (separated)
3 pints hot milk
1 tablespoon vanilla
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ can condensed sweet milk

Combine egg yolks, hot milk, vanilla, sugar salt, and sweet milk. Beat egg whites very stiff and add last.

Put custard mix in glass cups or small casseroles then place them in a cake pan ½ full with water. Bake at 350 degrees for ½ hour. Let sit in oven an extra 15 minutes until firmly set after oven is turned off.

The custard makes a nourishing treat for the children and is nice and smooth for the baby.

We live on an 80-acre farm in Lititz. We milk approximately 50 dairy cows and raise alot of hay for haylage. We also have a small shop where we sell vegetables, fresh flowers, etc. The children can help when school's out. We enjoy the Lancaster Farming recipes very much. SALSA MACARONI AND CHEESE DISH

1 pound ground beef
1 jar (16-ounce) salsa
1¾ cups water
1 package (7-ounce) elbow macaroni uncooked
¾ pound (12-ounce) velveeta cheese

Brown meat in a large skillet; drain. Stir in salsa and water, bring to a boil. Stir in macaroni, reduce heat to medium-low; cover. Simmer 8 to 10 minutes or until macaroni is tender. Add cheese and stir until melted. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note: I use homemade salsa and sometimes cook the macaroni first. We really love this dish.

GRANDMA'S BUTTERMILK PIE

2 tablespoons flour
3 egg yolks
3 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1¾ cup buttermilk
3 egg whites
dash salt

Combine sugar, flour, and salt. Add beaten egg yolks, melted butter, and lemon juice. Mix well and stir in buttermilk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Add little cinnamon.

Pour into unbaked 8- or 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 425 degrees for 25 minutes.

Grandma used to bake a delicious cheese pie for her 16 children and grandchildren. Not until I was married and requested the recipe did I find out it was Buttermilk Pie.

Since no one in the family liked buttermilk, Grandma and mother just called it Cheese Pie. It tastes just like a cheese pie. Today my grandchildren like Grandma's Cheese Pie but do not like buttermilk. Someday I'll give them the recipe.

ITALIAN CREPES

1½ cups milk
1 cup and 2 tablespoons flour
3 eggs
dash salt

Mix all together very thoroughly. Use a seasoned 8-inch cast iron frying pan. Melt a small amount of butter till hot but not browned and pour about 2 tablespoons batter into pan. Lift from heat and rotate pan so batter covers whole surface. Return to heat and let cook till lightly browned and turn with spatula and repeat.

Place on saucer and continue same procedure, including a dab of butter till batter is all. Makes about 22 creps. Interlace crepes on saucer with waxed paper.

Filling:
½ pound Italian sweet sausage (casing removed)
15-ounce container of whole milk ricotta cheese
1 package frozen spinach, chopped fine
1 egg yolk
⅓ cup parmesan cheese
salt and pepper to taste
¾ cup shredded provolone cheese small package shredded mozzarella cheese
2 tablespoons spaghetti meat sauce

Cook sausage, breaking into small pieces. Drain oil from meat. Set aside. Cook spinach and squeeze liquid out. Set aside. Mix ricotta and egg yolk together. Add spinach, parmesan cheese, provolone cheese, sausage, salt, and pepper. Add 2 tablespoons sauce and mix well.

Lay a crepe on flat surface and place a heaping tablespoon of filling in center. Put a little shredded mozzarella on top of filling. Wrap the crepes long sides around filling and fold in short ends. Do all crepes.

Spread a thin layer of spaghetti meat sauce on bottom of baking dish. Lay crepes on top of sauce making sure folded edges are on bottom. Cover with nice layer of sauce and bake at 350 degrees about 35-40 minutes. Sprinkle a little parmesan cheese on top before serving.

My family and company love lasagne but these crepes have moved to number 1. The recipe is from a friend who was a customer of mine while I was waitressing.

BLENDER PUMPKIN PIE

1 cup milk
½ cup cream
1 cup brown sugar
1¼ cup pumpkin or squash
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon allspice
1 tablespoon cinnamon
2 eggs
1 9-inch pie shell

Put filling ingredients into blender in order given and beat until smooth. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes until done. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

This is our favorite pumpkin pie. Using fresh pumpkin is always the best but in the fall I freeze the extra pumpkins and this makes delicious pumpkin pies and desserts for all winter long.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know where the strong rubber elastic (like rubber bands) can be purchased to make fitted bed sheets.

QUESTION — Nina Purvin wants information about a Purvin Dairy Company, which operated in Lancaster during the 1940s-1950s. She has found some interesting bottles, a calendar, and a poster from the company. The latest item is from 1952. She'd like any information someone might have about the farm and dairy.

QUESTION — Cathy Heagy, Narvon, is looking for a children's book, "The Little Boy From Shickshinny," which is about a boy who got mad at a cow lying down in the dark and kicked it only to find out it was really a bear. Her grandmother had a copy when Cathy was a child.

QUESTION — Richard Laughman, Chambersburg, wants to know where a Sony Superscope reel to reel tape player can be fixed.

QUESTION — Pat Hartman, Ligonier, wants to know where to find balsam. She remembers seeing the answer in this paper but lost the address. She wants the answer repeated for what balsam is and where to get it.

QUESTION — A. Mary Nolt, New Holland, wants to know the value of a Zenith egg grader scale and what antique dealers are interested in items such as these.

ANSWER — Charles Rowland, Elkton, Maryland, would like to buy an outdoor wood furnace, and would like to have owner/user pros and cons. He seeks information such as the best brand of manufacturer, most efficient, etc. Thanks to B. Righter for recommending Rowland check at his local library for the Feb./March issue of "Mother Earth News," for information on outdoor furnaces. Also drive around and find people using the furnaces to learn the pros and cons of having one. If you do install an outdoor furnace, check your prevailing winds — you don't want the chimney smoke coming directly to your front door.

ANSWER — Lucy Nolt, Mifflinburg, asked how to get rid of termites without using exterminator services. It would cost $2,500 to have an exterminator do it, so the Nolts prefer to do it themselves if possible. Thanks to B. Righter for e-mailing that a good hardware store such as Lowe's in Selinsgrove sells termite killing insecticides.

ANSWER — Doris Rissmiller, Elverson, wanted to know where she can have the pothandles replaced on her pan set made by Prudential ware. The set was purchased 30-35 years ago. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for recommending she contact New Era Inc., 1255 Paradise Hill Road, P.O. Box F, Clarksville, TN 37041. Anna writes that she has used New Era services several times to replace handles on a set of Flavorseal cookware purchased 39 years ago from a traveling salesman.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know of a place to take small material scraps for recycling. Naomi Blank writes that she will take the scraps. Write to her at 5219 Amish Rd., Kinzers, PA 17535.
Also, A.L. Stoltzfus, 1319 Tanning Yard Hollow Rd., Peach Bottom, PA 17563, said small pieces of fabric can be used to make comforts and covers to be sent to relief centers. She is interested in pieces as small as two inches.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted Homer Laughin dinnerware in the single rose pattern, a Lancaster County reader writes that she has a good selection of this pattern. Call (717) 336-5696.

ANSWER — Susan Giralico, New Tripoli, sent in a different phone number than that printed in last week's issue for Cuisanart. Order cuisanart DLC-7 attachments by calling (800) 726-0190.

ANSWER — In answer to D. Peters' request, Glenn Thompson writes that Bulb Direct, Pittsford, N.Y., sells almost every bulb that has ever been made. Call (800) 772-5267.

New Penn State Publication Stresses Safety When Cooking For Crowds

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — People who cook for the public as part of food fund-raisers now have a new resource for consistent food safety, thanks to a new publication authored by a food safety specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Cooking for Crowds: A Volunteer's Guide to Safe Food Handling" is a comprehensive manual for civic and church groups, school organizations, volunteer fire companies and the many other groups who cook for the public for food fund-raisers or special events.

Dana McElroy, food safety specialist in Penn State's department of food science, says the curriculum shows nonprofit and volunteer groups the unexpected food safety risks that they face in preparing large volumes of food, and how to reduce those risks in making food that's both safe and delicious.

"Many people don't know that there are a lot of additional safety risks that come with cooking large quantities of food,"McElroy says.

"They may have been volunteering for years and probably are very food safety conscious, but they may not be aware of the additional risks.

"On top of that, nonprofit groups may not have the finances to buy commercial food service equipment and may be working with equipment that's not designed to prepare or serve large quantities of food. The 'Cooking for Crowds' curriculum is designed to educate groups about food safety standards and provide practical ways to meet those standards."

She explains that Penn State Cooperative Extension agents, who frequently train nonprofit groups about proper large-volume food preparation techniques for the public, asked for the curriculum to replace older, outdated materials that didn't address the specific needs of nonprofit food preparation.

The manual includes:

- Ideas for planning a safe event
- Strategies to provide safe water for food fund-raisers
- Alternative equipment ideas
- Checklists for barbecues, meals, bake sales, sub/sandwich sales, home-delivered meals and temporary events
- Strategies to implement food safety practices in an organization's kitchen

The complete "Cooking for Crowds" curriculum is available via the Web at www.cookingforcrowds.psu.edu.

The color manual (Publication # AGRS-86) also can be purchased through the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences Publication Distribution Center for $9 by calling toll-free (877) 345-0691.

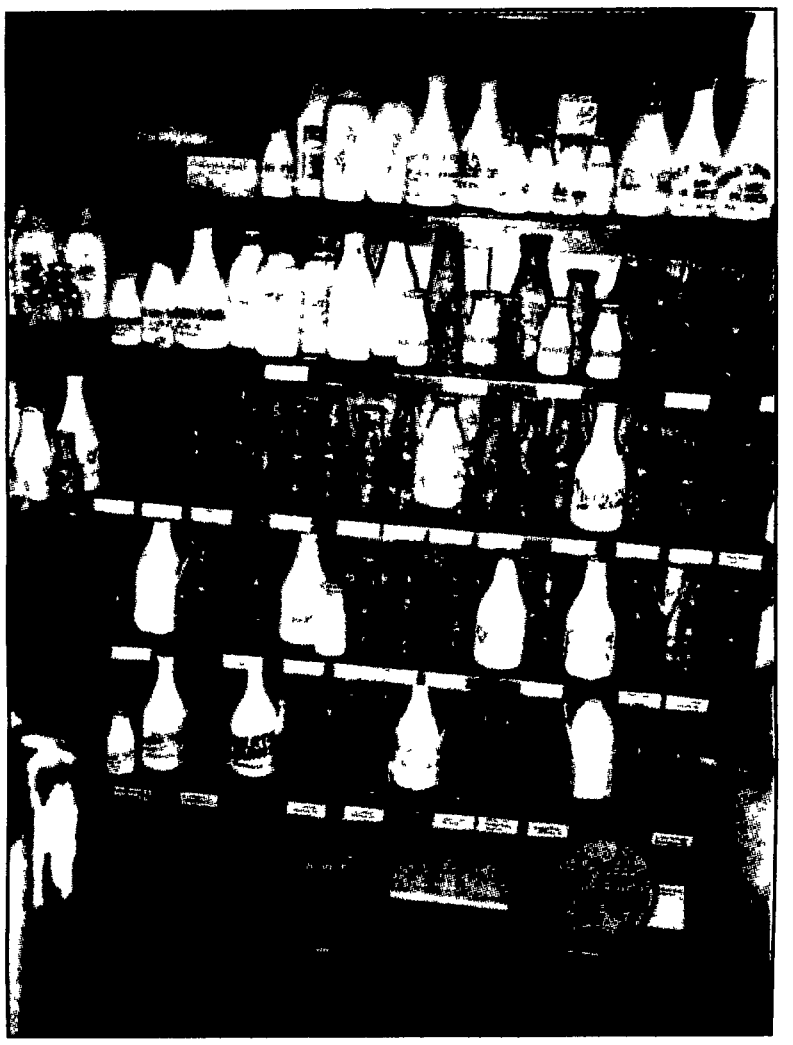
Margin and Ellie Stout proudly stand with a small portion of their collection.



The Stouts' collection has grown from one bottle purchased at a flea market to hundreds of bottles filling their basement.

Tunkhannock Couple Captures Piece Of Dairy History With Milk Bottle Collection

CHARLENE M. SHUPP
Special Correspondent

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — "Let us all be thankful we live in a country where an everyday necessity like milk is plentiful at a cost that all can afford."

In the wave of patriotism this country has experienced in the past year, this saying could easily pass for a poster or slogan in today's world; however, it appeared on a milk bottle dated 1941.

When you step into the basement of Margin and Ellie Stout's Tunkhannock home, you are stepping back in time to a snapshot of historical features in the dairy industry. From the milk cans of various sizes and signs from agricultural companies to milk testing equipment and model cows, the Stouts seem to have it all when it comes to dairy collectables. But, a point of pride in their collection is their milk bottles.

For the past 20 years, the Stouts have built their milk bottle collection from their first bottle purchased at a flea market to the hundreds of bottles and other dairy paraphernalia that decorate their home.

Although Margin was the first to begin collecting milk bottles, it did not take long before Ellie joined in. Due to their mutual interests in collectables, their milk bottle collecting hobby has become one thing they enjoy doing together as they go in search of the perfect bottle.

Jokingly Ellie notes that, Margin knows all of the history of the bottles and I just have all the fun.

What has made milk bottle collecting appealing for the Stouts is that there are no guidelines on what a person needs to collect, and that the collection can be built around the personal preferences.

The Stouts are quick to note that a bottle's value is in the eye of the beholder. One bottle that has no interest to one person may be priceless to another.

Margin, a retired DHIA tester, notes that one of his favorite bottles, one that he had searched for tirelessly, cost him only one dollar at a flea market. The bottle according to book value was worth about $400.

Ellie notes that her favorite bottles are a set from a dairy in New Hampshire. The winter scenes on them remind her of her daughter living in Alaska. They do not have much monetary value, however, in Ellie's eye, the artwork is beautiful and therefore is priceless.

The Stouts' bottle collection extends in multiple directions, with milk bottles to represent all dairy breeds and the Dutch belted breed, countless shelves of bottles with barn artwork, bottles from herds noted for high quality breeding, colleges, and states. The list is endless, but an amazing sight.

A highlight of their milk bottle collection is bottles of dairies that once dotted the hillsides of Wyoming County. This ranges from a milk bottle cap for a Traver's Dairy that produced milk in Noxen to the more prominently known Shadowbrook Farm and Atherholt Dairy in Tunkhannock and countless other bottles from farms in Mehoopany, Factoryville, and the towns in between. They have collected a part of Wyoming County's dairy history and it means a lot to them. Collecting local milk bottles offers the Stouts a unique challenge.

"Well, for one, it's to learn about the dairies that used to be here that are not anymore," says Ellie. "It's also great to find a piece of local history that someone else does not have."

It is through that love of history that the Stouts enjoy displaying their collection for people to see, which has included a display at the Wyoming County Historical Society. Visitors who saw the display at the Historical Society were amazed to learn about the rich dairy history of Wyoming County.

In reference to the event, Ellie notes, people were so fascinated because they did not realize how many local farms used to bottle and sell milk. There are so many that have gone, that people today never realized how many there used to be.

The Stouts' local bottle collection also includes dairies from all of the surrounding counties, but it is their Woodlawn Dairy collection that is another personal favorite.

Woodlawn Dairy, which was based in Scranton, Lackawanna County, was a larger dairy in the area. This collection includes bottle design sets of the pints, quarts, and gallons, advertisements, milk boxes for milk drop-offs, and even a milk man's money bag.

But, it is the bottle set that encourages people to buy anthracite coal that Margin appreciates for its reflection of the city's coal history and its impact on the Scranton economy.

Besides collecting bottles for their look and design, the Stouts also enjoy learning the history from these farms. Using several avenues such as fellow collectors, members of the National Association of Milk Bottle Collectors, and a publication called "The Milk Route" have helped Margin and Ellie unlock the history of a bottle. Unfortunately, as Margin notes, "There are some bottles that we know nothing about, and the history is lost."

For the Stouts, their collection is a constant work in progress. In addition to collecting bottles they enjoy attending shows and buying and selling bottles to help others in their quest to build their own perfect collection. Each year the Stouts attend five different shows to buy and sell bottles, including the All-American Dairy Antiques and Collectables Show in Harrisburg and the National Association of Milk Bottle Collectors Convention in Hershey.

It is these shows that provide them invaluable opportunities to continue their search for a specific bottle, interact with other collectors, and learn more about the bottles they collect.

Programs such as eBay have also helped the Stouts in their collecting through the use of online auctioning. The added benefit is that it brings an added awareness to the hobby around the world.

The Internet has helped to bring collectors together, said Margin. And eBay has increased the value of milk bottles, definitely.

As the dairy industry has turned to the use of cheaper packaging materials in the bottling of milk, there still remains a fondness for the milk bottles of yesterday and today. From the very simple to the very elaborate, each bottle can tell a simple story or provide a milepost into the passage of time, or present the most intricate design all in a way to celebrate our culture, our history, and dairy industry.

But for the Stouts, they continue to add to their collection for the thrill of the hunt and the anticipation of their next discovery.

"That is truly the rarity (of milk bottle collecting). When there is something that you would really like to have and come across it, whether it be for a dollar or $50," said Ellie. "You are so happy that you found something more to add to your collection. It's something special."

Bookcase Designs Changed Over Years

Ever since books and reading materials were produced, proper storage space was developed to meet the need. These days quality bookcases are expensive and space for the majority of book collectors can be a serious consideration.

It was a problem for book collectors from Thomas Jefferson to Madame Pompadour. He, with his books and mementos and she with her many collections of books.

Hoever, all Madame had to do was summon her favorite ebenistes (cabinetmakers) to whip up a new storage piece. President Jefferson could either design his own pieces or hire a local cabinetmaker. They had no shortage of space or ceiling heights. As you might imagine it took quite a large room to house Jefferson's collection of more than 1,000 books.

By the middle of the 18th century, not only royalty but also wealthy Europeans and Americans boasted the newest status symbol: a library.

Designers of the era put their best skills into sometimes towering pieces. When they were made of walnut, they were topped with arched curves, and were often treated like architecture. In Georgian times (1714-1760s) there were classical pilasters on the corners of the doors, plus much gilding. By 1750, the Chinoiserie (Oriental) and Gothic look became popular. An example would be, a massive mahogany breakfron bookcase that would combine fine veneer with Gothic arches of thin strips of wood on the glass doors.

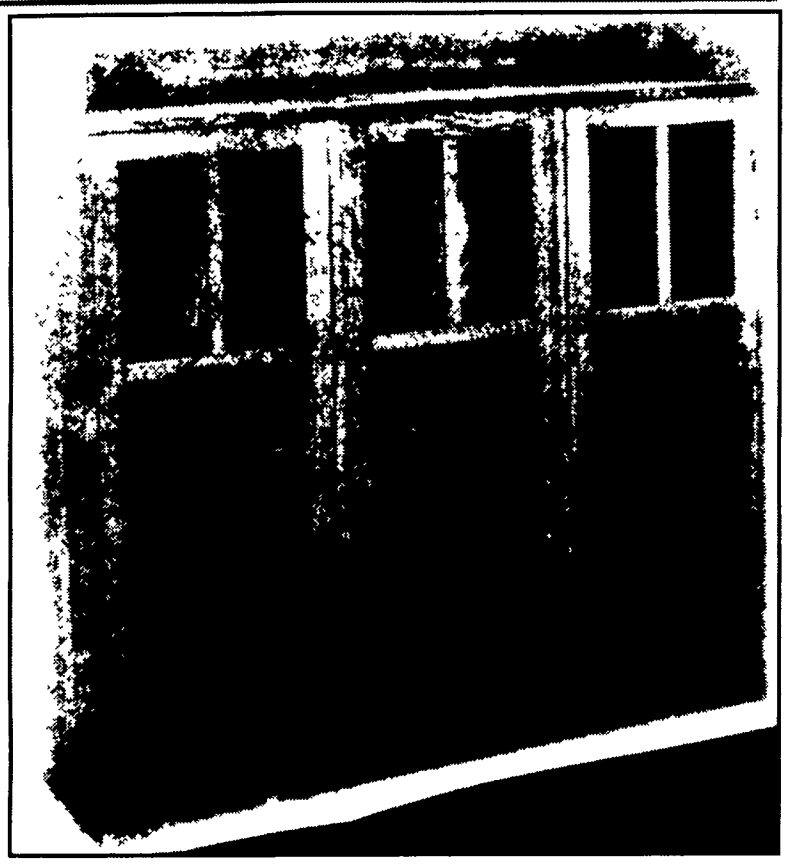
An innovation was the hanging bookshelf. It was almost a work of art. In England it might be designed with ornate fretwork, or, in France, inlaid with tortoiseshell veneer. In any instance, shelving pieces followed the furniture fashions of the time.

There were even novelty bookstorage pieces. One example was a mahogany, revolving Regency book table, with imitation novels to act as book supports.

Another unusual item was the traveler's collapsible bookcase.

By the early Victorian period (1830s), the bookcase-as-furniture had become a standard in American and English middle-class homes. The style depended on the taste and pocketbook of the owner.

CLUES: These days nothing is cheap when it comes to bookcases. As ususual what is fashionable is costly. Arts and Crafts style bookcases are fetching big bucks at auction. At a recent Treadway auction in Cincinatti of 20th century Art and Design, a bookcase designed by Charles Limbert sold for $4,750. By the 20th century bookcases such as this had become practical and popular because they were smaller.



Bookcase designed by Charles Limber is signed with paper label. Photo credit: Treadway Galleries, Cincinatti, Ohio.

In the 1970s, collectors discovered walnut and golden oak office bookcases in the Arts and Crafts style. In those days, they were thrown away when old office buildings were torn down or offices remodeled. Or, the pieces sold for five dollars. Not only were they often vertical but in stackable sections. Some even had leaded glass doors. These days, when you can find them, prices are several hundred dollars.

When even the plainest bookcase can be attributed to a designer, prices can be awesome. This is especially true when the designer was a famous architect like Frank Lloyd Wright or a designer for the Gustav Stickley Co.

Historical Schaefferstown Plans Cherry Fair June 28

SCHAEFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Cherry Fair has been a tradition in Schaefferstown since the late 1700s when farmers and their families would come into the village square to sell their cherries and other seasonal produce, catch-up on the news, and in general make merry.

"Cherries, although they gave a name to the occasion, were by no means the most important feature of it. The fairs were essentially a scheme for bringing the people of the neighborhood together for merry making," wrote an early Schaefferstown historian, A.S. Brendle in his 1901 history of the town. "Cherries, raisins, mintdrops, molasses candy, and other fruit and confections were sold ... The crowds at the fairs passed the time merrily in dancing and social games, in which many of the young people participated. Music for dancing was furnished mostly by colored violinists and among the number of musicians who were remembered were Baltimore, Black Jack, and Lovington."

While the location of the Cherry Fair has changed from the village square to a farm just south of the town, the selling of cherries and baked goods, musical entertainment, and neighbors getting together has not changed at present day fairs.

"This year's Cherry Fair features the Holt Twins and Tony T as our music group, lots of cherry pies, cherry fritters or pancakes, cherry ice cream, and the cherry pit 'Sit & Spit' contest," noted Sue Small, executive director of Historic Schaefferstown, Inc. "More than 40 artisans will demonstrate and sell their early American crafts." Visitors can also walk through the historic farmhouse and outbuildings.

The Cherry Fair is Saturday, June 28 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Alexander Schaeffer Farm on Route 501 just south of the 419 and 897 intersection at Schaefferstown. Tickets are $5 for adults with children under 12 admitted free with accompanying adult. Parking is free. Discounted one-day passes to the Brendle Museum and Gemberling — Rex House can be obtained at the information booth during the fair.

All proceeds from the Cherry Fair benefit Historic Schaefferstown, Incorporated's general fund for restoration and educational efforts. Historic Schaefferstown, Inc. is an educational non-profit organization whose mission is the collection, preservation, study, and dissemination of the history and folk culture of the Pennsylvania Germans in South Central Pennsylvania, with particular focus on Schaefferstown, Pennsylvania. The organization disseminates information through educational programs for adults and children, tours of its buildings and collections, festivals and special events, and publication of research and promotional materials.

Legislative Aides 'Talk Dairy' In Northern Tier

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — In an effort to gain first-hand input on current dairy issues, Michael Oscar, a legislative aide to Senator Arlen Specter, and Ray Stock, V.M.D, a congressional science fellow with Representative John Peterson, toured several area dairy farms and met dairy farmers to 'talk dairy" in three Northern Tier Counties recently.

"We're in a situation here as you well know, you're on the front lines, where milk prices have reached the lowest they've been since October of 1978, there's no question about that.

"You may have seen that they rose slightly during this past month, but the picture is still in question. I wanted you to know that we're trying the best we can to be as helpful as possible in Washington," said Oscar as he opened the meeting.

The two assistants passed out packets containing copies of letters and other documents relating to several current dairy issues including dairy cost of production, farm versus retail pricing of milk, milk protein concentrates, support programs and the dairy compact.

"I've provided you with the facts. I've provided you the letters that we've written. I've provided you with the responses that we've gotten back.

"Obviously we're fourth largest in dairy in the state of Pennsylvania, but our number one industry is agriculture. Senator Specter believes in that and he wants to address that to be has helpful as possible," said Oscar.

First on the agenda, however, and part of the reason the legislative aides came to the Northern Tier, was drought assistance monies from last summer. The two aides brought with them the good news that Tioga County farmers would be eligible for drought assistance under the livestock compensation program.

Tioga, Fayette, and Green counties were previously excluded from the drought disaster designation because accurate crop loss data were not available by the federal deadline.

Farm Service Agency Director Sherri Butters noted that the funds have arrived in Tioga County and that payments would be made to area farmers as soon as applications are approved. She also thanked the gentlemen on behalf of Tioga County farmers, for all their hard work in securing funds for those counties.

"When we entered in this new Congress in January of this year we were very reactive dealing with the drought program. We got that resolved and now we're trying to be proactive," said Oscar.

Oscar pointed out that milk price talks are ongoing between dairy farmers from across the United States and that it is difficult to reach a compromise.

"Honestly, from a legislative perspective, it's a tug of war between the Midwest and the Northeast. I don't think it's a farmer's consideration," said Oscar.

"I think the sense of it right now because in the Northeast class I fluid milk is the major consideration for us and because the class III cheese price for milk in the Midwest is their concern, we need to come to some kind of agreement and it's going to be very difficult to do that."

Legislators from the Midwest and the Northeast have however come together to support changing the laws to address the milk protein concentrate (MPCs) issue.

MPC imports totaled 33,626 metric tons in 2002, according to International Trade Commission data. These MPCs, although not permitted in U.S. cheese which has a standard of identity with the Food and Drug Administration, are used in other products not labeled as cheese. Senate Bill 560 and House Bill 1160 would impose tariff rate quotas on MPCs.

Senate Bill 40 would prohibit the use of dry MPC in domestic cheese production. To date, no action has been taken on these bills. The National Milk Producers Federation has also filed a formal challenge concerning the U.S. Customs classification of the MPCs, saying that most MPCs coming into this country are a blend of milk casein, nonfat dry milk and whey powder, items that individually would by subject to tariffs, but when entering the United States as MPCs, are tariff free. The U.S Customs office contends that the MPCs are classified correctly and the matter is currently under appeal.

Much of what is decided in Washington relies on the depth of the taxpayers' pockets.

"The milk payment program that we have right now is due to sunset in 2005. It was anticipated when it was voted on in the farm bill to only cost one billion dollars. Currently, right now, it's at 3.5 billion dollars at the taxpayer's expense. That's a lot of money," said Oscar. "Secondly, as you have indicated to me via writing, via email, via phone call, and in person, (that you feel) the milk payment checks are a welfare check.

"You find them disgraceful and humiliating and you have every right to."

The Senator is now looking at an amendment to the farm bill cosponsored by David Obey and Bernard Sanders, which would include price structures for both class III and class 1 fluid milk. He has also considered reintroducing the concept of regional compacts for pricing milk.

"If we have compact legislation, that would take into consideration class I and class III price of milk. There would not be any expense to the taxpayer and there would be a commission that would set the price, so that if the price is lower, you can raise it at the commission's perspective.

"It would have two potential additions that are different than the legislation that was originally introduced. One would be to take into consideration the dairy cost of production, which is a big concern."

Cost of production issues have been recently brought in the limelight again by Senator Specter since those issues are specifically addressed in the Agricultural Marketing Agreement of 1937, and were brought to the attention of the federal courts in the 1990s. No decision was made by the USDA at that time and the Senator feels this is an unresolved issue, according to Oscar.

"The second point to that is the national part. Basically we would have all the regions. The Northeast would have a regional compact, the southeast would have a regional compact, and so forth, but if a state, for example Hawaii, wants to join the Northeast Compact, and they want to pay the transportation costs and the feed availability and whatever it takes to be a part of that market, and the Northeast allows for it, and Hawaii's compact allows for it, they would be allowed to enter into that compact," said Oscar.

This flexibility allows for a national program which would address everyone's needs.

"Senator Specter doesn't do things for the short term. He does things for the long term. And, when you look at the long term and the compact, if you get the legislation up and running in the 108th congress, which in the 108th Congress you have 2003 and 2004, by 2005 if the milk payment program sunsets and you have nothing else, and if the compact's elected in congress then there's no price variation, despite the fact that the price is so low, but at least there's something in back of it. If the compact doesn't go through and the milk payments go out, you've got nothing," said Oscar.

Oscar also indicated that they have written letters to the General Accounting Office in regarding the large margins between the farm price of milk and the retail price.

A letter co-signed by 12 U.S. Senators and dated March 11, 2003, points out that farm level prices have decreased over 30 percent in the past 18 months while the retail prices fell less than four percent.

"This discrepancy in the magnitude of change in what farmers receive and retailers charge for fluid milk is striking and puzzling. The lack of direct, immediate and complete price transmission to the consumer when farm milk prices have fallen so dramatically needs explanation," the letter states.

Oscar also touched on other current issues including the dairy options pilot program and Cooperatives Working Together (CWT) and asked for input from the group.

Stock, who has worked in Representative Peterson's office since October, is learning that getting things done in Washington takes time.

"It's been a real eye opener for me. I found out you can get things done, but you have to figure out the process," he said. "The milk price issue has been something that has dominated quite a bit of our time."

Comments or questions about the various programs can be sent to Senator Specter's office at michael—oscar@specter.senate.gov, or to Congressman Peterson's office at ray.stock@mail.house.gov.

Ray Stock, V.M.D., a Congressional Science Fellow with Representative John Peterson, left, and Michael Oscar, Legislative Aide to Senator Arlen Specter came to the Northern Tier to talk about current dairy issues. While in Pennsylvania, the two met with Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff, toured several dairy farms and the Tioga County Farm Service Agency office, and met with farmers in three counties in three separate meetings.

Cooperative Council Urges Changes To Strengthen Federal Programs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) called for immediate action last week at the national level to modernize and strengthen federal programs to better enable farmers to join together in cooperative self-help efforts to improve their income from the marketplace and capitalize on new value-added business opportunities.

"Such action is critical," said NCFC President David Graves, "to meet the challenges of a rapidly changing global marketplace and to keep pace with changing state laws."

A major challenge facing farmers and their cooperatives is access to capital. Unlike other types of businesses, farmer cooperatives historically have been limited in their ability to attract outside capital necessary for continued growth and to capitalize on new business opportunities.

In response to the needs of its farmers and cooperatives for greater financial flexibility, Minnesota, which ranks number one among all states with over 300 farmer cooperatives, recently changed its law to allow farmer cooperatives for the first time to bring in outside investors, provided the farmer members of the cooperative maintain voting control.

While the new Minnesota law provides farmers and their cooperatives within the state greater flexibility in terms of how they finance and capitalize their businesses, like the Wyoming stature, it raises another set of issues at the federal level. In many instances, many of these new generation cooperatives and evolving business structures established under such state statutes may not meet the federal definition of a farmer cooperative.

The federal Farm Credit Act is a good example, Graves said. Although defined as a farmer cooperative under state law, he explained, these new generation cooperatives may no longer be eligible under federal law to borrow from CoBank, which itself is a cooperatively-owned lender and part of the Farm Credit System established by Congress.

"For this reason, it is essential that Congress approve legislation modernizing the federal Farm Credit Act to make sure that farmers and their cooperative businesses continue to have access to a competitive source of capital," Graves emphasized.

Renewable Fuels Standard Part Of Senate Energy Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) called the adoption of the Frist/Daschle renewable fuels standard (RFS) amendment a major victory for the renewable fuels industry.

After defeating numerous anti-ethanol amendments, the Senate passed the RFS in an overwhelming 67-29 vote June 5. The RFS is now part of S. 14, the Senate energy bill.

NCGA expects the Senate to pass the energy bill prior to the July 4 recess, which will give conferees the opportunity to meet and discuss the bill throughout July and August. The House passed its energy bill in mid-April.

During deliberations, ethanol opponents offered numerous amendments to kill RFS legislation sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist (R-Tenn.) and Minority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.) RFS legislation. All of the amendments were struck down by solid margins. The defeated amendments included various state exemptions, waivers and liability treatment for ethanol.

"This is a huge step in making the RFS a reality, but we're not yet to the end-game," Yoder said. "We still need Senate passage of the energy bill and then final legislation that comes out of conference. We are in the seventh inning stretch."

NCGA is optimistic a comprehensive energy bill will be signed into law by September.

Mycogen Seeds Appoints New National Sales Manager

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Mycogen Seeds recently announced the promotion of Ben Kaehler to the position of National Sales Manager. Kaehler, a 17-year veteran of Dow AgroSciences (an affiliate of Mycogen Seeds), will manage a professional sales team that spans over 20 states.

"We're pleased to announce Ben's new leadership role," said Tom Wiltrout, general manager, North American Seeds for Dow AgroSciences. "He has demonstrated a natural talent for team leadership and business management. We are confident that he will make decisions that benefit the company and its employees, while keeping in touch with customer needs.

In addition to managing the Mycogen Seeds sales team, Kaehler will work closely with other Dow AgroSciences groups, including the traits business, to strengthen the position of Mycogen Seeds. "I'm excited to work with an excellent team of sales representatives and dealers, and I am eager to work together to build on the position of Mycogen Seeds by educating growers about our strong seed portfolio. We have many reasons to be proud," Kaehler said.

A native of St. Charles, Minn., Kaehler grew up on a family farm and raised registered beef cattle and managed cash crops with three brothers and his father, who was also a seed dealer. Kaehler earned a degree in Agricultural Economics from North Dakota State University. "It was a natural fit and combined many of my interests, including business and agriculture," he said.

Mussmon and Hughes Achieve Professional Certification

SHIPPENSBURG Cumberland Co.) — Joseph G. Hughes and Timothy L. Mussmon, dairy nutrition specialists for Agway Feed & Nutrition, have been approved as full members of the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists (ARPAS). Hughes and Mussmon met all of the requirements for certification and successfully completed the qualifying exam.

Hughes and Mussmon are both residents of Chambersburg. They develop feeding and nutritional programs for dairy farmers in central Pennsylvania, working with each farmer individually so that the dairy can meet its goals.

Their professional standing represents their knowledge and dedication to animal science. Agway Feed & Nutrition sets the standard in the industry for the training and education of its nutrition specialists. These knowledgeable professionals are uniquely prepared to serve as a trusted advisor in advancing the goals of the dairy customer. Each Agway salesperson serves three essential functions on a dairy farm: Perform an accurate overall farm evaluation; solve problems; and help build proper rations.

Joseph G. Hughes

Timothy L. Mussmon

"We congratulate Joe and Tim on this significant accomplishment," says Frank A. Ziacik, Jr., Agway F&N's vice president of marketing and sales. "They join a growing number of Agway dairy nutritionists who pursue professional training and education so they can put their knowledge to work for customers."

INJECTORS

Have you serviced yours?

Bad Injectors Cause:

- Excessive Fuel Consumption
- Poor Starting
- Loss Of Power
- Misfiring
- Black Smoke
- Overheating

So service them regularly!

The fastest 10-foot cut

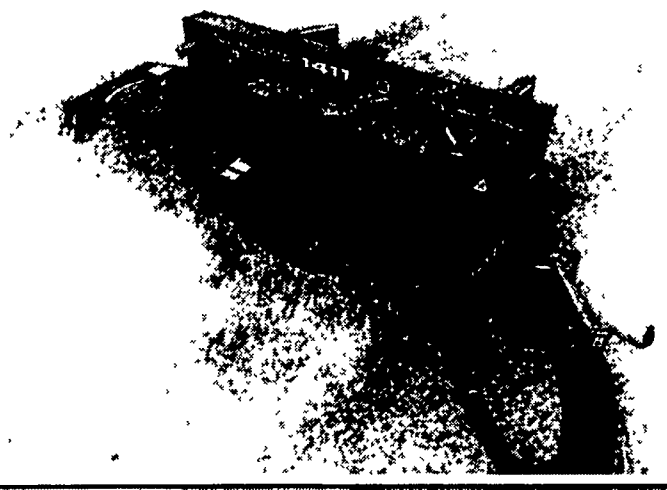
Choose the New Holland 1411 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner to speed you through your day's work.

- Eight discs make a 10'4" cut through thick, tangled, wet crops–fast.
- Disc modules are sealed in their own oil and connected by independent drive shafts for easy maintenance or repair.
- Chevron-design intermeshing rolls deliver proven plug-free conditioning

NEW HOLLAND

Stop in and see the fastest 10-footer– the New Holland 1411 Discbine

NEW HOLL CREDIT



Class leader

The New Holland 575 square baler tops every baler in the 14x18-inch bale class... for capacity, bale quality and reliability.

- Revolutionary rotary feeding system. Mechanically simple, but unbeatable for hay handling
- Exclusive Wide Super-Sweep™ pickup that's 75" wide to get all the hay
- Heavy-duty materials in the bale case and plunger
- Gear-driven knotters or twisters
- Increased load capabilities handle extra capacity

NEW HOLLAND CREDIT

LAST MINUTE SEEDING DECISION?

Hoober Has a Great Plains Drill for You!

15' and 20' Widths Now In Stock!

- Great Plains Precision Seeding System Plants Corn, Soybeans and Small Grains
- Gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters
- The SingulatorPlus Meter™ sits directly on top of the double disc opener, and once the meter releases the seed, it has less distance to travel thus ensuring more accurate seed placement.

CLAAS Country
Meeting all your harvesting needs!

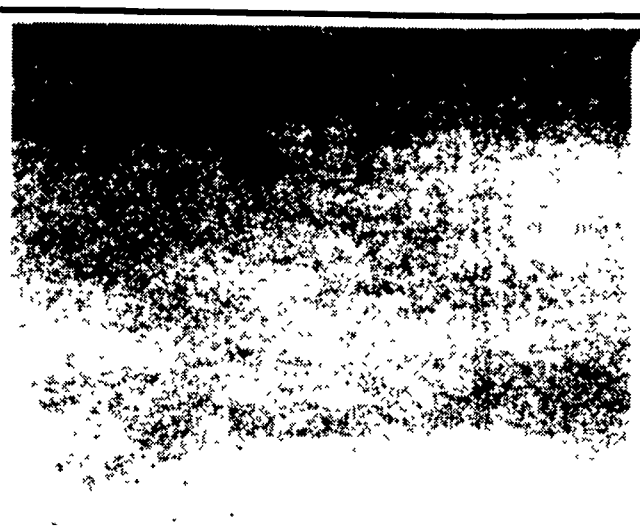
Leola, PA 17540 Phone: (717) 656-2321

Located: 4 miles West of New Holland on Rt. 23, 1-1/2 miles Northwest of Leola on the No. Groffdale Rd., 1 mile on the right, opposite Groffdale Mennonite Church.



Fewer parts, fewer problems, less downtime, more productivity. What could be simpler than that? The all-new MF 9000 Series Class VI and VII combines are so advanced, they're simple. In fact, there are only nine main machine drive belts, three drive chains and 66% fewer grease fittings than competitive combines. That means less time maintaining the machine, more time harvesting your crop. There's more. More header choices than anyone in the industry, and more in-cab visibility and comfort to watch 'em work.

See your Massey Ferguson Dealer today and ask about all the great features on the new MF 9000 combines.

- Home of the Industry leading ALLStar Ag Truck Body - the most popular ag body in the Northeast
- Specializing in "Trucks for Farmers"
- Serving Farmers from Maine to Virginia and Rhode Island to Minnesota

All manner of agricultural truck applications
Silage and grain - Liquid Manure Spread and/or nurse - TRM Mixers

And we make 'em work right!

Whether it be ALLStar Body and hoist, USA "2 in 1" Roll Off System, liquid manure tank or TMR mixer, USA Body's trained, professional crew quickly and efficiently handle all ag truck installation needs.

TAKE A LOOK AT THIS ...USA "2 IN 1" SYSTEM - THE ULTIMATE IN EFFICIENCY!!!

Save your tractor for the field.

One chassis converts from a silage truck to a dedicated manure truck in minutes.

Interested but afraid we're too far away? Never fear!
USA body shrinks the distance with...

- Shortest installation turn around times you'll find
  - ALLStar body and hoist installation requires less than a day. We'll even do it while you wait if you prefer.
  - USA "2 in 1" Roll-Off System can be installed on your truck in only 48 hours!
- We honor our commitment to an "on time" delivery schedule tailored to your needs.
- Pick up and/or delivery available - you never have to leave the farm.

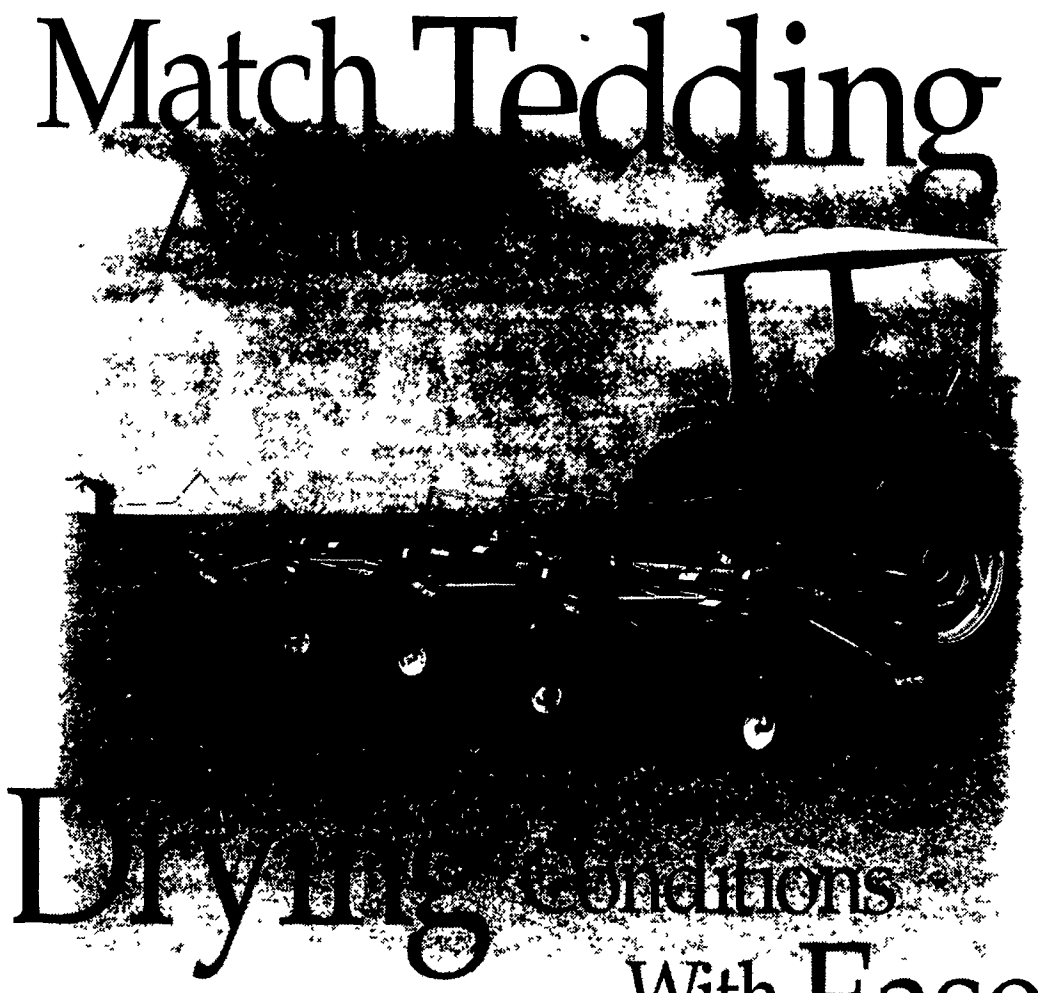
Match Tedding



Drying Conditions With Ease

The New Idea® 4200 Series Tedders - The Results You Need For A Price That's Right.

Available in 2-rotor, 10-foot sizes and 4-rotor, 17-foot sizes, New Idea 4200 Series Tedders meet the needs of most operations. All for a price that's easy on your budget. These fast-acting tedders speed up the drying process, giving you uniform results throughout each windrow. This also helps you put more nutrition into every bale.

Transporting these tedders is easy, too. In fact, the 4210 can fold to a narrow six-foot, five-inch width while the 4217 folds to eight feet, two inches. And both are built to last. The integral torque limited clutch protects the driveline and its components for long life.

Visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today for a look at the 4200 Series Tedder.

Rotary Rakes · Best for Drying

Most types of rakes roll the hay across the ground twisting it into a tight windrow that can t dry Rotary rakes lift and carry hay forkful by forkful to form a light fluffy windrow which has maximum wind penetration The result Hay raked with a Kuhn rotary rake 8 hours after mowing generally has about a day less drying time compared to unraked hay And with less leaf loss than if raked when dry

New Inoculant Improves Silage Quality

DES MOINES, Iowa — Dairy and beef producers now have a way to enhance the nutritional quality of corn silage and reduce the potential for heating during storage and in the bunk. By applying new Pioneer® brand 11C33 inoculant from Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., producers can successfully enhance both aerobic stability and fermentation of corn silage.

Inoculant 11C33 is a unique blend of the company's proprietary Lactobacillus plantarum and Lactobacillus buchneri bacterium strains.

"11C33 combines several benefits of using an inoculant in one product," said Gene Gengelbach, inoculants product manager at Pioneer in Johnston, Iowa. "Application of 11C33 improves the ratio of lactic acid to acetic acid which reduces the growth of harmful yeast and mold species. This in turn improves aerobic stability to keep the silage fresher and cooler in storage and in the feed bunk."

"At the same time, this new inoculant speeds fermentation and lowers the pH more quickly to conserve the important sugars and starches in the silage," Gengelbach said. "The result is better quality, more nutritious, more palatable corn silage which can provide better animal performance."

Pioneer inoculant 11C33 is the first such product on the market to undergo extensive on-farm testing during product development. Gengelbach said research studies conducted by Pioneer microbiologists are critical in bringing an inoculant to the market, but the company wanted to take the testing process a step further and involve producers who use inoculants in their operations.

"Their input observations on how the product performed in 'real world' situations provided Pioneer valuable information on the product," said Gengelbach.

Eighty producers throughout the U.S. each treated 1,000 tons of whole-plant corn silage. An additional 86 cooperators were selected throughout Europe, Japan, and New Zealand to evaluate the efficacy of this product on a global scale with another 75,000 tons of silage. Silage samples were sent for analysis at harvest, 35 to 45 days post harvest and again at 90 days post harvest.

Gengelbach adds that the on-farm testing enabled Pioneer to test silage stored in various structures including bunkers, bags, towers, and piles, something that isn't possible in standard research trials.

Clair Hershey of Manheim, participated in the on-farm testing and observed two major benefits of the product — quick fermentation and an increase in milk production.

"We had a shortage of silage and had to feed the 11C33-treated silage a month after harvest," said Hershey. "Complete fermentation usually takes two to three months, but after only a month the silage smelled good and feedout was very good."

Hershey also noticed an increase in milk production when feeding silage treated with 11C33. "When we began feeding the inoculated silage we saw an increase of 2 to 3 pounds of milk per day," said Hershey. "I'm hesitant to attribute it solely to 11C33, but we hadn't made any other management changes. The silage smelled good and there was no spoilage, so I beileve the good feedout was part of the reason we saw a jump in milk production."

Seedway Marks 40th Anniversary

HALL, N.Y. — Seedway is celebrating it's 40th anniversary in 2003, marking four decades of seed and service in the eastern U.S.

One of the few remaining full-line seed companies in the east, Seedway represents a traditional approach to quality products and customer service coupled with innovative programs as they move into the ever-changing seed and agricultural future.

Seedway's origins began in 1923 with the formation of Robson Seed Farms, a mail order vegetable and flower seed business. In the 1930's a second business started, Robson Quality Seeds. In 1963, Carl Fribolin purchased Robson Quality Seeds and the foundation of Seedway was laid, with the name changing in 1971. Mr Fribolin remained president of Seedway until 1987, when Donald Wertman became president.

People, products, and service are the key elements to Seedway's growth and success. Seedway continues to build upon its long-standing tradition while adapting to industry and market changes to meet the needs of growers throughout its market area.

Seedway is a full-line seed company supplying farm, turf, and vegetable seed in the eastern half of the U.S. and Ontario, Canada. Headquartered in Hall, N.Y., Seedway also maintains locations in Shoreham, Vt.; Mifflinburg, Mechanicsburg, Emmaus, York, and Elizabethtown in Pennsylvania; and Lakeland, Fla.

Pennfield Launches Second Annual Dairy Month Scholarship Program

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — For the second year in a row, it's become a smart idea to buy your cows extra feed in the month of June. That's because Pennfield is again turning feed purchases into "dollars for scholars" in recognition of June Dairy Month.

The Pennfield scholarship fund for agricultural students, which was created last year, is funded by dairy feed sales during the month of June. Pennfield donates $1 to its scholarship fund for every ton of qualifying dairy feed it sells.

"Educating young people is an important issue in our region and in our industry," said Alden Bowman, director of sales and marketing for Pennfield's Ag Products Division. "By setting up this scholarship program, not only are we helping to promote the importance of higher education, but we are also looking to ensure a bright future for our industry's leaders of tomorrow."

The Pennfield scholarship program distributes financial awards to current Pennfield customers or their children studying agriculture at any accredited institution. The recipients are determined by academic achievement, community service, extracurricular participation, and strength of application essay answers.

The number of scholarship recipients and the value of the scholarship are based on the amount of feed sold by Pennfield during the month of June. In its inaugural effort, Pennfield awarded six college students scholarships in the amount of $2,500 for the 2002-2003 school year.

Recipients of last year's program were:

- Amy Kulick of Carlise attending Cornell University
- Eric Miller of Elizabethtown attending Penn State
- Jeremiah Fearnley of Montrose attending Penn State
- Joy Lesher of Pitman attending Ohio State
- Jordan Martin of Stevens attending Delaware Valley College
- Michele Edwards of Blacksburg, Va. attending Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

Pennfield is hopeful that more money will be raised in the second year of the program, resulting in more scholarships being awarded for the upcoming year.

"The more we sell, the more money we give away," said Bowman. "It's that simple. We want to issue a challenge to our customers to help us build this program into one of the most successful annual scholarship programs in the industry."

For the purpose of this program, qualifying Pennfield dairy feed purchases that will contribute to the scholarships include all standard and custom energy blends, complete feeds, concentrates, calf and heifer feeds, and dairy minerals.

Applications are available for this year's scholarship program. Deadline for submission is Oct. 1. Scholarships will be awarded by January 2004. For scholarship applications or additional information regarding the program, call (800) 995-0333 or visit www.pennfield.com.

Mycogen Seeds Sponsors Tri-State Dairy Nutrition Symposium

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Five forage industry experts presented their research in a Pre-Conference Symposium, sponsored by Mycogen Seeds, in conjunction with the Tri-State Dairy Nutrition Conference recently in Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"As a leader in the forage industry, we were pleased to host an event with forage researchers of this caliber," said Dr. Karl Nestor, senior nutritionist, Mycogen Seeds. "The event was well-attended by nutritionists, producers, and other industry leaders."

Symposium speakers were: Greg W. Roth, Department of Crop and Soil Sciences, Penn State; Daniel E. Little, MS, DVM, DairyNet2000; Patrick C. Hoffman, associate professor, Department of Dairy Science, University of Wisconsin-Madison; Limin Kung, Jr., Ruminant Nutrition and Microbiology Laboratory, Department of Animal and Food Sciences, The University of Delaware; and Mike Allen, Michigan State University.

Roth spoke on the "Agronomist's Perspective of Hybrids for Corn Silage Production." He explained that taking hybrids and positioning them appropriately on the farm is a key to success. However, the challenge occurs in integrating agronomic and feed quality issues with hybrid selection. Yield can vary widely among hybrids, acknowledges Roth.

Hoffman covered the topic of "New Developments in Analytical Evaluation of Forage and Total Mixed Rations (TMR)." He discussed the new advancements in forage testing and ration evaluation, along with addressing the myths about analytical procedures.

Kung spoke about how to "Manage for Quality Silage." He said high forage quality drives intake and in turn, this drives milk production.

"Not even the best nutritionists in the world can make cows [illegible] if they are working with poor quality forages," Kung said. "Corn silage should be harvested when the whole plant is at 32 percent to 35 percent DM or when the kernels are at ½ milk line."

KINZE Rolls Out New Grain Auger Wagon

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — KINZE's giant 1050 Harvest Commander™ Grain Auger Wagon now has a companion: a new 850 bushel capacity model, designed similar to its bigger brother, and also capable of unloading its entire payload in just over two minutes.

The new KINZE® 850 Harvest Commander™ holds up to 850 bushels (level-full, not heaped) and unloads in 2.3 minutes (375 bu/min). The 850 uses no chains, no sprockets, requires considerably less daily maintenance, and features an improved dual auger unloading system with "On-Demand" positive drive for natural unrestricted grain flow, greater efficiency, and better horsepower utilization.

Undercarriage options include: (a) 30.5"×32" 16-ply tires (R-3 diamond-tread or R-1 lug-type); (b) giant, floater-style SOF-TREDS (66"×43"×25"); or (c) SOF-TRAKS with 24"- or 36"-wide rubber tracks for superior flotation and reduced compaction. Transport width: as narrow as 12' 0" (12' 7" on 850 SOF-TRED); 850 WHEEL and SOF-TRAK tire/track center-to-center spacings are also adjustable (108" or 120").

Also available on WHEEL and SOF-TRED models: an optional Electronic Scale Package with Digi-Star® EZ 2000 Indicator. The printer-ready console can be equipped with a dot-matrix printer or a Data Down Loader Kit for transferring load data. Additional options include a choice of hitch clevises, PTO sizes, or a hydraulic flow gate.

Dairyland Seed Licenses Hybrid Alfalfa For Canadian Distribution

WEST BEND, Wis. — HybriForce-400™, the world's first hybrid alfalfa, is now available in Canada. Dairyland Seed has announced that HybriForce-400 has been registered in Canada, and seed is now commercially available in Canada exclusively through Brett-Young Seeds.

"Dairyland Seed is excited to have the opportunity to market this revolutionary alfalfa in Canada," said Tom Strachota, chief executive officer of Dairyland Seed. "HybriForce-400 is as revolutionary as the introduction of Hybrid corn, and increasing its distribution network will benefit Canadian producers."

According to Harold Zibell, portfolio manager for Brett-Young Seeds, growers can look forward to a significant increase in yields.

For Brett-Young Seeds, the launch of HybriForce-400 is another step in the company's commitment to Canadian farmers. Brett-Young Seeds, based in Winnipeg, has served the needs of Canadian farmers since 1934. Today, the company researches, develops, processes, and markets the highest quality canola, forage, and grass seed.

Galvanized or Galvalume?

For metal roofing and siding, which is better, painted Galvanized or painted Galvalume?. Galvanizing is many times better if it's mill certified G100. Why is it better? Galvanizing tends to "heal" when scratched. The more galvanizing, the better. Everlast is ten times better at "healing" than galvalume because galvalume hardly "heals" at all when scratched. Also cut edges rust quickly on galvalume.

Imported from Holland, ORLANDO is a black 17 1 hand Dutch harness horse stallion.

Stop by and see us at the Horse Progress Days, July 4 & 5, 2003, in Mt. Hope, Ohio. We will have a booth in the exhibit area of this event, along with a new video of ORLANDO driving in harness and in hand. ORLANDO will be in the parade of breeds on July 5th around 5:30 P.M.

*ORLANDO is standing at Hartville, Ohio, for the 2003 breeding season, shipped semen is available. The 2003 introductory stud fee is $1,000 and includes a live foal guarantee. ORLANDO is a nominated sire for the International Dutch Foundation Driving Horse Registry for resulting Purebred Dutch and crossbred foals. These foals will be eligible for exclusive marketing opportunities.

ORLANDO'S pedigree contains no Saddlebred blood

Purina EXT Nuggets Turn Conception Rates Around At Woodedge Farm

Rod Kauffman, right, has seen his herd double its conception rates over the past year on Purina EXT. Joining Kauffman is Purina representative Gerald Burket.

Two years ago, Rod Kauffman was having a lot of trouble breeding cows in his Holstein herd at Woodedge Farm.

He tried to remedy the problem by switching to a new feed company to provide better energy supplements. But nine months later, the herd's reproductive performance was still poor.

Startena gets calves off to a good start on Woodedge Farm.

It wasn't until Kauffman switched to Purina EXT Nuggets a year ago that the conception rates began to turn around. Now they stand at roughly double last year's level.

"Conception rates have really improved a lot," said Kauffman, pointing out DHIA figures for overall success rate of 15–20 percent a year ago compared to 35–40 percent today.

Kauffman manages a 65-cow tiestall operation near Reedsville, Mifflin County, along with his wife Gloria and children, Dustin, 15; Ashlee, 13; and Eric, 11. They grow their own alfalfa and high moisture corn on the 115-acre home farm.

Kauffman and his father Leroy have long relied on Purina Nurse Grow 100 milk replacer and Startena to grow healthy calves. Now, they are also sold on the EXT nugget concentrate to give their cows the energy they need to be bred back in a timely manner.

"EXT is an extremely high-energy product," said Gerald Burket, dairy specialist and the Kauffman's Purina representative. "The nuggets have been tremendous."

In addition to the boost in reproductive performance, the Kauffman's herd has also seen an increase in production with Purina. April herd average this year is 25,600 pounds of milk, 916 of fat, and 773 of protein. April a year ago, the average stood at 23,455 of milk.

Kauffman is pleased with the service he gets from Burket, who visits the farm every other week to balance the rations.

Both of them—farmer and feedman—keep a real close eye on dry matter intake, Burket said.

With a Purina program in place for the milking cows, the Kauffmans have had their confidence restored in the Woodedge herd, which boasts five 88-point cows in the barn today. Two of them are granddaughters of the late Woodedge Mark Pasta, an Excellent-91 5E matriarch bred on the farm.

The Kauffman's management program includes a focus on longevity, foot and leg health, and cow comfort. Evidence is provided by a number of aged cows in the herd, including one 11-year-old.

At the Kauffman's, Purina is clearly a key part of overall good management.
